California Theatre.

The last nights of "No Thoroughfare" are announced, and but few opportunities remain to see Mr. Florence's wonderful impersonation of Jules Obenreizer. The rush to witness this piece continues unabated. It will be played during the present week.

Opera House.

Everything is brilliant and entertaining at this house. The finale to the first part entitled "The Arizona Diamond Mines" is very amusing, Harry Sefton is great in his original specialties, Ernest Linden's burlesque ballads are much applauded, Billy Emerson's clever sketches of character are universally admired, and Leopold and Geraldine are great stars in their line of business.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"Carlotta; or, the Queen of the Arena," produced at this house last night, proved to be a very strong play full of exciting situations. The plot is briefly as follows: Carlotta (Miss Annette Ince), is performing with a circus in Cuba, Viscount Harleigh (J. S Lindsay), falls in love with her and proceeds to the length of proposing marriage. Baron Harleigh (Frank Rea), very naturally disapproves of the match and finding that persuasion does not move his obstinate son, resorts to strategy. Bambrino (J. A. Herne), the leading man of the troupe, is desperately in love with Carlotta and his love drives him to drink. Baron Harleigh interviews Bambrino and offers him money to procure a mock priest to perform the ceremony. Bambrino consents. In the next act we find Viscount and Viscountess Harleigh at their residence in the Isle of Wight. Carlotta horrifies the quiet English people by indulging in fast riding, shooting and other manly sports. Blanche Stanhope (Miss Ella Kemble), assisted by her mamma (Blanche Galton), entraps the fickle Viscount into a declaration of his disgust for his wife and love for Blanche. Carlotta at bay presents a grand spectacle. She defies her husband, denounces Blanche and asserts her rights in the most emphatic way. She is taken down considerably, when Baron Harleigh informs her that the marriage was a mock one and he in his turn feels much disturbed when Bambrino appears on the scene, declares the marriage to have been in every way legal and exhibits the certificate. After this, things go on from bad to worse, and Carlotta takes to drink and dies miserably. The scenery was excellent as it always is at this house and the play is certainly a good one. It drew a discouragingly small audience, and the management have decided on closing the house for the present. It can be rented by the night or week up to December 21st, on application at the box office. During this interregnum, the scene painters and carpenters will be busily engaged in preparations for the production of a grand Christmas spectacle which it is confidently anticipated, will eclipse anything heretofore presented on the San Francisco stage.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

In "Dodging for a Wife," Frank Mortimore, Miss Maggie Brewer, Hughey Robinson, Harry Devoy and John Kelly do some clever acting, Johnny Tuers comes out strong in "He would be an Actor" and "Madame Gassynigger," and altogether a very lively performance is given.

Mercantile Library Hall.

To-morrow evening an exhibition of Risley's Mirror of England, or Views of the River Thames and the City of London, will commence at the above hall. This is not a steropticon show, but an immense panorama painted on canvass by Messrs. P. Phillips, Haghe and Telbin of London. A list of the views appear on our first page. A trip down the Thames from its source to its mouth will make the evening pass very pleasantly. Mr. Risley has met with great success in all parts of the United States. After exhibiting a few nights in San Francisco the panorama will be taken to Australia.

Mechanic's Pavilion.

The Second Infantry, N. G. C., Colonel John McComb commanding, will give a promenade concert at the Pavilion on Friday evening. There will be an inspection and review by Major General D. W. Thompson and staff. There is sure to be a large and fashionable attendance.

Dashaway Hall.

There is a curious and attractive exhibition at this hall at present. It will continue until Saturday evening. It consists of a curiously spotted boy, an immense boa constrictor, and a pretty little dwarf lady. The show has been travelling with much success through California and Oregon. The charge for admission is twenty-five cents.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attractions at these Gardens are too numerous to mention, and the visitors are in proportion to them, especially on Sunday. The orchestral concerts, by Wetterman's New Grand Orchestra, now given every Sunday, furnish most excellent music, and are a great success. Saturday and Sunday next, second appearance of Mlle. Jeannette Ellsler in her great act on the corde elastique, Gracie and Alvan in their truly great act on the velocipede, of which they have wonderful control, and the New Variety Troupe. Now on exhibition, a living Iguana.

Notes.

Sittara Butler, a very clever little girl will give an entertainment at Y. M. C. A. Hall, to-morrow evening. Admission twenty-five cents.

One of Montgomery Queen's lionesses, gave birth on Sunday, to three cubs, at Haywood's, where the menagerie is in Winter quarters.

The lecture on the Transit of Venus delivered by Professor Mix at Dashaway Hall on Sunday last was highly successful as an effort to popularize science.

Mrs. Laura Cuppy Smith, the talented lecturer is delivering a course of Sunday lectures in this city.

The Green Room.

The popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a modle of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

IN DARKNESS.

I love the darkness—love the silent rest,
The sweet repose, to ease the jaded eye,
I love to lay my head upon thy breast,
Unseen of all the reckless sitters-by.

I cannot see thee; and the solemn vail
Hides me from thee; and yet I know thee near,
Did no clasped hand or kiss reveal the tale,
I still should feel, I know, that presence dear.

It will be so hereafter! though the tomb
Vailed me from sight, I know that I should be
Peacefully reveling in its holy gloom;
Yet only blest by being still with thee.

For what are life and death to spirit love,
The miscalled life and death of the poor flesh
When that decays, the freed soul speeds above,
Yet keeps its old affection pure and fresh.

Oh joy! to know and feel, as feel I do,
When shrouded thus in darkness from the sun,
That while the garish daylight shows us two,
In night's beloved embrace we twain are one.

Brooklyn's Blatherer.

The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage continues his attacks on theatres and actors. The reason why the reverend gentleman does this is, not because he thinks theatres harmful to the attendants, not because he expects to induce any reformation of the stage by his slangwhanging, but he does it because he knows it will create talk, that he will be spoken of, and that his church will be filled in consequence thereof. There isn't a more arrant humbug in the pulpit than Talmage, and it would be difficult to find a more reckless man than he in any walk of life. So long as he creates a sensation he doesn't care whether he speaks truth or falsehood. So long as he rants in his present style he knows that he will have full houses, and as he is a "star" in his profession, full houses he regards as an endorsement of his abilities. In the theatrical profession there are "stars," also. The legitimate "stars" are actors worthy of their fame—like E. L. Davenport, Miss Cushman, Mrs. Lander, and others of talent and culture. There are other "stars" in the theatrical profession—like Oliver Doud Byron, John Thompson, and fellows of equal want of ability. Were the Rev. Talmage a "star" actor he would not belong to the royal band who've won their fame by merit and conscientious effort, but would make money by playing in something of the "Across the Continent," or "On Hand" order of balderdash. His sermons are sensational and nonsensical; were he an actor his tastes would lead him to plays of about the same literary merits as his sermons. In all churches there are ministers of the purest piety, of the most unsullied lives, and of the widest and gentlest charity. There is, also, a percentage of coarse, ignorant, vain, unscrupulous ranters. It would be wrong to condemn the ministry of the churches in a body, because there are a few Talmages in them. We think the actors are giving Mr. Talmage too much attention. He is a little less worthy of serious attention than George Francis Train. Such men as he live on being reviled.

Suited His Taste.

The Healdsburg Flag says:—Last Saturday, a young Indian, one of the fanciest dressed of his tribe, came to town with the wages of a week's work in his pocket, and sought out the different stores to find some article that would add to his fine appearance. He examined many styles and colors of scarfs, handkerchiefs, blankets, etc., but found nothing he particularly wanted. By and by his fancy was arrested at sight of a new-style hat. It was just exactly what he wanted—a hat with a feather in it. He bought it eagerly and went off happy in the possession—a lady's hat of the period.

Just So!

The girl of the period will be disgusted to hear that the empress of Germany makes her own bed and dusts her own room every morning. And she has a right to be disgusted, for the empress probably does no such thing.

A Cheerful Funeral.

The Boston Spiritual Scientist says:

The funeral of Mrs. Nayler, the late wife of R. S. Nayler, conductor of the Lyceum services and chief exponent in Stawell for years past of the doctrines of Spiritualism, took place on Monday afternoon. It was well attended, and was highly noticeable from the total absence of all outward signs of grief usually manifested on such occasions. The hearse, as well as the horses and their drivers, was decked with festoons of evergreens and flowers in place of plumes, while on the coffin itself lay two large bouquets. Each of those forming the procession was presented with a small bunch of flowers to be worn in the button-hole of the coat, and the appearance of the whole was sufficiently singular to attract much attention. A pretty large crowd assembled in the cemetery, those anxious to testify to their respect for the deceased lady being suplemented, doubtless, by others who were curious to know what description of ceremony would be used. There was little to denote a departure from the ordinary usages, except a total absence of anything like mourning or regret. The deceased lady was spoken of in an address by Mr. Walter as merely having changed her place of existence, and to be still capable of watching over and protecting her friends; and this, with some reflections on the event, a hymn expressive of the soul's desire for the better world, and a short prayer of adoration, completed the ceremony. At an appropriate point the coffin was lowered into the grave, still bearing the large bouquets, and all those present threw those they had worn upon it.

A Lesson for a Husband.

Jenny June got a hat that turned up on one side, and her husband criticised it so severely that she wore her old bonnet when she went to see the "Sphinx, and lo! it was the only one there. Everybody had on a new hat, and every one had it turned up high on the sides. Said her husband, "Good heavens! have all the women gone crazy?" "Yes," replied she, meekly, "and why can't I go crazy too?" "My dear," said he, "you may; it would be ridiculous to be the only sensible woman in the world." So hereafter she is going to wear her gray felt, turned up on one side, in peace.

An End Man.

A New York paper says: That celebrated theological end man, Rev. T. Dewitt Talmadge, has been at it again, and yet with a full canvas of the returns there does not appear to be a single county heard from where an actor is on trial for a too liberal indulgence in "paroxysmal kisses." They are probably too wicked for anything of that kind.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-y

The California, the Union, the Pacific and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, a very good substitue. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

Ira Aldridge in Russia.

A St. Petersburg correspondent writes: "The repertoire of a negro actor would seem to be limited to colored pieces: but, when you think of it, if a white comedian besmirches himself with bister to play a black role, why should not a black comedian paint himself white to play a white role? It has been done. Ira Aldridge played King Lear, and all requisite illusion was perfectly produced. A flesh-colored skull cap, whence hung some few locks of silvery hair, covered his woolly curls and came down to his eyebrows; a wax addition was made to his own flat nose; a thick coat of paint covered his cheeks. For the rest, a great white beard concealed the lower part of his face, and fell upon his breast; transformation was complete. Cordelia never could have suspected that her father was a black man? The success of this black tragedian piqued to emulation the great Russian actor, Somoiloff. He also performed Lear and Othello, at the Alexander Theatre, with an energy and power truly Shakspearian. Somoiloff is an actor whose style resembles Frederick; he is unequal, capricious, often sublime, full of flashes and inspirations. He is at once terrible and burlesque. He can represent with equal ability the hero of the drunken man, and is, besides, personally a gentleman of most pleasing manners. An artist to the finger tips, he designs his own costumes, and draws caricatures that are as clever in the execution as they are in the idea. His performances are well attended, though not as successful as those of Ira Aldridge. But Somoiloff could not make himself a negro."

Daughters.

An intelligent writer says: "It is not possible to over-estimate the advantages which would result from men in trades and professions allowing their daughters some participation in the work of their daily lives. What girls want is a larger observation of the world, and a deeper knowledge of human nature. There are few of our merchants and manufacturers and professional men who could not largely avail themselves of the services of their educated and competent daughters; and if such services could be rendered generally available, it is not too much to say that a wider and more fertile social life would arise for mankind. Men's occupations would in no sense be prejudiced, whilst women would at once find that outlet for their faculties, for which so many of them have been so long striving. A certain responsibility would increase their self-reliance. A capacity for earning would remove their sense of dependence; and a definite occupation would bring both health and cheerfulness, and the larger experiences of life would give force and completeness to their mental character.

Death of Keyt the Bill Poster.

Abner C. Keyt the well-known bill poster of this city died early this morning of disease of the heart. Mr. Keyt commenced the business of bill posting some fifteen years ago, and systematized it so admirably that he had it entirely in his own hands. Everyone in the theatrical, minstrel and circus professions who ever had dealings with Mr. Keyt will regret his death. He was a native of Ohio, and was 45 years old at the time of his death. The funeral will take place to-morrow from 506 Commercial street.

Real Works of Art.

There is an immense difference between the dolls of twenty years ago, and those of to-day. The ancient doll was a misshapen monster with a dull expressionless face. Feldbusch & Co., No. 308 Battery street, have received for the coming holidays the most beautiful and varied collection of dolls ever seen. There are crying dolls, sleeping dolls, and dolls wide-awake, dolls with hair, and dolls bald-headed, and all as real as life. Toys of every description on hand—to the trade. Also retail Store No. 207 Montgomery street. T

John Smith.

"Gentlemen," said a candidate for Congress, "my name is Smith, and I am proud to say that I am not ashamed of it. It may be that no person in this crowd owns this very uncommon name. If, however, there be one such, let him hold up his hand, pull up his dickey, turn out his toes, take courage, and thank his stars that there are a few more left of the same sort. Gentlemen I am proud of being an original Smith, and not a Smithe, nor a Smythe, but a regular, natural S-m-i-t-h. Putting a y in the middle or an e at the end won't do, gentlemen. Who ever heard of a great man by the name of Smythe or Smithe? Echo answers, who? and everybody says nobody. But for Smith, plain S-m-i-t-h, Smith, why that is an honored and revered name. Who were the most racy, witty, and popular authors of the present century? Horace and Albert Smith. Who was the most original, pithy, and humorous preacher? Rev. Sidney Smith. To go further back, who was the bravest and boldest soldier in Sumter's army, in the Revolution? A Smith. Who palavered with Powhattan, galivanted with Pocahontas, and became the ancestor of the first families in Virginia? A Smith again. And who, I ask, and ask the question more seriously and soberly, who, I say, is that man, and what is his name, who has fought the most battles, made the most speeches, preached the most sermons, held the most offices, sung the most songs, written the most poems, courted the most women, kissed the most girls, and married the most widows? History says, I say, and you say, and everybody says, John Smith."

Cleaned.

The following sounds like Max Adeler: Judge Pitman's chimney had been foul for some time, and when he mentioned the fact at the drug store, Mr. Squills said he could easily clean it out by exploding a little powder in the fire-place. The idea seemed to Pitman to be a good one, and he bought about ten pounds of powder in order to do the work thoroughly at the first blast. Some men were busy graveling his roof that day, and just as the Judge was about to touch off the charge a workman named Snyder leaned over the top of the chimney to call to the man below to send up some tar. Then the Judge lit the slow match. The view which met the eye of Mr. Snyder as he went up was a fine one, embracing as it did Cape May, Baltimore and the Sandwich Islands, and when he got enough of drinking in the scenery he came down into the river apparently with the intention of exploring the bottom. When he was fished out he was glad to learn that not only was the Judge's chimney thoroughly clean, but it would need about four cart loads of bricks to repair damages. After this the Judge will clean his chimney with a brush tied to a clothes-prop.

Spoiling a Joke.

A college professor, on parting with a student who had called on him, noticed that he had a new coat on him, and remarked that it was too short. The student, with an air of resignation, replied: "It will be long enough before I get another." The professor enjoyed the joke highly, and, going to a meeting of the college faculty just afterwards, entered the room in great glee, and said: "Young Sharp got off such a good joke just now. He called on me a short time ago, and, as he was leaving, I noticed his new coat, and told him it was too short; and he said: "It will be a long time before I get another." No one laughed, and the professor, sobering down, remarked: "It doesn't seems as funny now as when he said it."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion, We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles. *

Opera House.

Leopold and Geraldine are immensely popular at this house, and the new programme is an excellent one. Billy Emerson appears in his best specialties, Linden in burlesque ballads, Harry Sefton in strange terpsichorean performances, Ben Cotton, Billy Arlington and others in the act of "A Big Mistake," "The Conspirators" is a great hit, and as a matter of course the house is crowded every night.

California Theatre.

"No Thoroughfare," with W. J. Florence in the role of Jules Obenreizer, continues to draw splendid houses. The public may be assured that they will not have a better entertainment than this for some time to come, so they had better make the most of it.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Mlle. Blanche in vocal gems, Hughey Robinson in local hits, Miss Maggie Brewer in fancy dances, Miss Fanny Webster in comic songs, and Johnny Tuers, Frank Mortimore and others in acts afford much amusement to all who visit this house.

Mercantile Library Hall.

This evening an exhibition of Risley's Mirror of England, or Views of the River Thames and the City of London, will commence at the above hall. This is not a steroptican show, but an immense panorama painted on canvass by Messrs. P. Phillips, Haghe and Telbin of London. A list of the views appear on our first page. A trip down the Thames from its source to its mouth will make the evening pass very pleasantly. Mr. Risley has met with great success in all parts of the United States. After exhibiting a few nights in San Francisco the panorama will be taken to Australia.

Mechanic's Pavilion.

The Second Infantry, N. G. C., Colonel John McComb commanding, will give a promenade concert at the Pavilion on Friday evening. There will be an inspection and review by Major General D. W. Thompson and staff. There is sure to be a large and fashionable attendance.

Dashaway Hall.

There is an exhibition at this hall at present which is well worth seeing. The spotted boy is by no means repulsive. His flesh is curiously variegated, like the skin of a pinto horse. The white portions are as fair as the skin of a white man, and the spots are chocolate color. The dwarf lady is much more mature than dwarfs generally are, and is as self-possessed as an adult of ordinary size. A boa constrictor, an anaconda, a series of stereoscopic views and several very intelligent monkeys make up a very good show.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attractions at these Gardens are too numerous to mention, and the visitors are in proportion to them, especially on Sunday. The orchestral concerts, by Wetterman's New Grand Orchestra, now given every Sunday, furnish most excellent music, and are a great success. Saturday and Sunday next, second appearance of Mlle. Jeannette Ellsler in her great act on the corde elastique, Gracie and Alvan in their truly great act on the velocipede, of which they have wonderful control, and the New Variety Troupe. Now on exhibition, a living Iguana.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rheinish hock."

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a modle of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

A VAGRANT.

I cannot check my Thought these days,
When incense lingers in the air,
But with unwearied wing it strays,
I know not how or where.

I know not where the blossoms hide
That throw their lures across its flight;
How stars can fling their gates so wide,
To give my Thought delight.

There is no door close barred and sealed
Where cowers suffering or sin,
But will to touch or whisper yield,
And let this vagrant in.

It bears no passport, no parole,
But free, and careless as the air,
My Thought despises all control,
And wanders everywhere.

Its warrant from the Throne of thrones;
Its duty to the King of kings;
Through heights, and depths, and circling zones,
It soars on seraph wings.

What canst thou bring from yon fair height,
What bring me from the deepening sea?
What gather for thy own delight
That is not wealth to me?

—Scribner's Magazine.

Frankness and Reserve.

It is curious with what avidity we form impressions of others; how frequently we treat others coldly by reason of hastily-formed and arbitrary opinions originally conceived of them; how our imperfect knowledge of partial acquaintances causes us often to misunderstand and fail to appreciate them. Primary opinions formed of others are seldom abandoned, never entirely obliterated. Some people always produce a favorable impression; others invariably leave something to be desired in them. The manners of some are easy and affable; they bow courteously, smile pleasantly, speak cheerily; a warmth and glow pervades them, which extends to others, and they throw a life and vigor into their words and acts that never fail to attract. They enter warmly into our projects, speak on topics of interest to us, adapt themselves immediately to every subject of discussion, and render themselves uniformly agreeable. This geniality of manner and bearing renders domestic life enjoyable, and adds zest to every social enjoyment; it makes the household, as well as the ball-room, resound with hearty laughter and enjoyment; makes happy many a home, and fragrant with pleasant memories many an otherwise dreary hour. This spontaneity is found everywhere—among the rich and poor, old and young, thoughtful and otherwise. It creates the urbanity of the statesman, the plausibility of the popular leader, the suavity of the diplomat, the inspiration of the author, and the courtesy of the true gentleman. It is the most positive adornment of domestic life, and surest guarantee of a pleasant home. In women it is most remarkable, rendering their manners charming, their devotions pontaneous, and their conversation rapid, brilliant, and vivacious. It has the most potent influence in rendering them ever welcome and beloved.

Hymen.

Danchet, the French poet, in his Dissertations sur Ceremonies Nuptiales, tells us respecting the deification of Hymen, that he was a young man of Athens, obscurely born, but extremely handsome. Falling in love with a young lady of distinction, he disguised himself in a female habit, in order to get access to her and enjoy the pleasure of her company. As he happened to be one day in this disguise with his mistress and her female companions, celebrating on the sea-shore the rites of Ceres Eleusina, a gang of pirates came upon them by surprise and carried them all off. The pirates, having conveyed them to a distant island got drunk for joy, and fell asleep. Hymen seized his opportunity, armed the virgins, and despatched the pirates; after which, leaving the ladies on the island, he went in haste to Athens, where he told his adventure to all the parents, and demanded her he loved in marriage, as her ransom. His request was granted, and so fortunate was the marriage, that the name of Hymen was ever afterwards invoked on all future nuptials, and in progress of time the Greeks enrolled him among their gods.

The Injured Husband.

The New York World says: The injured husband has just asserted himself in Philadelphia in a peculiar emphatic way. He did it on this occasion with the assistance of the partner of his bosom, who beguiled the family physican into her room to look at some furniture. The physician went in, devoid of guile, and was there "discovered" by the injured husband, who demanded of him a confession of adultery. Of course the physician refused to make the confession, and thereupon the injured husband, "in a state of sudden frenzy, amounting to a complete overthrow of reason," shot off the doctor's knee-pan. We are rather curious to see whether any punishment at all will be awarded to him for this offense. The American juror has done such queer things in his time that it ought not to surprise anybody to hear that he had acquitted this scoundrelly blackmailer, and even passed him a vote of thanks. He has been known to do things in the same direction only a shade less ridiculous. If a man desires to kill or maim his fellow-man with impunity, it is as a rule only necessary for him to allege that the object of his hatred has invaded his domestic peace, and the complaisant juror thereupon fills him out a license to kill. This Philadelphia case is interesting as affording a reductio ad absurdum of the homicidal injured husband, and as showing, in an extreme instance, what manner of man it is who, upon learning that his home has been invaded, and his happiness wrecked, rushes for a pistol and shoots off the patella of his fellow-man.

The Great Scandal.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, writing from New York, says:

"The tactics of Mr. Beecher's clientage—the business men of Plymouth Church—is summed up in two sentences: To wear Tilton out by delays (he is poor and they command wealth), and in the meanwhile hope for full reinstatement of their author and idol, through his incessant activity before the public. In neither of these intentions are they likely to succeed—certainly not in the first. Tilton will be sustained. Frank Moulton stated [at a dinner party, a few evenings since, that this battle would be fought to the death, if it cost him all he had.

Moulton is mad clear through, and the fire of his passion has settled down in steady and persistent, I will not say vindictive, determination.

As for Theodore Tilton himself, he appears to be the serenest one of all who are on his side and working and watching on his behalf. He says himself he has not been in as good health for ten years past as at the present moment, and his interior life is more agreeable and self-poised. As he puts it he has 'burnt all unrest out' of his life."

A Society Wedding.

On a recent Sunday morning, a Sheffield workman, who had just been married in church, was met on his return by about fifty of his fellows, and received at their hands, as a bridal gift a fine leg of mutton. He accepted it with thanks, and soberly walked his way, a fine leg of mutton in his right hand and his blushing bride leaning on his left arm.

Rare Enough.

"Will you have it rare, or well done?" said an English landlord to an Irishman, as he was carving a piece of roast beef. "I love it well done ever since I am in this country—for it was rare enough we used to ate it in Ireland," said Mickey.

The Effect of Diet.

A Dubuque wife cooked a cat for her husband's supper, and that unfortunate man has since been unable to resist a desire to sit on the back-yard fence at night and yowl.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Boss Tweed.

We think the public generally are well pleased that the report that Boss Tweed had escaped, has turned out false. We are, however, doubtful about the newspapers. The falsity of the rumor deprives the proprietors of many columns of first-class sensational matter. The San Jose Mercury had its say before the rumor was contradicted. It remarked:

Of course a great show of pursuit will be made, and he may be recaptured; but the history of some of the transactions of the New York police would seem to indicate that Tweed's money will furnish him immunity from re-arrest, and give him ample opportunity for escape into some foreign clime, where he can spend the people's money more pleasantly than at Blackwell's.

It was a good thing to send Boss Tweed to the penitentiary. It will do him a world of good to serve out his time. When he defied the people of New York by saying "I have robbed you. What are you go ng to do about it," it was not safe for the Courts to let him off. It will not be safe for any Governor to pardon him. It s the fashion to say that "money will do anything in this country," but we hope it will be proved that the millions which Boss Tweed has still at his disposal will not be suffiicient to purchase his liberty, without which, wealth is of little value. As long as Boss Tweed remains in prison, he will be a standing warning to the people of the United States. He is a very useful man n his place, and he is undeniably in the right place at present.

Chips.

A rural paper observed, with great facility of expression: "These moonlight nights! Ah! by how many a vine-embowered gate soft eyes look love to eyes that speak again, and the pressure of a tiny hand in a huge masculine paw wakes to ecstasy the liar.

A young man says the prettiest girl in town wears blue-top stockings, and she is not afraid to show 'em. He saw them hanging on a line in the back yard.

There is a young man in St. Louis who says he wants "reciprocity" with Canada. He is sweet on a girl in Toronto, and she doesn't respond.

A little Danbury darkey refused to go to church "kase he didn't want to look there like a huckleberry in a pan of milk."

Why was Ruth very rude to Boaz? Because she pulled his ears and trod on his corn.

He Weeps.

A Brooklyn poet writes :—

"The public mind is now occasionally alert on the question as to what constitutes Nemesis. A church committee may exonerate; all the old maid sisters of a man may come to his support; the Tammany and the Brooklyn rings may take him under the shelter of their wings: his opponents may appear to be trampled out by the griffin feet of the great congregation. Yea, Shearman may weep.

"Star over Brooklyn Hight,
Far in your crystal deeps
Hide, hide your silver light;
He weeps!
My Shearman weeps –
He weeps."

Real Works of Art.

There is an immense difference between the dolls of twenty years ago, and those of to-day. The ancient doll was a misshapen monster with a dull expressionless face. Feldbusch & Co., No. 308 Battery street, have received for the coming holidays the most beautiful and varied collection of dolls ever seen. There are crying dolls, sleeping dolls, and dolls wide-awake, dolls with hair, and dolls bald-headed, and all as real as life. Toys of every description on hand—to the trade. GOOD GRACIOUS.

The Cincinnati Trade List and Bulletin is a business paper. It has disquisitions on iron, tobacco, salt, sugar, and other commercial commodities. It has occasionally other articles on things not intimately connected with trade, but we never thought it was liberal in its views. The following is wonderful—for a commercial paper :

Will somebody be kind enough to send in answers to these three pertinent questions: First, if a bad man can get a good room at a hotel, why should not just as bad a woman get just as good a room? Second, if either in romance or real life a soiled white dove cannot be allowed to conceal her stains from her cooing mate, why should not the mate have his plumage also searched for similar soilure? Third, if it is so easy to damage a woman's reputation, why should it require more criminality to damage a man's?

It appear to us when a commercial paper begins to ask such questions as these, the world in general must be waking to a knowledge of the fact that there is something rotten in the state of society. There are a good many people who might profitably exercise themselves in thinking over and answering these conundrums.

Nobody's Business.

The New York Mercury says:

It is rather generally proposed in society to go back to old English habits in the matter of feminine social titles. In other words, the designation of "Miss" is exclusively to be applied to boarding-school pupils and young ladies under age, and "Mrs.," the abbreviation of "Mistress," to all women, spinsters as well as wives. This change would be very convenient in some instances, but peculiarly awkward in others. It would destroy at once that easy grace with which a gentleman of good address may now converse with a lady to whom he has just been introduced; for it is a necessity of the case that he must constantly bear in mind what as well as who he is entertaining. To chat with an "ancient maiden" as if she were a connubial partner in some domestic establishment, or, vice versa, endeavor to interest a wife with that which could only be appreciated by ladies to whom Hymen has offensively given the cold shoulder, would never result harmoniously. A good speaker always wants to understand his audience in order to be clearly understood himself. It is bad enough to be in doubt whether your lady auditor is a widow or a wife; but it is still more perplexing to reflect that, possibly, though called "Mrs.," she is neither.

The Mercury is narrow-minded. A gentleman would always address a lady naturally and unaffectedly. It is not necessary that on a woman taking to herself a husband she should have his brand put on her as if she was a cow. Wives are not property in the United States.

Thanksgiving.

The California Farmer thus lifts up its voice in praise:

"There shall be the early and the latter rain."

"There shall be seed time and harvest."

"It shall be a land flowing with milk and honey."

"The hills and mountains are full of gold and silver."—[Scriptures.

The Promised Land! Californians, are we not living in the Promised Land? Are we not enjoying all the promises above named? Are they not fulfilled to us? If so, are we as grateful as we should be?

The Fashion in Nevada City.

The Transcript says :

A young man (the divulgence of whose name would be cruelty to animals) called upon the object of his adoration the other night, and notwithstanding the muddy condition of the streets, made his appearance in the parlor in brilliantly shining boots. He accomplished this pedal feat by carrying his boots and stockings under his arm and going barefooted,

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion, We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

A delicous table delicacy. They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are as superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. Made fresh every morning at Bunker's Stall, 74 and 75 California Market, California street entrance. Try them. 9-B

The original "Swain's Bakery" is now established in their magnificent new place at 213 Sutter street near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business. P

PEACE IS DECLARED in all families who buy their

French Laws.

The laws in Paris almost compel honesty in many branches of business, where fraud is not readily detected by the casual purchaser. A jeweler who sells plated or washed articles, even though he may sell gold and silver goods of the standard quality, is obliged to place the word "imitation" where it can be plainly seen by customers, so that they can be on their guard. If a grocer is detected in selling adulterated articles, he is heavily fined, his name and place of business is published at his expense in the official journal, and he is compelled to expose in his store for a specified time a placard stating that he has been fined for selling adulterated goods. But few are willing to run such risks, as detection is sure death to a further prosecution of business. The kinds and quantities of coloring matter used in the manufacture of confectionery are prescribed by ordinance, upon recommendation of the Academy of Science. The law also regulates the price of work in many branches of business, and it is not always indispensable, as here, to make a close bargain in advance. If I have gas or water put into a house, have rooms painted or papered, and even have a house built, and fancy that the bills are exorbitant, I can send them to a sworn officer, who makes them conform to law; and with the award the artisan is obliged to be content.

Whitney in New York.

The New York Mercury says :

We had a call last week from Mr. F. E. R. Whitney, the organizer of the paid fire department of San Francisco, who visited this city in an official capacity. We are gratified to learn from Mr. Whitney the successful working of, and general confidence in, the present fire department of that city. He informs us that at no time in the history of San Francisco were so many buildings in process of erection, or labor in so great a demand. General prosperity is predominant on the Pacific coast.

Can, or Does, Sell, in spite of a legion of long-tailed Celestials and their white friends, PURE HAVANA CIGARS FOR FIVE CENTS APIECE, or THIRTY DOLLARS PER THOUSAND. They are called

Los Brilliantes,

And, judging by the daily increasing demand for them, they will in time outsell any other brands of cigars. Competition, of course, will do all it can to retard and stop their sale, and therefore we would earnestly request the generous public to see for itself and first give them a fair trial, ere condemning them. A meritorious article may be cheap as well, and our maxim has been and always will be, to sell a first-rate article at the lowest PRICE POSSIBLE. Those cigars as well as our celebrated RUSSIAN CIGARITOS are sold in all the principal cigar stores in this city and adjoining towns, or the factory, 408 WASHINGTON STREET, CORNER BATTERY.

Trade  Mark.

Look for above trade mark, when you buy and beware of imitations.

N. B. For a smoker, as a holiday gift, you could hardly select anything more suitable and acceptable than our CIGARS and RUSSIAN CIGARITOS, especially our LA MOSCOVITAS manufactured of Turkish tobacco worth $5 per pound. The finest Cigaritos in Market, sold at the factory for $20 per thousand.

Amusements, Etc.

California Theatre.

"No Thoroughfare" will be performed to-night and to-morrow night for the last times. Every theatre-goer who has not seen this play should not neglect doing so, as it is one of the best, and best sustained dramas, that has been produced on the stage of this theatre for many months. "Dombey and Son" will be performed at the matinee to-morrow. On Monday "Eileen Oge" will be produced.

Opera House.

The admirable performances given at the Opera House are drawing crowded and overflowing houses every night, and have been doing it for months. In existing state of business persons who intend taking ladies there had better secure their seats in advance, and not take the chances of getting them after arriving at the theatre, as there is no extra charge for reserved seats. It is rather annoying to take "your Sweetness" there, as Billy Emerson says, and be forced to occupy a back seat or stool, and see Bob Precaution, Bill Forethought and their dulcinas occupying comfortable reserved seats in front.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

"The Mysterious Restaurant," "The Japanese Dwarf," "Captain Blowhard's Troubles," a Minstrel first part, and a great variety of songs, dances and interlude business, constitute the bill at this popular variety theatre for to-night and to-morrow night. Charley Nickerson is now a member of this company.

Mercantile Library Hall.

There was a large attendance at this house, last night, when Risley's "Mirror of England," consisting of views on the River Thames was exhibited for the first time in California. We have no hesitation in pronouncing this by far the best Panorama ever exhibited here. The names of the artists who painted it—Phillips, Haghe and Telbin, is a guarantee of this. The entertainment is a perfectly delightful one. The spectator can scarcely help imagining himself floating down the Thames enjoying the beautiful scenery on the banks. Every view is a picture worthy of being framed. Mr. Risley made a few remarks on the pictures that called for them. An excellent programme of English airs was performed by a pianist and violinist, and from the beginning of the entertainment until its close, the attention of everyone was held enchained. The "Mirror of England" will be exhibited again this evening and should certainly draw a large attendance.

Mechanics' Pavilion.

The Second Infantry, N. G. C., Colonel John McComb commanding, will give a promenade concert at the Pavilion this evening. There will be an inspection and review by Major General D. W. Thompson and staff. There is sure to be a large and fashionable attendance. King Kalakaua and suite will be present at the review, and will participate in the dance which is to follow.

Dashaway Hall.

There is an exhibition at this hall at present which is well worth seeing. The spotted boy is by no means repulsive. His flesh is curiously variegated, like the skin of a pinto horse. The white portions are as fair as the skin of a white man, and the spots are chocolate color. The dwarf lady is much more mature than dwarfs generally are, and is as self-possessed as an adult of ordinary size. A boa constrictor, an anaconda, a series of stereoscopic views and several very intelligent monkeys make up a very good show.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attractions at these Gardens are too numerous to mention, and the visitors are in proportion to them, especially on Sunday. The orchestral concerts, by Wetterman's New Grand Orchestra, now given every Sunday, furnish most excellent music, and are a great success. Saturday and Sunday next, second appearance of Mlle. Jeannette Ellsler in her great act on the corde elastique, Gracie and Alvan in their truly great act on the velocipede, of which they have wonderful control, and the New Variety Troupe. Now on exhibition, a living Iguana.

Benefit.

Miss Sydney Cowell, the popular soubrette, and George Giddens, the clever comedian, of Maguire's New Theatre, will have a benefit at this theatre, on Saturday, Dec. 12th. A great bill is being prepared for this occasion.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P. M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. Reference given if required. H

RESIGNATION.

Let nothing make thee sad or fretful,
Or too regretful;
Be still—
What God hath ordered must be right,
Then find in it thine own delight,
My will.

Why shouldst thou fill to-day with sorrow
About to-morrow,
My heart?
One watches all with care most true,
Doubt not that He will give thee, too,
Thy part.

Only be steadfast, never waver,
Nor seek earth's favor,
But rest,
Thou knowest what God wills must be,
For all His creatures, so for thee,
The best.

—Paul Fleming (1609-1610.)

Boucicault's "Shaughraun."

The Mercury, speaking of Boucicault's latest dramatic effort, says:

In the most complete sense of the word Boucicault's "Shaughraun," at Wallack's has achieved a permanent success. At eight o'clock, during the evenings of the past week, tardy visitors were greeted at the entrance by the novel announcement, "No more money taken;" and those who had not secured seats at least one week in advance were obliged to content themselves with a perpendicular view. The play is exactly suited to an American audience, and indicates that the author has carefully borne this fact in his mind. It is incisively sharp and witty in text, rapid and varying in action, is well acted, handsomely mounted, and the story is simple and intensely interesting. There a few scenes and situations which have been seen before, although admirably disguised by the genius of Boucicault. For instance, the Shaughran's horse story in the first act recalls Lady Gay Spanker's exploit; the moving gate tower, a similar scenic effect in "The Soldier of Fortune;" the "Irish Wake" suggests "Bryan O'Linn," and the barrel business in the last act will be recognized as belonging to the pantomime family of stage tricks. There are also several notable incongruities of costume, speech, and action manifest. For instance, young Irish ladies in reduced circumstances do not wander about on all occasions in costly white evening dresses, nor are British infantry captains sufficiently accommodating to assist in the work of a dairy-maid, especially when on duty. Miss Ada Dyas, who has proved one of the most versatile and artistic actresses on the current stage, should abandon the use of the brogue in the early scenes, as in subsequent acts she enunciates very poor English. These and other apparent trifles can be easily remedied, although they will perhaps be credited to customary dramatic license. On the whole the "Shaughraun" is the best of modern Irish dramas and will be continued indefinitely.

Died for Love.

Recently there was picked up out of the Seine a woman of such surpassing beauty that crowds flocked to see her body at the Morgue, and photographs of her were scattered broadcast over Paris. The lovely unknown proves to have been an Italian, by name Lucretia Balbi, who earned her living as a model. Among the painters for whom she had sat was Henry Regnault, and for him the poor girl conceived the most ardent passion. "She never told her love," and he never suspected it; but from the day of his death, two years ago, she began to pine away in the deepest melancholy. Her character was stainless, and her deep sense of religion caused her long to hesitate at suicide; but at length her mind seems to have given way. She left a letter addressed to her brother, who also is a model. It is a very sad story, but there are no bad features in the case. What a wonderful thing love is, even in these prosaic days!

A New York Specimen.

The Dispatch says: He is a young man of gallant appearance. He has lived in New York all his life, and New York is proud of him. He wears his best suit every day, and picks his teeth with a quill. He stands on the corner of Grand street and the Bowery, and admires the girls as they pass. He comes of a noble family. His mother goes out scrubbing, and he doesn't recognize her when he meets her in the street. He is a great admirer of the fair sex, and he knows that they admire him. He heard a young lady remark the other evening to a companion: "Isn't he a nice looking fellow? He looks like one of the figures that they have in cosmetic shop windows. He's got an expression on his face that makes me always think he's been swallowing a bottle of hair oil, and is admiring the improvement it makes on his breath. Don't you think he's splendid?" And now he always turns away his head when that young lady heaves in sight, and his face turns nearly as red as his necktie. He's one of those sensitive souls that shrink from flattery.

A Truthful Man.

How beautiful, how noble is the poet's art when used to soothe the mourning heart! One of the sweetest and tenderest specimens of elegiac verse has been composed by an English gentleman who accidentally got the remains of his four wives somewhat mixed during their removal to a new burial ground. He was determined, was Mr. Sparks, that there should be no mistake as to the various Mrs. Sparkses' last abode; and accordingly claimed his wounded spirit and displayed strict truthfulness by the composition of the following beautiful inscription: "Here lies Jane (and probably part of Susan) Sparks." "Sacred to the memory of Maria (to say nothing of Jane and Hannah) Sparks." "Stranger, pause and drop a tear, for Susan Sparks lies buried here; mingled in some perplexing manner, with Jane, Maria, and portions of Hannah."

Two "Sporting Men."

A couple of gentleman were talking in Slinkey's bar-room, the other day. One of them was a horseman. The other wasn't. The horseman remarked: "There's nothing I like so much as four-in-hand." "That's me," said his companion; "I always feel bully when I've four in hand." "Why," said the first, "I never knew that you took much to horses." "Neither I do. It's four aces I like to have in hand." Nothing more was said; but the horseman walked over to the bar and ordered two hot whiskies.

A New Definition.

A man called upon a lawyer the other day and began to state his case in rather an abrupt manner. "Sir, I have come to you for advice; I'm a husband-in-law!" "A what?" spoke out the learned counsel. "Husband-in-law, sir!" "I have never seen that defined in domestic relations." "Don't you know what a husband-in-law is? Sir, you're no lawyer; you're an ignoramus! I am a husband-in-law, but not in fact, sir—my wife's run off."

A Safe Assertion.

A Georgetown man advertises concerning his runaway wife, that "As I never pay my own debts it is reasonable to suppose that I shall not pay hers."

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-y

The California, the Union, the Pacific and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, a very good substitue. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a modle of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. X

WALLA WALLA, W. T.—Mrs. A. J. Dunlway (some of her hearers spell it Drone-away) recently bored the people of Walla Walla with a lecture, in which there was nothing particular about anything.

PORTLAND.—At Oro Fino Theatre, under the management of Mrs. Fanny Morgan Phelps, J. H. Be Roy, stage manager, the latter's dramatization of Mark Twain's "Gilded Age," was in preparation, also a localized adaptation entitled "The Crusaders." Mr. Le Roy will have Mark down on him for an infringment of his copyright. The Oregonian says: Amidst the crash of saws and the ring of hammers the work in Ankeny's Hall progresses rapidly. The stage is erected and the proscenium and gallery are being put up as fast as a dozen or more carpenters can do so. The house will be crowded through as expeditiously as possible, and the intention is to have the large and elegant hall finished and ready to throw open to the public by the 1st of January.

Real Works of Art.

There is an immense difference between the dolls of twenty years ago, and those of to-day. The ancient doll was a misshapen monster with a dull expressionless face. FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

"Le Demi Monde," by Dumas, is delighting the frequenters of the Theatre Francais, Paris, once more, after an absence from the stage of over twenty years. It is a horribly immoral play, the weakest part of which is the virtue of the virtuous people introduced. Rose Cheri used to be great as the Baronne d'Ange, but she has gone where the cherubs dwell, and the Baronne of to-day is Mlle. Croixette. She is essentially an emotional actress. Her attitudes are bad, and she declaims like a school-girl; only when she's excited she forgets herself, magnetizes the audiences, and does what Clara Morris does, surprises them into enthusiastic applause.

Miss Emma Howson has been engaged for five years by Zionelli, the introducer to the opera-going public of Campanini and Albani. At the close of her studies under Lamperti she will appear at Malta in Italian prima donna roles. She will then appear, under his direction, in London and Paris.

Napoleon III., like his uncle, had very little taste for music. One day he said, with a smile, that the only melody he had ever written down was one his mother had sung from an Italian opera, "Gli Aribinelle Gallie," and the first words were "Diquelle trombe al suono." What the Emperor said was repeated to Colonel Ragani, uncle of Giulia Grisi, and at that period manager of the Italian opera, Paris. The Colonel wrote to Pacini, then at Lucca, asking him to come to Paris and bring out his "Arabinelle Gallie." Pacini took good care not to say no. He interpolated some fresh pieces in the opera and conducted the rehearsals. The Emperor went to the first performance. When the tenor, Beaucarde began the famous air, the Emperor displayed some slight emotion, but soon subsided into his usual apathy. "Gli Arabinnelle Gallie," ran only two nights in Paris. Pacini returned to Italy.

The London Figaro of Nov. 4 comments as follows upon the culpable action of those in charge of the sale of seats for the Mark Smith memorial. "A low depth of theatrical morality is reached when a benefit for the family of a deceased actor is allowed to put money into the hands of those members of the committe who have charge of the seats. This degradation has been attained over the Mark Smith benefit at Booth's; for it seems that certain benevolent committee men either placed the bulk of the choice seats in the hands of the ticket speculators, or allowed the control of them to fall into their hands, in advance of the regular sale at the box offices of the theatres where the performances were given, and applicants for tickets were compelled to pay to these cormorants double the money legitimately due for a seat. Of course the hundred per cent. did not get into the hands of the Smith family, and it is equally certain that the ticket speculators were not allowed to stick to the whole of it. This is a veritable scraping of dead men's bones."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion, We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-y

Can, or Does, Sell, in spite of a legion of long-tailed Celestials and their white friends, PURE HAVANA CIGARS FOR FIVE CENTS APIECE, or THIRTY DOLLARS PER THOUSAND. They are called

Los Brilliantes,

And, judging by the daily increasing demand for them, they will in time outsell any other brands of cigars. Competition, of course, will do all it can to retard and stop their sale, and therefore we would earnestly request the generous public to see for itself and first give them a fair trial, ere condemning them. A meritorious article may be cheap as well, and our maxim has been and always will be, to sell a first-rate article at the lowest PRICE POSSIBLE. Those cigars as well as our celebrated RUSSIAN CIGARITOS are sold in all the principal cigar stores in this city and adjoining towns, or the factory, 408 WASHINGTON STREET, CORNER BATTERY.

Look for above trade mark, when you buy and beware of imitations.

N. B. For a smoker, as a holiday gift, you could hardly select anything more suitable and acceptable than our CIGARS and RUSSIAN CIGARITOS, especially our LA MOSCOVITAS manufactured of Turkish tobacco worth $5 per pound. The finest Cigaritos in Market, sold at the factory for $30 per thousand.

Amusements, Etc.

OPERA HOUSE.—The record of this house remains unchanged. It is crowded every night. As long as the company is as excellent as it is at present and as good a programme is performed, this must continue to be the case. J. R. Kemble, the stage manager, is decidedly the right man in the right place, and displays all the talent of the company to the best possible advantage. At the matinee to-day, to-night and to-morrow night, Billy Emerson the inimitable, will appear in the first part, in "Othello," and in his original portraitures, Ben Cotton, Billy Arlington and others in "A Big Mistake," Linden in his burlesque ballads, Harry Sefton in his specialties, the best vocal talent in "The Conspirators" and the attractive and daring Leopold and Geraldine in their wonderful performance on the trapeze.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—W. J. Florence in the role of Jules Obenreizer in "No Thoroughfare," has been thoroughly appreciated by the public of San Francisco. This is proved by the large attendance on every night since the piece was put on the stage. It will be played this evening for the last time. "Dombey and Son" will be performed at the matinee this afternoon. Next week will be devoted to Irish plays. Those who have not yet seen Mr. Florence's wonderfully vivid impersonation of the Swiss, should avail themselves of one or the other opportunities remaining.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—Charley Nickerson, a great favorite with the public, has been added to the company at this house. Johnny Tuers appears in some of his best acts. "Captain Blowhard's Troubles," terminates the evening's amusement.

COSMOPOLITAN BAL MASQUE.—The second of these balls is announced for Christmas Eve (Dec. 24th), at Horticultural Hall. All the best features of the last one will be retained, the Clodoch dances, the special French "choral" quadrilles, etc. In addition, 40 young ladies will give a grand "Marche des Amazones Californiennes" dressed in glittering plated armour, and led by a lady of surpassing beauty. There will also be French comic quadrilles by ladies only, a superior band, and all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of both masquers and spectators. Tickets will be the same price as before.

MERCANTILE LIBRARY HALL.—The short season of the exhibition of "Risley's Panorama of England," in this city, cannot fail to be a success. The people of San Francisco can appreciate true merit and the work of such artistes as Phillips and Telbin must be enjoyed by all who see them. The light and shade effects are admirably managed, and there is an air of reality about the beautiful scenes which pass slowly before the eyes of the spectators that renders it very easy to imagine oneself taking a trip down the River Thames from its source to its mouth. To those who wish an evening of quiet enjoyment, we can recommend this exhibition most highly.

DASHAWAY HALL.—The Spotted Boy.—There is an exhibition at this hall at present which is well worth seeing. The spotted boy is by no means repulsive. His flesh is curiously variegated, like the skin of a pinto horse. The white portions are as fair as the skin of a white man, and the spots are chocolate color. The dwarf lady is much more mature than dwarfs generally are, and is as self-possessed as an adult of ordinary size. A boa constrictor, an ass scouda, a series of stereoscopic views and several very intelligent monkeys make up a very good show.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS. — NOVELTIES. The attractions at these Gardens are too numerous to mention, and the visitors are in proportion to them, especially on Sunday. The orchestral concerts, by Wetterman's New Grand Orchestra, now given every Sunday, furnish most excellent music, and are a great success. Saturday and Sunday next, second appearance of Mlle. Jeannette Ellsler in her great act on the corde elastique, Gracie and Alvan in their truly great act on the velocipede, of which they have wonderful control, and the New Variety Troupe. Now on exhibition, a living Iguana.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining-rooms. Guido Mangenberg, the proprietor, gets up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

A SPLENDID COLLECTION OF PICTURES.—William Keith's entire collection of paintings and studies from nature, virtually illustrating California from "the Sierra to the Sea," will be open to public inspection at H. M. Newhall & Co's Rooms, Monday 7th, to Friday the 11th inst. On Wednesday and Thursday evenings they can be inspected by gaslight. The series numbers 100 works ranging from small cabinets to large gallery works. All are remarkable for almost a scientific fidelity to nature combined with truest artistic feeling. Mr. Keith's versatility is shown in the wide range of subjects; hardly any part of California, best known for the grandeur or beauty of its scenery, but has been depicted. There are fine views also in Utah, and from parts of New England. Mrs. Keith contributes some fine flower and fruit pieces.

NOTES.—On Friday next W. J. Florence whose remarkably fine acting in the role of Jules Obenreizer has gained for him the admiration of the entire public of San Francisco, will be tendered a farewell benefit, and those who have the matter in hand are determined that it shall be a bumper.

On Monday, "Eileen Oge" will be presented at the California Theatre.

The review and inspection of the Second Regiment, N. G. C., Col. McComb commanding, took place at the Mechanics' Pavilion last night in the presence of His Majesty, King Kalakaua, the Japanese Ambassador, and other dignitaries. The regiment performed many evolutions in perfect style, and received much applause. The whole affair formed a fitting wind-up to the visit of King Kalakaua.

The telegraph informs us that virtuous New York will take in sensational preachers and operatic choirs. The churches run a heavy opposition to the theatres. It is mean of them to call in the law to protect them in their business.

There is a letter for Mr. Frank Rea, at this office.

The work on which M. Strauss, the scenic artist of Maguire's New Theatre, is to display his skill in producing a spectacle for the Christmas holidays is the popular opera of "The Enchantress." This affords much opportunity for scenic display and will afford the public a rich musical treat.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, Dion Boucicault's new Irish drama of "The Shaughraun" has made a genuine hit at Wallack's, and the critics generally pronounce it the best, by far, of its author's recent productions. The Tribune declares that "it possesses the dramatic principle to a degree that has few precedents in Mr. Boucicault's extraordinary career as an intellectual worker. The golden hours of "The Octoroon" and "The Long Strike" have come again in this." The World gives it even higher rank. The critic of that journal says: "It is ten years since Boucicault's "Arrah Na Pogue" became popular. This was his last Irish piece, because "Kerry" proved to be an interlude of his relaxation, and "Daddy O'Dowd" only a bit of dashed off spontaneity. But with "The Shaughraun" he crowned his pyramid of Irish plays, whereof the "Arrah" and the "Colleen Bawn" were twin top-stones." The Times says it is "one of the best plays produced on any stage in many seasons." The play is unusually rich in scenic effects and the thirteen scenes of the three acts are said to afford the public an interesting gallery of landscapes and interiors. The cast at Wallack's included Dion Boucicault (in the title role), H. J. Montague, John Gilbert, Harry Beckett, J. B. Polk, Miss Jeffreys Lewis, Ada Dyas, Ione Burke, and Madame Ponisi, and the piece is expected to run until New Year's.

.....M. Paul Feval's new play, which George Fawcett Rowe is now adapting for the English stage, will be produced at Booth's Theatre, New York, December 14. Miss Carlotta LeClercq and Mr. Henri Stuart, an Anglo-French actor, are in the cast.....At Fifth Avenue Theatre, the latest event was the revival of Boucicault's dramatization of "The Heart of Midlothian." It proved quite a success.....Miss Charlotte Thompson has made a great hit in "Jane Eyre," at Union Square Theatre.....

"La Fille de Madame Angot" by the Soldene Troupe, was drawing well at the Lyceum.....At the Park Theatre. "The Gilded Age" is running as well as ever.....At Booth's Theatre, Jefferson was followed on the 30th ult. by J. S. Clarke, who made such a success in London.....At the Grand Opera House, a revival of "The Black Crook," with Mlles Bonfanti and Lapo, among the leading dancers promised to fill the house until after the holidays.....At the Metropolitan Theatre, Sola, the gymnast, was the reigning attraction.....At Bryant's Opera House, there was no particular change in the programme .....At Wood's Museum, "Round the Clock" was running, and Joe Coburn and the "Unknown" appeared in sparring exhibitions.....At the Olympic Poole's new burlesque entitled "The Black and Tan Crook" and Sol. Smith Russell's "Woman's Rights in 1874," were among the attractions.....Miss Charlotte Stanley was performing in the play of "Crime" at the Bowery.....At the Globe, Mrs. Joseph Lloyd Haigh, formerly (Miss Jennie Hughes,) appeared on the 30th ult.....The San Francisco Minstrels were doing their usual business. "The Innocent Minstrels" was the latest novelty.....Maccabe is at Robinson Hall in his entertainment entitled "Begone Dull Care".....At the Theatre Comique, Manager Josh Hart is doing well with Jolly Nash, and the play of "The Ticket of Leave Man."

Miss Carlotta LeClercq opened at the Park Theatre, Brooklyn, on the 30th.

J. L. Toole and troupe played in Cincinnati, Chicago, 30th.

The Majiltons opened in St. Louis, Dec. 1st.

Miss Nelly Houghton appeared at Wood's Museum, Philadelphia, in a new version of "Jane Eyre."

Joe Murphy opens in Boston on December 7th.

Olive Logan has at last consented to see the wisdom of the critics in advising her to leave the stage. She leaves it at an early date—for good, of course.

Mr. John A. Mack and Mr. J. J. McClosky have just concluded a very fine dramatic adaptation of "The Talisman," which will shortly be produced in one of the New York City theatres.

Herne's "Chilperic," in English, will shortly be produced by the Soldene Troupe at the Lyceum Theatre, N. Y. city.

Miss Carlotta LeClercq has appeared as Mary Warner at the Arch-Street Theatre, Philadelphia.

Lawrence Barrett, Pittsburg, 23d ult.

Miss Jane Coombs, Buffalo, 23d ult.

J. K. Emmett, Pittsburg, 23d ult.

Edwin Adams, Buffalo, 30th ult.

The N. Y. Mercury says: Fay Templeton, the young, beautiful and talented actress, appropriately called the fairy star, after a career of success in the South, is advertised to appear at Niblo's Garden on the 24th. She will be assisted by Alice Vane, John Templeton and Isabel Vane.

Miss Belle Howitt has been expressly engaged at Wood's Museum, N. Y. city, to play the part in Daly's "Round the Clock" originally acted by Mrs. John Wood.

Alfred Joel, Janauschek's business manager, arrived in New York 21st ult., and reports business as very large with the company.

Matt Morgan is engaged with Voegtlin in painting the scenery of the new spectacular piece of Paul Feval and George Fawcett Rowe, to be produced at Booth's on December 12.

Miss Helen M. Houghton, a young and talented aspirant for histrionic fame, recently made a most successful debut at the Arch, Philadelphia. Her remarkable ability and promise induced Col. Wood to secure her for eight performances, beginning on the 30th. Miss Houghton appeared in her own copyrighted version of "Jane Eyre," and in whi h she assumed the leading role. This lady is described by the Philadelphia press as remarkably beautiful, highly educated, and possessing almost irresistible magnetism.

Miss Adelaide Miller, a talented, young, and handsome cantatrice, has confirmed the enthusiastic verdict which greeted her recent vocal efforts in Brooklyn. She appeared at the Buffalo Adelphi during the past week as Zerlina in the travestie of "Fra Diavolo," and won immediate favor. Her vocalization is pure and artistic, and displays excellent culture. A Buffalo contemporary says: "Miss Adelaide Miller is one of the most charming vocalists heard on the burlesque stage. Her songs are encored ad lib, and the magnificence of her wardrobe is beyond compare."

Fox's New American Theatre. Fox, has advertised a "Hurricane of Novelties," a "Boiling Cataract of Talent," a "Positive Avalanche of Beauties," prior to the production of the "Black Crook" next week. The new comers were the Jackley Family of gymnasts, the Praeger Family of Tyroleans and cat duettists, and the popular Charlotte M. Stanley in her exciting dramas of "A Fight for Life" and "Crime." Business very good.

John S Clarke, the comedian, has given $1000 to the Centennial Committee. So he may be considered "Everybody's Friend," in Philadelphia.

The New York Mercury says: Managers Shook & Palmer insert an advertisement in the amusement columns of the Mercury which demands the attention through the country as the "Union-Square Theatre Company." It is very unwise for traveling companies to adopt the titles of leading New York Theatres without first obtaining the requisite permission. The questionable character of such a proceeding is apparent, and results injuriously to all parties. The genuine Union-square company, with Miss Charlotte Thompson, recently made a tour of New England, and experienced the disadvantages arising from having been preceded by spurious organizations. It should be borne in mind by traveling companies that the public will not countenance such attempted deceptions.

A New York paper makes the following impertinent remarks about a matter which is none of its business:

The following is a copy of a letter alleged to have been sent by Miss Charlotte Cushman to a gentleman of this city: "NEW YORK, Oct. 24, 1874.—Dear Sir:—I am in receipt of your note of the 14th, which absence from town has prevented my seeing sooner. In answer to your inquiries, I can only say that I am acting a series of engagements in various places, which will probably be the last of my dramatic performances; but with regard to the place where I shall take my farewell benefit of the stage, or whether I shall ever take any formal farewell anywhere, it is impossible for me to say. Yours truly, CHARLOTTE CUSHMAN." The above looks very much like a hoax, as it is scarcely possible to believe that Miss Cushman would indulge in her present perambulating farewell benefits unless she were in earnest. The public have been very kind to her, and scarcely merit such a return. It will be humiliating to the entire profession if the second series of farewell benefits should prove to be only an advertisement. This lady should be satisfied with the financial results of her second term of farewells. Third terms have recently become very unpopular.

The New York Dispatch says: The dramatic event of the holiday season will unquestionably be the debut in America of Mrs. Rousby. This artist, whose rare talent and beauty have caused her performances to be the most attractive given in the United Kingdom during the past five years, sails for the United States next week, and is to make her first appearance in this city January 4th. We have not been particularly well-favored in point of sensations this year and Mrs. Rousby's introduction, which promises to be fraught with pleasant results, is the more welcome on this account. When a lady wins so liberal a measure of admiration and critical approval as Mrs. Rousby once commanded, and when, better than all, she retains her hold upon a public as she has done to this day, one can be sure that the charm and power which can alone secure such results are of no ordinary kind.

When the Shaughraun shoots the villian Kinchella in Boucicault's play a pocket-book which he carries in his breast pocket is supposed to save his life. When this bit of business occurred on the first night Boucicault rummaged in vain for the saving book. "Where's the book?" he asked in no gentle voice. "It's in my back pocket," whispered the prostrate Kinchella. And to get at it the Shaughraun was obliged to roll him over on the stage. History relates that the Shaughraun muttered between his teeth, "It's a mighty quare place yiv got your heart Mr. Kinchella."

Miss Bessie Darling is starring in a play called "Her Face is her Fortune." If this is so, it is hardly complimentary to her acting.

The Gotham correspondent of the St. Louis Republican calls Charles Fisher the greatest Triplet in the profession. She says further: "That dear old, sweet-faced, child-like man, his own silver locks floating about the massive, artistic head,—the tears in his sympathetic voice call out others in every eye that looks upon the touching picture. Fisher plays the violin beautifully, and thus adds another great charm to his portraiture." And speaking generally of the performance of "Masks and Faces" at the Fifth-Avenue Theatre, she adds: "Certainly no more fitting person than that of Davenport's could be found for Peg. She costumed the part most gorgeously and played it to the satisfaction of a large audience. Mabel Vane brought back to the stage after seven years' absence the pretty face of Mrs. J. H. Allen. Time deals with tender hand in some cases and Mrs. Allen's is one of them.

One of John T. Raymond's critics says: "He has by his impersonation of the quaint and speculative Colonel Sellers literally emblazoned his name in theatrical history, and won at a bound, as it were, a name second to none in the list of contemporaneous comedians."

Criticism on a Shakspearian tragedy, from the Youngstown (O.) Tribune: "There is a vein of sadness running through the play of Romeo and Juliet scarcely relieved by the liveliness of Mercutio and the oddity of the old Nurse. Add to this the numerous murders scattered through the piece, particularly the sanguinary closing, and we are feign to confess that we prefer Cal Wagner."

Talent is rewarded at Worcester, Mass. The Spy says: "Mr. Emmanuel Crupi, pupil of Mr. Benjamin T. Hammond, who made such a hit at the musical festival, has opened a snug little barber shop in the Central Exchange Building."

Talmage, the Brooklyn preacher, has, as every one knows, been making himself ridiculous in his pulpit, by random, false and senseless attacks on the stage and the profession. Miss Clara Morris, in a letter to one of the papers, answers him. He had said that he knew a young man who had attended the play of "Macbeth" thirty nights, and who had given up church attendance, the Bible and prayer. The lady asks where on earth "Macbeth" was played thirty nights, and requests the young man's name and address. She wants to interview him for facts.

Mr. Augustin Daly has organized a mammoth matinee benefit at the Academy of Music for the Catholic Orphan Asylum fund. All the leading local places of amusement contributed volunteers, and the affair proved a grand financial success.

J. Steele Mackaye in a lecture, Pittsburgh, Dec. 1

The Washington Critic of the 14th ult. says:

A very enthusiastic audience greeted Mr. John Lawrence Toole on the occasion of his benefit last evening at Ford's Opera House, in "Dearer than Life," his burlesque lecture upon "China, Astronomy and the Drama," and the sketch entitled "Artful Dodger." In "Dearer than Life," Mr. Toole did full justice to the sentiments of this really beautiful play, and received much and well deserved applause. His humorous lecture and the "Artful Dodger" concluded one of the best and most enjoyable entertainments of the season. This afternoon, at 2 o'clock, there will be a grand matinee at the Opera House for the ladies and little ones, when "Uncle Dick's Darling" will be played for the last time, and this evening Mr. Toole will bid farewell to his many friends in this city.

We think Mr. Toole will meet with greater success everywhere than he did in New York.

The California, the Union, the Pacific and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, a very good substitue. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody

Pioneers of Civilization.

A friend of mine, who has resided in most of the Polynesian Islands, informs me that on the occasion he landed on a Pacific island, the only white inhabitants of which were two Liverpool sailors, once shipmates, but now mortal enemies, and each of whom had his faction at daggers drawn with the other. During their stay, the chief object of either was to solemnly warn the sailors against having anything to do with the other, each of them accusing his quondam friend of being lost to all respect and honesty, even so far as these virtues go in Polynesia. They left them at the head of their rival factions, and as ships seldom touch at that particular islet, they may possibly be there still. On another occasion, my friend found a petty native king who had two New York "Bowery boys" as chief advisers and ministers. His majesty had certainly profited by their intercourse, but in a peculiar way. His English was limited, but choice. After hailing his visitor with a cheery "How goes it, old hoss!" he anxiously inquired if he was "the bully boy with the glass eye," and finding that he was not that eminent personage, as a dernier resort he interrogated him as to the fact of his "killing Keyser," and whether he "run with the machine;" the Polynesian potentate, under the tuition of his scapegrace companions, evidently considering that the pursuits indicated by the New York slang phrases mentioned were the highest honors which a gentleman with a brass-buttoned coat and a pale face could attain to.—Cassell's The Races of Mankind.

Love in Sweden.

Courtship and marriage in Sweden are peculiar institutions. Da Chaillu says:

"I once saw a match made. He met her at the gate and poked his fingers in her ribs, and said, 'I want to get married don't you?' 'Oh, I don't know. Go away.' 'Yes you do; let's get married.' 'Well, ask pa. 'No; never mind him, we'll get married anyhow.' And he went about telling everybody he saw, 'I am going to marry that girl.' The preparations continued during the three weeks required by law to have the bans published in the churches. Fishes were caught, stores for the feast laid in, beer brewed, and whisky purchased. Wedding jolifications are indulged in for a week. This couple were married. They went from the church to the house, and the bridesmaid locked the bride in her room. The groom knocked at the door. 'How much will you give to come in?' "Two cows and five dollars.' 'That's not enough.' 'Three cows and ten dollars.' 'Oh, you are rich; you must give more than that.'

Five cows and twenty-five dollars was the final offer which was accepted.

A Hit.

The shrewdest and best business men always advertise in dull times, because when money is close and people are forced to economise, they always read the advertisements to see who sells the cheapest, and where they can trade to the best advantage.

A Lovely Sight.

There was something lovely about them, even in death. It was on a Kansas prairie, and they lay side by side. Tom's thumb in Jack's left eye, and Jack's revolver pushed into Tom's right ear. They had fit it out.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

"OUR DYSPEPTIC FRIEND."

Under the above title appears an article in the Bohemian, evidently written by some healthy brute whose nerves are catgut and incapable of sensation:

Some men have a mania for doing the invalid style. Our friend Tompkins is one of this class. Concealed about his person may be found pill boxes of various sizes. These contain every variety of medicine that bears directly or indirectly on dyspepsia. The pepsine extracted from the confiding cow, or rampant hog, the deadly morphine, the genial ginger, and the omnipotent soda, play a prominent part in making up his portable medicine chest. Last week Tompkins was persuaded by a bibulous friend that Sazarac brandy was a certain cure for his painful affliction. For years Tompkins had not tasted spirituous liquors. Here was a chance to indulge without any conscentious scruples. "Taken medicinaly, my dear boy." T—— succeeded in getting very drunk, but still the demon of dyspepsia preyed upon his vitals. With a perserverance worthy of a better and nobler cause, he still stuck to Sazarac. He had to give it up, and now indulges in ginger ale only. He may possibly be ill, for he does look a little puffy and pastey, despite the glutinous curls of his blonde moustache, but we really do not think he is seriously ill. His appetite is good, as the various free lunch distributers can bear witness to, and he is robust withal. In fact, Tompkins is somewhat hypochondriacal.

We havn't the slightest idea who Tompkins is, but we feel convinced that he is as ill as he represents himself to be. There is no disease which causes so much agony as dyspepsia. It upsets the whole nervous system. "Only the nerves?" How often we hear these words thoughtlessly spoken, when someone is complaining of sickness! Only the nerves! All pain proceeds from disorganization of the nerves—the seat of all sensation. The nerves become diseased, and the consequence is paralysis or death. The interior of the stomach is covered with a net work of small nerves which are connected by a great central nerve with those in all other parts of the body. These, when wronged by the stomach being filled with alcholic preparations or food hard of digestion which calls for a greater supply of gastric juice than the system can yield without distressing its general economy telegraph to all the other nerves, and all together set to work to protest against their ill-treatment by torturing the body with pains which seem as if they were caused by thousands of little devils operating with red-hot pincers. The common plan under these circumstances is to pour some horrible drench into the poor overworked stomach and urge it to exertion of which it is incapable. This is cruel as spurring an over-driven horse, and but increases the complaint. Sazarac brandy gives temporary relief and dulls the pain. Tompkins no doubt found this to be the case. It cannot, however, effect a permanent cure, and the safest plan is total abstinence from alcoholic beverages. Mush and cracked wheat and graham bread, and like abominations may preserve life, but who values life so dearly as to live on such stuff? The dyspeptic must grin and bear his sufferings until nature relieves him by restoring his digestion or letting him die.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Bridges of the Thames.

At this time when the panorama of the river Thames on exhibition at Mercantile Library Hall is attracting such general attention, the following particulars, in addition to the remarks of Mr. Risley may be interesting: The bridges across the Thames are eleven in number, and over them go more people in one year than across any bridges in the world. They are fine specimens of architecture, made either of stone or iron, and some of them cost huge sums of money. The cost of London bridge was nearly $12,000,000. Over this bridge 20,000 vehicles, and 107,000 persons on foot pass daily. Waterloo bridge, the finest of them all, is said to have cost $5,000,000. It is 1,380 feet long, and consists of nine elliptical arches, one hundred and twenty feet span, and thirty-five feet high, supported on piers twenty feet wide at the springing of the arches. In six months there passed over it 2,244,910 persons, which would be at the rate of nearly $5,000,000 per year. The toll of each way is a half-penny. Beneath all these bridges is a constant stream of boats plying upon the water. They go and come, up and down stream, and across in every direction, and in such numbers and confusion that the stranger can't see how they escape running into and over each other. And such a noise as the steam whistles and the oarsmen, and those connected with the boats, keep up was never heard anywhere else. In addition to all these bridges and boats, there is another mode of crossing the Thames. It is the tunnel, two miles below London bridge. This stupendous work extends beneath the bed of the river and connects Wapping on the left bank with Redriff on the right. It was begun in 1825, under the directions of Brunel, the architect, and finished by him in 1843. It consists of two arched passages 1,200 feet long, fourteen feet wide and sixteen feet high, all below the bed of the river. Whoever walks or rides through the tunnel goes under the river Thames, and now-a-days it is used by the East London Railway Company, whose locomotives thunder along with ships and fishes swimming over them.

California Theatre.

To-night W. J. Florence will appear in his favorite role of Bryan O'Farrell, in Falconer's pleasing play of "Eileen Oge." The last time this piece was presented at the California Theatre, there was not an inch of space unoccupied. T. W. Keene will play Patrick O'Donnell, Robert Pateman, John Thomas, Henry Edward, the Rev. Mr. Mahoney, John Wilson as Mr. McClean, the Scotch middleman, Nelson Decker as Henry Loftus, W. Barry, as Tim, the Penman, Miss Bella Pateman as Miss Eileen Moriarty, Miss Jennie Lee as Bridget Maguire, Miss Ellie Wilton as Miss Norah O'Donnell, and Miss Belle Chapman as Nelly, a pretty little haymaker. The full corps de ballet will be on the stage and will perform "The Haymaker's Run." On Friday when Mr. Florence will take his farewell benefit, "The Colleen Bawn" will be played.

Opera House.

The management keep up the high standard to which the entertainment at this house has been raised and the consequence is the auditorium is crowded nightly. A decidedly popular addition will be made to the company this evening, in the person of that old California favorite Charley Rhodes, who will appear in banjo solos. The finale to the first part which made such a hit last week, is retained. The rest of the programme is new. Billy Rice, W. Arlington, and J. F. Oberist will appear in "An Affair of Honor," Billy Emerson and Charley Rhodes in "That Rascal Billy," and E. Linden, J. N. Davis, J. R. Kemble, Billy Rice, Harry Sefton, J. F. Oberist and J. Richards in the ballet pantomimme of "Christobelle." Remarkable feats on the trapeze, performed by the beautiful Geraldine and the dashing Leopold, terminate the evening's entertainment.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Among the attractions offered at this house may be specified, "The Mysterious Restaurant" by Johnny Tuers, and John Kelly and Frank Mortimore, "The Japanese Dwarf Tommy" introduced by Professor Mortimore, a Challega Dance by John Kelly, Johnny Tuers and Frank Mortimore, and the screaming farce entitled "Captain Blowhard's Troubles."

Mercantile Library Hall.

We are glad to see that the newspapers generally have endorsed the Mirror of England as "high art." This panorama is as superior to any heretofore exhibited in this city, as a bad chromo is to a fine oil painting. The Mirror of England will remain on exhibition a few nights longer.

COSMOPOLITAN BAL MASQUE.—The second of these balls is announced for Christmas Eve (Dec. 24th), at Horticultural Hall. All the best features of the last one will be retained, the Clodoch dance, the special French "choral" quadrilles, etc. In addition, 40 young ladies will give a grand "Marche des Amazones Californiennes" dressed in glittering plated armour, and led by a lady of surpassing beauty. There will also be French comic quadrilles by ladies only, a superior band, and all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of both masquers and spectators. Tickets will be the same price as before.

DASHAWAY HALL.—The Spotted Boy.—There is an exhibition at this hall at present which is well worth seeing. The spotted boy is by no means repulsive. His flesh is curiously variegated, like the skin of a pinto horse. The white portions are as fair as the skin of a white man, and the spots are chocolate color. The dwarf lady is much more mature than dwarfs generally are, and is as self-possessed as an adult of ordinary size. A boa constrictor, an anaconda, a series of stereoscopic views and several very intelligent monkeys make up a very good show.

A SPLENDID COLLECTION OF PICTURES.—William Keith's entire collection of paintings and studies from nature, virtually illustrating California from "the Sierra to the Sea," will be open to public inspection at H. M. Newhall & Co's Rooms, Monday 7th, to Friday the 11th inst. On Wednesday and Thursday evenings they can be inspected by gaslight. The series numbers 100 works ranging from small cabinets to large gallery works. All are remarkable for almost a scientific fidelity to nature combined with truest artistic feeling. Mr. Keith's versatility is shown in the wide range of subjects; hardly any part of California, best known for the grandeur or beauty of its scenery, but has been depicted. There are fine views also in Utah, and from parts of New England. Mrs. Keith contributes some fine flower and fruit pieces.

Notes.

Miss Neilson will probably play an engagement in this city in March.

Charles Wheatleigh has purchased the right to produce "The Shaughraun" in the Australian colonies. Boucicault himself will probably produce it in San Francisco next year.

John McCullough left New Orleans yesterday for San Francisco. He will arrive here after an absence of ten months, on Sunday.

Real Works of Art.

There is an immense difference between the dolls of twenty years ago, and those of to-day. The ancient doll was a misshapen monster with a dull expressionless face. Feldbusch & Co., No. 308 Battery street, have received for the coming holidays the most beautiful and varied collection of dolls ever seen. Pale her cheek,
Her lips weak;
But her eyes were bolder.

She no saint—
Glaring paint
Daubed on every feature;
Gaudy dress—
All could guess
A poor fallen creature.

For no good
There she stood,
No one passing near her;
Space kept wide,
Dress aside,
Women seemed to fear her.

Carriage crashed,
Horses dashed,
There was wild confusion;
People cried,
Terrified
At the mad intrusion.

'Mid the crowd,
Shrieking loud
In a voice of terror,
A mother wild,
A little child
Lost by some strange error.

Ah! 'twas there!
Its head bare,
'Mid those whirling forces,
In the street,
'Neath the feet
Of the maddened horses,

Though all heard,
No one stirred—
Death would be the winner!
One brave eye
One sharp cry,
'Twas the painted sinner!

Quicker then
Than the pen
Could tell of half the danger,
She risked her life
'Mid that strife,
To save a little stranger.

And I thought
As I caught
A glimpse of her pale features,
'Mid the stains
Still remains
Some good in those poor creatures;

And that we Should not be
So eager aye to shun them,
If we can
Greet the man
Whose wrong hath undone them.

The Domestic Growler.

Look at him! he is a curiosity. He was pleasant enough an hour ago, as he sat in his office talking to the Jenks. With his chair tilted back, the toes of his boots resting against the mantle-piece, his mouth extended into a loud guffaw in reply to one of Jenk's yarns, you would have said he was one of the jolliest fellows in the world.

But he does not look so now. He considers it bad domestic policy to come home looking smiling and cheerful; it would not only lower his dignity as master of the house, but it would encourage his wife and children into the asking of all sorts of favors, and the running into goodness knows what extravagances. The only way, he believes, to keep up a proper system of household authority, and reduce household expenditure to its certain limits, is to always find fault, and never relax for a moment the system of domestic snubbing.

Of course, the coming home of the growler is not looked for with joy. All pleasant influences take wing. The very atmosphere becomes charged with depressing or explosive material. The cook spills the gravy, and blackens the toast for the pigeons; the wife is afraid the soup will not be all right, or the pudding done to the precise turn; the children huddle in a corner and talk in whispers, and no one feels that he can breathe until "pa" has gone. Who would be a growler?

The Emerson Piano is the finest and cheapest Piano on the market to-day for general use. Kohler,

After the Election.

When I got home last night, said Squills, the old lady was up waiting for me. I knew there was something in soak. There always is when she sits propped up in bed reading, and I knew it.

I was feeling pretty good, said Squills, for I had been whitewashed in the convention, sold out body, boots and breeches, and I felt like a board yard he cat with his back hair curled the wrong side up.

"Have you got elected, Squills, dear?"

I knew that she had seen the paper, but I said, "No, love," as mildly as if elections and all such snares were beneath my notice.

"Not got the election, Mr. Squills?"

"No, Mrs. Squills; not that the court is aware of at this present writing. Certainly not."

"Then, what do you expect to get for all the whisky you've been pouring down those fellows' throats?"

What fellows' throats?"

"Your friends who have been tramping in and out of my house, Mr. Squills, and borrowing your children's money, and running you into all kinds of disreputable places to hunt up votes, and sneaking you off into the country to barbecues and other infamous resorts, paying for buggies and making ridiculous remarks which I know you paid the reporters to work up into a speech. A nice thing you have done for yourself and me and the poor children, and then, after all, not to get anything for your pains. I'm ashamed of you, Mr. Squills. If I could afford to blush for so wicked a being, Squills, I would blush for you, but I can't, and, what's more, I won't. Don't tell me, Squills, that you don't want me to blush for you, and you sitting there just as mad as a hatful of hornets. After you telling me, too, and the dear child, that she should have a new silk when you got the election. A nice election you've got, and those fellows who took your money and your whisky just laughing at you and thinking what a fool you are for believing them. That's what hurts me in the tenderest point, Squills."

"About this time," said Squills, "I put out the light, tumbled into bed and prepared to go to sleep, but Mrs. Squills still kept at it with forty Squills power."

After a time exhausted nature gave way, and she was silent. Then I felt a singular jiggling of the bed, and I turned around and said, "Mrs. Squills, is that you? What in the world are you doing that for! If you want to laugh, laugh, but don't shake as if you had the buck-ague."

"Oh, what a politician you are, Squills," said she. "Two weeks canvassing, and then to be beaten by a tadpole!"

"To keep peace in the family," said Squills, "I had to promise the dress or something else, and as for the tadpole business, what can you explain to a woman?"

A Mis-pronunciation.

A Down-East chap, walking with a lady, accidentally stumbled and fell. The lady, thinking to commisserate with his mishap, observed that she regretted his unlucky faux pas. I didn't hurt my "fore-paws," he replied; "it was my knee."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cJ

The California, the Union, the Pacific and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, a very good substitute. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion, We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles. *

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

A delicous table delicacy. They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are as superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. Made fresh every morning at Bunker's Stall, 74 and 75 California Market, California street entrance. Try them. 9-B

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a modle of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. X

Josh Billings.

Unless a woman haz a large invoice ov good common sense it iz a dangerous thing for her to be smarter than her husband.

Stik and hang, yung man; it iz allwuss the last six inches in a race that wins the munny.

Thare iz nothing in this world more skarse just now than a truly humble man.

A man kant tell one lie and then stop, enny more than he kan tap a barrel ov nu cider and draw just a spoonful out and no more.

Thare never waz a man yet so ritch or exalted but what the finding a gold dollar on the sidewalk sent a thrill of delite all thrue him.

Sum men allwuss fite the best on the under side, and yu will notiss one thing, theze men are the hardest kind to whip.

Weak persons are the wust ones we hav to deal with; it takes sum strength ov karakter to be even a respektable fool.

We find full az much in the karakters ov our best friends to reprove az we do to brag on. Thare iz nothing so helthy for enny boddy az good honest abuse.

Az long az you don't want to borrow ennything yu will find plenty ov folks who are anxious to lend you sumthing. The fust three notes i endorsed i had to pay, and i hope it will be just so with the next three.

If a man haint got strength of karakter enuff to live down lies and slander, he better leave this world for sum other.

Philosophy iz not a cure for all, nor even enny evils, but it duz take the gaul out ov them mightily.

Green Room Chaff.

Mrs. Glover, the daughter of Betterton, took her final leave of the stage in the character of Mrs. Heidelburg at Drury Lane Theatre, when she was upwards of seventy years of age. A conversation, characteristic of the trio, is reported between Mrs. Glover, Mrs. Orger and Mrs. Humby—the two latter younger than the former, but experienced. The subject was Charles Matthews' then recent marriage with Madame Vestris. "They say," said Humby, with her quaint air of assumed simplicity, "that, before accepting him, Vestris made a full confession to him of all her lovers! What touching confidence!" she added archly. "What needless trouble!" said Orger dryly. "What a wonderful memory!" wound up Glover.

Smart Men.

Washington Irving relates in one of his minor sketches, that when among a certain band of Bohemians, he fell into praise of any celebrated current author, the band cried, "Pooh! pooh! It was Jones who gave him all his ideas for that." But Jones Mr. Irving had never heard of. We have conversed with over a dozen men who claim to have give poor "Artemus Ward" and Mark Twain all the ideas they ever worked up. And we have wondered they didn't work up something themselves at odd intervals.

Another Opinion.

The Eugene City Guard of the 28th ult. says of FIGARO: This spicy little paper, published daily by J. P. Bogardus, San Francisco, comes to us in an entirely new dress, which is really handsome. FIGARO is the "organ of amusements," and contains a large amount of interesting and instructive reading on almost every imaginable topic.

SYMPATHY.

Sympathy is delightful when it comes from the right person, and is the most precious article. There is so much bogus sympathy in the world that many people make up their minds to get along without it, and repel it when offered, doubting its genuineness. There are many "like unto children, sitting in the markets and calling unto their fellows, and saying: 'We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned unto you, and ye have not lamented.'" There are plenty of people, however, who take pleasure in going to a funeral and adding to the gloom of the ceremony; they didn't care a snap of the fingers for the party in the coffin when he or she was alive, but they are ready to lift up their voices and howl in unison with the widow and the orphans. They don't do the widow and the orphans any good by this sort of thing. Their sympathy is bogus. Sometimes, there is a man who shows his real sympathy by settling up all the affairs of the dead man, taking all the trouble off the hands of the mourning widow, he speaks cheerfully to her, and the children. He is an angel in the house. His sympathy is worth something. Many are by nature, unsympathetic. They are lacking in imagination, and their emotions are not easily aroused. They cannot realize the troubles of others. In order to develope the sympathetic quality in them, it is desirable that they suffer poverty, sickness and mental anguish. Too much of it may harden them, the right proportion will render them sympathetic. The rich man, who was once poor, is not, as a rule, overflowing with sympathy for his poorer fellow-creatures. Our San Francisco millionaires don't, as a rule, hunt up cases of distress and relieve them. They haven't time. They feel bound to make more money. We sympathize with many of them. There is really a pleasure in listening to a recountal of the troubles of others and sympathizing with them, and this pleasure is doubled if you have the means to relieve them. These poor devils of rich men don't know this. They don't know that the more happiness they create in the world, the more there will be for them to enjoy. Half of them seem afraid that they will die in the Alms House. There are many happy men and women in the Alms House. Sympathy makes a pleasant atmosphere in which the soul expands freely and developes. It is worth cultivating. Christmas, which is fast approaching, isn't a bad time to begin.

Circumstances.

Many a heart has been pinched and made narrow by hard circumstances. The education of early life could not fail to cramp it. What is more cheerless to think of than youth dwarfed by poverty; than childhood and young years stinted by penury? What a lesson of charity it teaches us! With better circumstances, with more of fortune's smiles and less of the cold world's frowns, more openhearted, generous natures would have been the result.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-y

An Awful Liar.

He didn't look like a liar. He had, in short, a George Washington sort of face, and his enunciation was loudly honest and decidedly nasal. He sat roasting his alternate sides in front of a red-hot saloon stove, amid a party of bummers, who were trying to outlie each other. "Talkin' about lightnin'," said he, "I reckon none o' you lazzaroni was ever struck, was you? No! Well, I was. You see I was out shootin' prairie chickens in Elinoy last August, and there came up the awfulest thunder-storm I ever see in the whole course o'my life. It rained cats an' dogs, an' the thunder rolled, and the forked lightnin' darted all over the sky, like fiery tongues. I got behind a haystack that leaned over to the south, an' the first thing I knowed the lightnin' struck that an' set it on fire. Then I moved to a walnut tree that stood near, an' a double-jinted bolt ripped that into splinters. I then moved to another tree, an' the lightnin' struck it. Then I begun to think it meant me, an' so I jest walked out, humped myself up, an' took three or four of the d—dest claps I ever heerd. It shuck me up right peart; but beyend rippin' the coat offen my back, an' splittin' one o' my boots from top to bottom, it didn't do me any particular damage. But you don't find old Jim around huntin' a row o' that kind agin."

The discomfited bummers looked curiously into each other's faces for a moment, and then, one by one, silently arose and sneaked out, leaving Truthful James master of the field.

A Poetical Description.

A weekly paper in Illinois describes the editor of the other paper as a "blear-eyed hitching-post, a goat-faced gunnysack, a wart-eared bung-hole for a cider barrel, and a plaster-cast for the poop-deck on a canal boat." There must have been a dearth of society news that week.

Bathos.

Nobody can blame brother Talmage for preaching against the theatre, if he really thinks it a wicked institution; but he ought not to talk about plowing it up in defiance of earth and hell. Such language is impolite. Indeed, it is worse—it is unagricultural.

California Theatre.

The production of Falconer's drama of "Eileen Oge," with W. J. Florence in the character of Bryan O'Farrell, drew an immense audience last night. The play was a decided success. Mr. Florence by his brogue, peculiar walk, and general air, suggested the live Irishman. Miss Jennie Lee, who is good in everything, was especially so in the character of Bridget Maguire, and won much applause for her songs. W. Barry did a splendid bit of character acting as Tim the Penman. Miss Bella Pateman looked very pretty and interesting as Eileen. Miss Ellie Wilton was quite at home in the role of Miss Norah O'Donnell, Miss Louisa Johnstone as Mrs. O'Donnell, did the heart-broken mother well, and Miss Belle Chapman as Nelly, made a charming haymaker. T. W. Keene as Patrick O'Donnell, was not our beau ideal of an Irish gentleman farmer, he was not at all genial. Robert Pateman did some capital acting as John Thomas, the cockney servant of Mr. Loftus, N. Decker and John Wilson worked the villainy of the play as Henry Loftus and Mr. Maclean respectively, and Henry Edwards had some good bits in the part of the Rev Mr. Mahoney of which he availed himself. The Haymakers' Run is one of the liveliest dances ever seen on the stage, and was most effectively performed. "Eileen Oge" will be played until Friday night when "The Colleen Bawn," will be produced on the occasion of the farewell benefit of Mr. Florence.

Opera House.

Charley Rhodes who made his appearance at this house last night, met with a most enthusiastic reception and acquitted himself admirably. He was encored half a dozen times, when he sang "The Days of '49," and won great applause for his new ballad in praise of King Kalakaua. Billy Emerson convulsed the audience with laughing in the act of "That Rascal Billy," the ballet pantomime of "Christobel" was quite a success and afforded Harry Sefton a chance to display his talent, and the performance by Leopold and Geraldine astonished and delighted the spectators.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

There will be a change of programme at this popular variety theatre to-night. Among the attractions may be mentioned the screaming act of "Clameel," the lively farce of "U. S. Mail," and the laughable afterpiece entitled "The Siamese Twins."

Mercantile Library Hall.

Risley's beautiful panorama of views on the river Thames will continue on exhibition at this hall every night of the present week, and will be shown at the matinee on Saturday. Its popularity, instead of decreasing is increasing, as the merit of the pictures becomes known.

COSMOPOLITAN BAL MASQUE.—The second of these balls is announced for Christmas Eve (Dec. 24th), at Horticultural Hall. All the best features of the last one will be retained, the Clodoch dances, the special French "choral" quadrilles, etc. In addition, 40 young ladies will give a grand "Marche des Amazones Californiennes" dressed in glittering plated armour, and led by a lady of surpassing beauty. There will also be French comic quadrilles by ladies only, a superior band, and all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of both masquers and spectators. Tickets will be the same price as before.

DASHAWAY HALL.—The Spotted Boy.—There is an exhibition at this hall at present which is well worth seeing. The spotted boy is by no means repulsive. His flesh is curiously variegated, like the skin of a pinto horse. The white portions are as fair as the skin of a white man, and the spots are chocolate color. The dwarf lady is much more mature than dwarfs generally are, and is as self-possessed as an adult of ordinary size. A boa constrictor, an an aconda, a series of stereoscopic views and several very intelligent monkeys make up a very good show.

A SPLENDID COLLECTION OF PICTURES.—William Keith's entire collection of paintings and studies from nature, virtually illustrating California from "the Sierra to the Sea," will be open to public inspection at H. M. Newhall & Co's Rooms, Monday 7th, to Friday the 11th inst. On Wednesday and Thursday evenings they can be inspected by gaslight. The series numbers 100 works ranging from small cabinets to large gallery works. All are remarkable for almost a scientific fidelity to nature combined with truest artistic feeling. Mr. Keith's versatility is shown in the wide range of subjects; hardly any part of California, best known for the grandeur or beauty of its scenery, but has been depicted. There are fine views also in Utah, and from parts of New England. Mrs. Keith contributes some fine flower and fruit pieces.

Woodward's Gardens.

The Phoitte Troupe of elastic and grotesque dancers in their great act entitled "Ridiculonsities," grand orchestral concert and skating, at Woodward's on Saturday and Sunday. Don't fail to see them.

Real Works of Art.

There is an immense difference between the dolls of twenty years ago, and those of to-day. The ancient doll was a misshapen monster with a dull expressionless face. Feldbusch & Co., No. 308 Battery street, have received for the coming holidays the most beautiful and varied collection of dolls ever seen. There are crying dolls, sleeping dolls, and dolls wide-awake, dolls with hair, and dolls bald-headed, and all as real as life. Toys of every description on hand—to the trade. Also retail Store No. 207 Montgomery street. T

THE BAR-TENDER'S STORY.

When I knowed him at first there was suthin'
A sort of a general air
That was very particular pleasin'
And what you might call debonair.
I'm aware that expression is Frenchy,
And rather high daddy perhaps;
Which accounts that I have the acquaintance
Of several quality chaps.

But he got to increasin' his doses,
And took 'em more often he did;
And it growed on him faster and faster
Till inter a bummer he slid.
I was grieved to observe this here feller
A shovin' himself down the grade,
And I lectured him on it sometimes
At the risk of spilin' the trade.

At last he got thunderin' seedy
And he lost his respect for himself,
And all his high notions of honor
Was bundled away on the shelf.
But at times he was dreadful remorseful
Whenever he'd stop to think,
And he'd swear he'd reform himself frequent
And end by takin' a drink.

What saved the young feller? A woman?
She done it in a singlerest way;
He come into the bar-room one evenin'
(He hadn't been drinking that day,)
And he sot himself down to a table
With a terrible sorrowful face,
And he sot there a groanin' repeated,
And callin' himself a gone case.

He was thinkin' and thinkin' and thinkin'
And cussin' himself for his fate,
And ended his thinkin' as usual
By orderin' a Bourbon straight.
He was holdin' the glass in his fingers,
When into the place from the street
There came a young gal like a spirit,
With a face that was powerful sweet.

And she glided right up to the table,
And took the glass gently away;
And she says to him: "George, it is over;
I am only a woman to-day!
I rejected you once in my anger,
But I come to you lowly and meek,
For I can't live without you, my darling,
I thought I was strong, but I'm weak.

"You are bound in a terrible bondage
And I come, love, to share it with you;
Is there shame in the deed? I can bear it,
For at last to my love I am true;
I have turned from the home of my childhood,
And I come to lover and friend,
Leaving comfort, contentment and honor,
And I'll stay to the terrible end.

"Is there hunger and want in the future?
I will share it with you and not shrink!
And together we'll join in the pleasures,
The woes and the dangers of drink."
Then she raised up the glass firm and steady,
But her face was as pale as the dead—
'Here's to wine and the joys of carousals,
The songs and the laughter,'" she said.

Then he riz up, his face like a tempest,
And took the glass out of her hand,
And slung it away stern and savage,
And I tell you his manner was grand!
And he says, "I've done with it Nelly,
And I'll turn from the ways I have trod,
And I'll live to be worthy of you, dear,
So help me a merciful God!

"You have saved me, my love and my darling,
On a noble and womanly plan:
Go back to your home till I seek you
In the garb and strength of a man."
* * * * * * * * *
I seen that same fellow last Monday
Lookin' nobby, handsome and game;
He was wheelin' a vehicle, gentlemen,
And a baby was into the same.

Boys in Bed.

Whoever has lifted the curtains of boys' alcoves, soon after their inmates have gone to bed, and has looked lovingly in, has seen a pretty sight. Generally their faces are lying most restfully, with hand under cheek, and in many cases look strangely younger than when awake, and often very infantile, as if some trick of older expression which they had been taught to wear by day had been dropped the moment the young ambitious will had lost control. The lids shut over bright, busy eyes; the air is gently and evenly fanned by coming and going breaths; there is a little crooked mound in the bed; along the bed's foot, or on a chair beside, are the day's clothes, sometimes neatly folded, sometimes off in a hurry; bulging with balls, or, in the lesser fellows, marbles; stained with the earth of many fields where woodchucks have been trapped, or perhaps torn with the roughness of trees on which squirrels have been sought; perhaps wet and mired with the smooth black or gray mud from the marshes, or the oozy banks of streams where muskrats have been tracked. Under the bed's foot lie the shoes—one on its side—with the gray and white socks, now creased and soiled, thrown across them; and there, in their little cells, squared in the great mass of night, heedless how the earth whirls away with them or how the world goes, who is thinking of them or what is doing at home, the busiest people in the world are resting for the morrow.

The Chinaman East.

The Cleveland Leader says:

Mr. William Lee, of the Ontario-street laundry, has not left Cleveland, although he has not appeared of late in the newspapers. The fact is that Mr. Lee has devoted himself strictly to business during the last six or eight months, and has thereby amassed a small amount of cash, which is designed to be expended in carrying him again to his native land, over the salt, salt sea. But before leaving it is simply an act of justice to state that Mr. Lee has attempted faithfully to submit to the heathenism of this benighted country, and if he does not carry away a fair impress of hospitality or feeling of love toward Brother Jonathan, the fault has not been his, but that of the angular brother on whose bosom he attempted to lean. But it will be simply an act of justice to friend Wau to allow him to explain his own feelings, as he did on Saturday last in conversation with a Leader reporter. He unburdened himself as follows:

"Me no likee Melical man. Melican man comes in my laundry, spitee on floor, chew, chew. Bringee shirtee; say, 'Trust, Wau Lee?' Wau Lee say, 'No trust; trust dead.' Melican man say, 'Rat-eater, I punchee.' Punchee Wau Lee's head, pull his pigtail. Wau Lee runs chop—chop head to fleece officer. Fleece officer say, 'Cheap John—one, two, three—bounce.' Shakee me pigtail and says, 'Climb.' Wau Lee climbs—comee home. Melican man steals shirt, and he climb, too."

Wau Lee attempted to go to Sunday school, and his story is as follows:

"Me go on Sunday to Joss house. Me take settee, and Melican man's boyee comee along. Boyee say, 'Here's China.' More boyee come. Pull pigtail and say, 'Bully for Chinee man.' Me get mad and swear. Fleece officer comee along, takee me to station. Payee five dollee and sixty cents; go home to wash, wash."

"Me then go on street car. Melican woman look at me and laughee loud. One speakee low, 'Him nig. One speakee low, too, and say, 'Him rat-eater.' Me getee mad and say, 'Me Chinaman—me washee, washee. Me no nig.' Me no rat-eater. Big lie.' Melican woman scream. Conductor run in. Him say, 'Who's up?' Melican woman say, 'Dirty China 'sulted me.' Conductor he takee my stampees, and he say, 'Get.' Wau Lee gets, fall on the ground, and brokee nose; officer comes up. He says, 'Dlunk again, Chinee?' Me say, 'No dlunk.' He say, 'Too thin.' Takee me by collar and takee me to station. Judge say, 'Here again Chinee?' Me go out, pay ten dollee and fifty cents. Me go home madee—red hot madee—bleak dishes shave off pigtail, buy plug hat, shut up laundry, and go to China."

And this was Wau Lee's first determination, but since then he has reconsidered it, gone back to his trade, and still washes and irons as of old.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cJ

The California, the Union, the Pacific and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, a very good substitue. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion, We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

A delicous table delicacy. They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are as superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. Made fresh every morning at Bunker's Stall, 74 and 75 California Market, California street entrance. Try them. 9-B

IF ANY MAN CAN
JOHN BOLLMAN

Can, and Does, Sell, in spite of a legion of long-tailed Celestials and their white friends, PURE HAVANA CIGARS FOR FIVE CENTS APIECE, or THIRTY DOLLARS PER THOUSAND. They are called

Los Brillantes,

And, judging by the daily increasing demand for them, they will in time outsell any other brands of cigars. Competition, of course, will do all it can to retard and stop their sale, and therefore we would earnestly request the generous public to see for itself and first give them a fair trial, ere condemning them. A meritorious article may be cheap as well, and our maxim has been and always will be, to sell a first-rate article at the lowest PRICE POSSIBLE. Those cigars as well as our celebrated RUSSIAN CIGARITOS are sold in all the principal cigar stores in this city and adjoining towns, or the factory, 609 WASHINGTON STREET, CORNER BATTERY.

Look for above trade mark, when you buy and beware of imitations.

N. B. For a smoker, as a holiday gift, you could hardly select anything more suitable and acceptable than our CIGARS and RUSSIAN CIGARITOS, especially our LA MOSCOVITAS manufactured of Turkish tobacco worth $5 per pound. The finest Cigarites in Market, sold at the factory for $20 per thousand. d4

The Latest Paris Sensation.

Of the latest theatrical sensation in Paris, "L'Odile," the correspondent of the Arcadian says that it is shamefully immoral, but he commends it to the attention of Clara Morris as a most emotional play. This is the plot:

Madame la Duchesse de Angeles is young, beautiful and agreeable. She is married to a paralytic old fool, whom she nurses like a mother and obeys like a daughter. She is madly adored by one Reginald de Therigny. She repulses him, although, in secret, she shares his flame. Reginald, in despair, resolves to die, and consequently picks a quarrel with a young American, and endeavors to provoke a duel. Hearing of this rational project, Madame la Duchesse thinks fit to break it up by confessing her love to Reginald, and then the guilty pair go to Paris and spend a short time in happiness. Meanwhile the old duke dies, and Reginald is sent off to St. Petersburg on a diplomatic mission. Madame follows him with the intention of getting him to marry her. She arrives just in time to hear that he is about to marry the daughter of the post-master-general of Russia. She implores him to break off the engagement. It is too late, the compact is signed, and Madame la Duchesse, after hearing that she is no longer loved, plunges a dagger into her heart, and cries out, "He did it. I was his mistress, and he has murdered me," which is a lie, and down comes the curtain.

Those Boston People.

The Boston Courier says: Deacon Longprair met with an unfortunate accident the other evening. Riding home about eleven o'clock in the horse-car, he was accosted by a friend with: "Ah, Deacon, getting home rather late?" "Well, yes," said the deacon: "We had a prayer and conference meeting over in East Boston this evening, and the interest was great and prolonged." Just then he inadvertently raised his hat (possibly to relieve his conscience) when two checks for orchestra chairs at the Howard Athenæum fell into his lap. The deacon immediately left the car—the atmosphere was very close—and walked the rest of the way home.

Energetic Measures.

In Peoria they have an effective way of bringing dilatory lovers to time. When the young man goes to see his girl he finds the old man caressing a shot gun, and the old woman fondling a bull dog. When the old man says: "Young fellow, what are your intentions?" the young fellow doesn't say, "I've none whatever," but "I come to sue for the privilege of leading your fair daughter to the altar."

Shorn.

An exchange says: Joaquin Miller, the wild mustang of the prairies, has had his hair cut, and his popularity has waned with the aristocracy. Like Samson, his strong suit was his hair.

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-y

SPIRITUAL MANIFESTATIONS.

All the newspapers in the United States, England and France, give up a considerable portion of their space to accounts of spiritual manifestations and discussions concerning their reality. The chief "argument" urged against the reality of these manifestations is, that the spirits tell us nothing concerning the world or condition in which they live. The New York Republican says:

But there is one thing connected with all these manifestations, whether of the lowest or highest order, that is calculated to seriously shake one's faith in the theory that they are the work of departed spirits. They tell us nothing new, absolutely nothing. They give us no insight whatever into the world where they claim to dwell, more than we had before. Here is Katie King, for example, who appears to materialize herself simultaneously in London and Philadelphia, and who tells her audience that she has been dead more than a hundred years. Surely Katie King, who seems to be a bright-witted and sharp sighted girl ought to have gained some information about the world during her long residence there. But does she bring us any messages worth listening to? Nothing of the kind. So far as getting any information about the next world is concerned we might as well apply to Lizzie King, who murdered Goodrich. She shows her pretty face and pearly teeth, boasts of her ringlets, shakes hands with Vice President Wilson, absorbs an orange that is given her, and dis appears. Her conversation, what there is of it, is trivial and silly. When asked if she would like an orange she says, "Of course I would," and if she had been addressing a San Francisco audience she would probably have said, "You bet."

Take the average girl in the body and ask her to describe a place where she has lived, and with which you are entirely unacquainted, and she will probably seem as silly as Katie King, and just as averse to be bothered by your persistent catechising. It is as hard to describe to one still in the flesh, the condition into which a person enters after shaking off his or her, body as it is to describe this world and everything in it to a blind man. It seems very natural and simple to people who have passed from this life, and have their spiritual eyes opened, but to explain it to men and women in this earthly condition, hic labor hoc opus est. Most spirits shirk this task. They feel no more compelled to do it than you, John Jones, feel it incumbent on you to explain the best system of social economy to your little daughter aged four years. You say, "don't botherme, my child, you wouldn't understand me if I were to explain." When we become perfectly accustomed to men and women who have passed from this life returning and conversing with us, we have no doubt that we shall learn many important facts concerning the condition immediately following this in which we now exist. We must learn our spiritual alphabet before we can read the mysteries of the other life. If we make up our minds that all the revelation intended for man has been made in the Bible, and that we know it all, we are very unlikely to learn anything. As soon as we become better acquainted with disembodied spirits, and cease to think of them as unnatural apparitions we shall get along swimmingly. Christians ought to be able to accept the doctrine of the resurrection of the body, it is one of the articles of their faith. The trouble is that they want it accomplished their way. They want Gabriel to sound his trumpet, and they cannot give up the grand spectacle of the righteous being caught up in the clouds. This would be very unnatural. All the wonders, (miracles?) of nature, are accomplished slowly and in accordance with strict laws. Boozy Jim who spends his life in loafing round Pacific street, when he dies does not become an angel, doesn't stand for ever and ever waving a palm in his hand and remarking, "glory, glory," neither does John Stuart Mill, nor Shakspeare. For ourselves we would as soon be a mermaid as an angel, as we fancy the mermaid has most intellect. Gentlemen of the Press, fret not yourselves with vain questionings, why the spirits do not do this or say that. Continue to faithfully chronicle what they do, and wait for development.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Nursling of the Storm.

Max Adeler writes in the Danbury News: A man dressed in sailor costume was up in our criminal court the other day upon a charge of stealing a pair of boots. As he had no counsel the court appointed a young lawyer to take charge of his defence. The lawyer opened the case in which he alluded to his client as "a child of the sad seawaves, a nursling of the storm, whom the pitiless billows had cast a forlorn and friendless waif upon the shores of time, after a life spent in heroic contest and raging elements." Then the defendant was put upon the stand, and the fact was revealed that he was a cook upon a Synder county canal boat previous to which he had peddled clams in Wilmington. The nursling of the storm is now in jail for sixty days.

A Bashful Man.

Poor fellow! He entered the parlor, bowing and blushing, hat in hand, hoping to see Eveline. Imagine his consternation when he saw a bevy of merry girls! However, he faced the difficulty as only a bashful man can, and, after spending five minutes in agitated conversation, rose to take his leave. He was bowing himself toward the door, the handle of which he seized, with his face still to the company, and in another moment he was gone, and the door closed behind him. Then, to his horror, he discovered that in his confusion he had shut himself up in a china closet, while the uncontrollable laughter of the ladies by no means tended to restore his equanimity.

The great improvements they have introduced in their manufacture, enable them to supply Fonts of this superior metal without any increase of Price upon the ordinary quality.

Opera House.

Billy Emerson in the first part, Charley Rhodes in banjo solos, Billy Rice, Billy Arlington, and J. F. Oberist in "The Rival Artists," Billy Emerson and Charley Rhodes in "That Rascal Billy," the ballet pantomime of "Christobel," and the wonderful feats of Leopold and Geraldine, make up a performance hard to beat.

California Theatre.

A large audience was present last night at the second performance of "Eileen Oge." The acting of Mr Florence as Bryan O'Farrel, the fine scenery, the haymakers' run, and other features of the piece received their meed of applause, and Miss Jennie Lee a double encore for her song. "Eileen Oge" will be played again this evening.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Johnny Tuers and Harry Devoy caused much fun in the act of "Clameel" and Charley Nickerson and Tuers are equally successful in "Troubles in a Barber Shop." The evening's entertainment terminates with "The Siamese Twins."

Mercantile Library Hall.

The attendance at the exhibition of Risley's Mirror of England has steadily increased since the first night. The views on the river Thames, by Telbin and Highe are beautiful works of art, and the scenes in the city of London are an interesting record of a former day.

Platt's Hall.

W. Hepworth Dixon, the famous historical lecturer, has been engaged to deliver a course of five lectures at Platt's Hall, commencing on December 15th. The first will be "The German Empire." The titles of the other lectures are published on our first page.

Art Notes.

Studies from the Great Masters.—R. D. W. Davis & Co., 319 Sansome street, will sell to-morrow at 12 M. a collection of fine Italian pictures, mostly copies from the Great Masters, and all handsomely framed. These works are after Raphael G. Dolci, Correggio, Conti Fasola, Madame de Bruse and other well-known artists of the past and present age. All are fine works, but "Moliere reading to his housekeeper," a study after Conti, is the only copy in America, and will attract universal attention. It is in a superb Florentine frame.

COSMOPOLITAN BAL MASQUE.—The second of these balls is announced for Christmas Eve (Dec. 24th), at Horticultural Hall. All the best features of the last one will be retained, the Clodoch dances, the special French "choral" quadrilles, etc. In addition, 40 young ladies will give a grand "Marche des Amazones Californiennes" dressed in glittering plated armour, and led by a lady of surpassing beauty. There will also be French comic quadrilles by ladies only, a superior band, and all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of both masquers and spectators. Tickets will be the same price as before.

DASHAWAY HALL.—The Spotted Boy.—There is an exhibition at this hall at present which is well worth seeing. The spotted boy is by no means repulsive. His flesh is curiously variegated, like the skin of a pinto horse. The white portions are as fair as the skin of a white man, and the spots are chocolate color. The dwarf lady is much more mature than dwarfs generally are, and is as self-possessed as an adult of ordinary size. A boa constrictor, an anaconda, a series of stereoscopic views and several very intelligent monkeys make up a very good show.

A SPLENDID COLLECTION OF PICTURES.—William Keith's entire collection of paintings and studies from nature, virtually illustrating California from "the Sierra to the Sea," will be open to public inspection at H. M. Newhall & Co's Rooms, Monday 7th, to Friday the 11th inst. On Wednesday and Thursday evenings they can be inspected by gaslight. The series numbers 100 works ranging from small cabinets to large gallery works. All are remarkable for almost a scientific fidelity to nature combined with truest artistic feeling. Mr. Keith's versatility is shown in the wide range of subjects; hardly any part of California, best known for the grandeur or beauty of its scenery, but has been depicted. There are fine views also in Utah, and from parts of New England. Mrs. Keith contributes some fine flower and fruit pieces.

Woodward's Gardens.

The Pholtte Troupe of elastic and grotesque dancers in their great act entitled "Ridiculonsities," grand orchestral concert and skating, at Woodward's on Saturday and Sunday. Don't fail to see them.

Real Works of Art.

There is an immense difference between the dolls of twenty years ago, and those of to-day. The ancient doll was a misshapen monster with a dull expressionless face. Feldbusch & Co., No. 308 Battery street, have received for the coming holidays the most beautiful and varied collection of dolls ever seen. There are crying dolls, sleeping dolls, and dolls wide-awake, dolls with hair, and dolls bald-headed, and all as real as life. Toys of every description on hand—to the trade. Also retail Store No. 207 Montgomery street. T

LISETTE.

BY ROSE TERRY COOKE.

Good-by, roses! Perfumed snow
Scents no more the winds that blow;
Crimson hearts no longer glow—
June is over.
From the meadow breathes the hay;
On the mountain mists are gray;
Bees and butterflies at play
In the odorous clover.

Summer comes and Summer flies;
Autumn fills the solemn skies;
O'er her hills the days arise
Clad in glory.
Then the snow-cloud's stainless pall
On our hearts and eyes will fall,
Till we hear the bluebird's call
Tell the Spring's new story.

Sweet, I care not! for in thee
My perpetual Spring shall be;
In thy dear eyes still I see
Dew and blossom.
On thy red lips roses glow;
Tiny laughter soft and low,
Baby songs, most bird-like flow
From my bluebird's bosom.

Thee the sunbeams cannot fade,
Sweetest, quaintest little maid,
Though about thy head they played
Every season.
Broken speech and clinging hands,
Loving heart that love demands
Whatesoe'er it smiling stands,
Without rhyme or reason.

Chirping cricket on my hearth,
Making Winter gay with mirth,
Brightening all the clouded earth
With thy pleasure!
Now let storm and tempest cry,
All the winds blow loud and high,
Still the Spring smiles sweet and shy
In my household treasure.

The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. Sir Isaac Newton's Imitator.

Max Adeler says:

Old Keyser found Cooley's boy, the other day, standing in a very suspicious position under his best apple tree, with a stick in his hand, and a certain bulgy appearance about his pockets. Having secured him firmly by the collar, Keyser shook him up a bit, and then asked him sternly what he was doing there.

"Ain't a-doin' nothin'," said Cooley. "I come over yer to study."

"That's entirely too thin," exclaimed Keyser.

"Yes, I did. I come over yer to study about Sir Isaac."

"Sir Isaac! What in thunder do you mean, anyhow?"

"Why, Sir Isaac Newton. We had it in our lesson. He was in an orchard, and seen an apple fall, and that made him invent the 'traction of gravitation, and I come over yer to see if it was so."

"It won't do, sonny," said Keyser. "You are too enthusiastic about Sir Isaac. And, beside, what were you going to do with that stick?"

"With this stick? This yer stick? What was I goin' to do with this stick? Why, a boy gave me this stick to hold for him while he went on an errand for his aunt."

"And where did that apple-core come from there on the ground?"

"That apple-core—that one lying there? The birds is awful on apples this season. I seen a blackbird drop that there, and I says to myself, 'Them birds are just ruinin' Mr. Keyser's apples, and won't Mr. Keyser be awful mad when ——'"

What makes your pockets bulge out that way?"

"Mother made them pants, and they never did set right. Oh, that bulgin' place! Well, as I couldn't find out much about Sir Isaac here, I was just takin' two or three apples home to see if I could discover somethin', and to ask father to help me——. Mr. Keyser, what are you going to do? I will never take another apple as long as I live—'pon my word I won't!"

Then Keyser flogged him, and Mr. Cooley's boy has knocked off on Sir Isaac Newton and natural philosophy, and is devoting himself to other branches of knowledge.

What he Couldn't Sell.

A gentleman was walking with his little boy at the close of the day, and in passing the cottage of a German laborer the boy's attention was attracted to a dog. It was not a King Charles nor a black and tan, but a common cur. Still, the boy took a fancy to him, and wanted "pa" to buy him. Just then the owner of the dog came home from his labors and was met by the dog with every demonstration of dog joy. The gentleman said to the owner, "My little boy has taken a fancy to your dog, and I will buy him. What do you ask for him?" "Can't sell dat dog!" said the German. "Look here," said the gentleman, "that is a poor dog, anyway, but as my boy wants him, I will give you five dollars for him." "Yaas," said the German, "I knows he is a werry poor dog, and he ain' wort almost nottin, but dere ish von leddle ding mid dat dog vy I cant sell; de vag of his tail ven I comes home at night."

A Good Daughter.

"I should be glad to accommodate you," said an Iowa damsel to whom a young Bostonian had proposed, "but I am partially engaged already. There's ma, though, who's only thirty-five and wishes to marry again, and I think she is just now without an engagement." The young man took the next train East.

The California, the Union, the Pacific and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, a very good substitue. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion, We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles. *

A Comfortable Sentence.

"One of those fellers," remarked Bijah, as he handed out Thomas Ludington, a young man charged with vagrancy.

"So you havn't nothing to do, eh?" asked the Court.

"Nothing," mournfully answered the prisoner.

"Out of work—no home, and your cash so short that you couldn't get into a woman's rights convention, eh?" continued his honor.

"You've struck it, pardner," answered the prisoner with a smile.

"Yes, and now I'll strike you, Mr. Ludington. I'm down on loafers and vags, and I'm going to boost you for sixty days if it tears the desk down. You'll have something to do up there besides sitting on a box in the alley whistling 'Come Love, Come,' and when the day fades into night and the remainder of the world retires to rest, you'll have a bed and some covering. They'll hire some one to hoe that dirt off you, cut your hair, dig out your nails; and when you come out you will be so diguised that your own mother will think you are some English Duke over here to hunt ducks and buy gas stocks."

The prisoner said he would be willing to go up, and if the institution pleased him as he though it would, he might come back for a longer sentence.

Panamint.

The daily papers are puffing the Panamint mines. They wish poor men to go there in order that rich men may make money out of them. The Reno Crescent has the following which is not encouraging: We have just received a letter from Mr. Harry Noyes, who started for Panamint a short time ago, from which we give a few extracts: "There are more men broke here than in Reno. There is about eight hundred men here, and it is very cold; no lodgings. * * * * Carr is here and is going to start a paper soon. It is hard to stay here this winter; but I cannot think of returning to Reno at present, as I think by remaining I will succeed. We are obliged to pay $1 for meals, and poor at that. The mines are all located.

Mr. J. S. Clarke in New York.

Mr. Winter, the gentle and gracious critic of the Tribune, says:

Mr. Clarke has concluded a brilliantly prosperous engagement at the Walnut Street Theatre, and to-night he will make his re-entrance on the New York stage. There is fit heraldry, in this incident, as the Merry Christmas to which we now advance—for Mr. Clarke is a comedian of the cheeriest kind, and the influence of his acting is steadily genial and humane. He has acted but one term in New York within ten years, and he will prove a distinct novelty to the younger class of playgoers, as well as a welcome presence to the many who know his brilliancy and his worth.

PEACE IS DECLARED in all families who buy their

Shakspeare's Face.

Mr. Page, the painter, has recently returned from Europe, where he went a few months ago expressly to see the supposed mask of Shakspeare's face, which is at Darmstadt, in Germany. As many of our readers are aware, Mr. Page has devoted a large portion of his time for four or five years to moulding a plaster face from photographs taken from this mask. Last year he considered it suffieiently complete to use as a basis for several paintings, which were ordered by four or five New York gentlemen, and so good were they that Canon Kingsley, during his recent visit here, told the owner of one of them that it was a finer picture of Shakspeare than any in England.

A great deal is said of the superficialness of the present age, and especially of the superficialness of Americans. This is certainly unjust, so far, at least, as Mr. Page is concerned. He, as all his friends are aware, has labored early and late, Summer and Winter, to bring to its greatest perfection what he looked upon as the highest type of a human face, as seen in these photographs from the mask of Shakspeare taken after death. All his knowledge of anatomy and his wonderful power in rendering muscle, flesh, bone, and, more than all things else, character, have been devoted to this end, and with a perseverance that would have driven many a lesser man insane. At length it was about completed, and he made a long and expensive journey in order to compare his work with the original. The mask itself, which is of wax, has suffered somewhat in the course of time since it was made, and all are aware who have seen the photographs that some of the features, especially the nose, have been badly mutilated. One side of it above the nostrils has been bent, and various nicks and scratches have hindred many who have seen it from perceiving the extreme beauty and rarity of the face. Mr. Page in his plaster-cast has endeavored to correct these merely accidental blemishes, and to restore it as it was originally made, and the result of his recent visit to Europe has been most satisfactory to himself. Seeing the mask in different lights, some of them other than those in which the photographs were taken, he finds that it entirely answers to his former conviction, and that it is structurally the same wonderful head that his photographs had prefigured. Lfkenesses in it, too, he found more strongly marked than he had supposed to the Stratford portrait, and new photographic views of it that he has brought home testify as strongly as his words to its remarkable similarity to the received likenesses of Shakspeare.

Great doubt has existed in the minds of many people in regard to the whole question of the authenticity of the mask; historically, some were not disposed to allow its claims, and to the mass of the people its battered appearance prevented its actual resemblances from being seen. As we have many times had occasion to remark, says Appleton's Journal, if there is a man living who really knows artistic anatomy, and is competent to judge of structural peculiarities, it is Mr. Page. The finest draughtsman in the world, so far as we know, he, of all men, ought to be able to discriminate a likeness; and, on this basis, his opinion of the authenticity of the mask has had great weight with many people. Leaving home in August, he devoted his entire energies to studying this head in every light and in all positions. In the years through which he had worked he had pondered over each curve and indentation, and, to his satisfaction, he found that, in varying the views, each supposition of his was borne out. He has brought home the finest pictures that have been made of the mask, and, placing them side by side with the plaster-cast, the Chandos portrait, the Droeshout print, and the Stratford bust, the evidence that they are all taken from the same face appears to us to be conclusive.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Keeping the Lord's Day.

The Scotchman furnishes the following illustration of the camel and-gnat religion of some of his countrymen. A traveler says: "Sunday morning at the Hotel of Dumbarton I had just got up and rung the bell for some hot water for shaving. A waiter answered my call. 'I want some hot water, if you please,' I said. 'And for what do you want water?' 'For shaving,' I said. 'Ye canna have hot water on the Lord's Day for sic a thing as shaving,' said the waiter, horror struck at the idea. I insisted again, but with the same effect. 'Na, na,' said he, 'ye canna have it.' Necessity is the mother of invention, 'tis said, and this aroused mine. I thought if I could arrange this order in such a way that it would not affect his religious scruples he would bring it directly. I therefore proposed that I should take some toddy, and told him to bring me the material for making it, consisting of whisky, sugar, and boiling water. These he brought without the least demur. I gave him the whiskey, which he drank, and I used the hot water."

A Sensible Preacher.

In Walter Besant's "French Humorists," one of the stories told of Moliere's time is of a preacher, who, having to celebrate a certain saint's day, delivered the following sermon: "My brethren, it is to-day the feast of St.——. On this day last year I told you all I knew about him. I have not heard that during the last twelve months he has distinguished himself in any way whatever. I have, therefore, nothing more to add."

This metal, after many years' trial under the Hoe and other Machines of the leading London and English and Scotch provincial DAILY PAPERS, has been found to be at least TWICE AS DURABLE as the ordinary type metal, and has gained it very universal preference. The great improvements they have introduced in their manufacture, enable them to supply Fonts of this superior metal without any increase of Price upon the ordinary quality.

California Theatre.

"Eileen Oge" drew another good house last night. It will be played this evening for the last time. To-morrow evening Mr. Florence will take his farewell benefit and appear as Myles na Coppaleen in "The Colleen Bawn."

Opera House.

Billy Emerson in the first part and an act, Charley Rhoades in banjo solos, Leopold and Geraldine in their flying leaps, and a variety of other attractions crowd this house to overflowing every night.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Johnny Tuers, Charles Nickerson, Frank Mortimore, Miss Maggie Brewer, and a score of other popular artistes give a capital entertainment at this house, and never fail to please the audience.

Mercantile Library Hall.

Kisley's beautiful panorama entitled "The Mirror of England," can remain on exhibition at this hall but a few nights more. Those who do not see it will miss a great treat.

Wilson's Amphitheatre.

Messrs. Rockwell & Hurlburt, the celebrated horse tamers, are giving free exhibitions of their skill every afternoon and evening, at the Palace Amphitheatre, on New Montgomery street. Each evening Mr. Rockwell delivers a lecture on his system. The white horse Mazeppa is a wonderful illustration of what can be done by kindness, tact and firmness. This animal appears to be able to do anything but talk.

Platt's Hall.

W. Hepworth Dixon, the famous historical lecturer, has been engaged to deliver a course of five lectures at Platt's Hall, commencing on December 15th. The first will be "The German Empire." The titles of the other lectures are published on our first page.

COSMOPOLITAN BAL MASQUE.—The second of these balls is announced for Christmas Eve (Dec 24th), at Horticultural Hall. All the best features of the last one will be retained, the Clodoch dances, the special French "choral" quadrilles, etc. In addition, 40 young ladies will give a grand "Marche des Amazones Californiennes" dressed in glittering plated armour, and led by a lady of surpassing beauty. There will also be French comic quadrilles by ladies only, a superior band, and all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of both masquers and spectators. Tickets will be the same price as before.

DANHAWAY HALL.—The Spotted Boy.—There is an exhibition at this hall at present which is well worth seeing. The spotted boy is by no means repulsive. His flesh is curiously variegated, like the skin of a pinto horse. The white portions are as fair as the skin of a white man, and the spots are chocolate color. The dwarf lady is much more mature than dwarfs generally are, and is as self-possessed as an adult of ordinary size. A boa constrictor, an anaconda, a series of stereoscopic views and several very intelligent monkeys make up a very good show.

A SPLENDID COLLECTION OF PICTURES.—William Keith's entire collection of paintings and studies from nature, virtually illustrating California from "the Sierra to the Sea," will be open to public inspection at H. M. Newhall & Co's Rooms, Monday 7th, to Friday the 11th inst. On Wednesday and Thursday evenings they can be inspected by gaslight. The series numbers 100 works ranging from small cabinets to large gallery works. All are remarkable for almost a scientific fidelity to nature combined with truest artistic feeling. Mr. Keith's versatility is shown in the wide range of subjects; hardly any part of California, best known for the grandeur or beauty of its scenery, but has been depicted. There are fine views also in Utah, and from parts of New England. Mrs. Keith contributes some fine flower and fruit pieces.

Woodward's Gardens.

The Pholtte Troupe of elastic and grotesque dancers in their great act entitled "Ridiculonsities," grand orchestral concert and skating, at Woodward's on Saturday and Sunday. Don't fail to see them.

Notes.

The barkentine Victor arrived in this port yesterday, 28 days from Japan, having on board Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus, twenty-five members, thirty-one horses, and some tons of dresses, and fittings of the amphitheatre. Chiarini will not be likely to remain idle long. We hope he will make money while the sun shines, and very shortly present to the public of San Francisco the best circus company in the world.

On Saturday of next week, Fred Whymper, who has engineered more art sales, and made more money for our local artists than any other man who was ever here, will receive a complimentary token of the general respect and esteem in which he is held by the painters, musicians and actors of this city, in the shape of a benefit at Maguire's New Theatre. All the disengaged dramatic and vocal talent will assist, and the painters will contribute pictures, which will be given to such persons in the audience as the blind Goddess Fortune may choose as the favored ones. Both the Press and the public will, we are sure, lend their assistance to make Fred Whymper's benefit a substantial one.

John McCullough arrived at Omaha yesterday, and left for San Francisco in a special car tendered him as a token of their admiration of his talent by the Central Pacific Railroad Company.

Real Works of Art.

There is an immense difference between the dolls of twenty years ago, and those of to-day. The ancient doll was a misshapen monster with a dull expressionless face. Feldbusch & Co., No. 308 Battery street, have received for the coming holidays the most beautiful and varied collection of dolls ever seen. There are crying dolls, sleeping dolls, and dolls wide-awake, dolls with hair, and dolls bald-headed, and all as real as life. Toys of every description on hand—to the trade. Also retail Store No. 207 Montgomery street. T

KING DEATH.

BY BRYAN WALLER PROCTOR.

King Death was a rare old fellow!
He sat where no sun could shine!
And he lifted his hand so yellow,
And poured out his coal-black wine,
Hurrah! for the coal-black wine!

There came to him many a maiden,
Whose eyes had forgot to shine;
And widows, with grief o'erladen,
For a draught of his sleepy wine.
Hurrah! for the coal-black wine!

The Scholar left all his learning;
The Poet his fancied woes;
And the Beauty her bloom returning,
Like life to the fading rose.
Hurrah! for the coal-black wine!

All came to the royal old fellow,
Who laughed till his eyes dropped brine,
And he gave them his hand so yellow,
And pledged them in Death's black wine,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
Hurrah! for the coal-black wine!

Femininities.

The bustle is in fashion again.

Plaids grow larger and more showy.

It is the new girl who sweeps clean.

Lobe ear-rings are going out of style.

Can you spell consent in three letters? Y-e-s.

They now cut the apron front in the battlement pattern.

"My Sunday evening mail," is what she calls him in Detroit.

Some of the ball dresses have two overskirts and a long train.

An armless Milwaukee woman boxes her husband's ears with her feet.

Skirts—walking skirts—have all the fullness behind, the front being drawn by cords.

An Omaha girl broke her back the other day, while making her bed. An awful warning.

It is considered a safe plan for a young man never to trifle with the affections of a woman who whistles.

Very few ladies wear diamonds in public now-a-days. Gamblers' and politicians' wives have the monopoly.

Two lovers hugging each other in a street car are accepted as an instance of a bad case of "open communion."

Irish poplins are much worn this season. They are very handsome, for a good poplin costs twice as much as a good silk.

The Spider.

Here is the last school-boy's composition a la Josh Billings: This is a inseck that cetches flies in a net like a fish-net, but not in the water. The net is called a web, and wen it cetches dust insted of flies it is a cobweb. The spider knoes he is ugly, so he stays a good deal to home, but ugley wimmen goes to church and waks in the street more than pretty; but they are both in the same bisniss, which is trappin.' In Californy they has spiders, that scorn to spin webs, but goes out and cetches game like other beasts of pray. They are about the size of a girl baby, and a lot pizener These is tar antulers. Wen an injin has bit hisself with a tar antuler he fils his skin with whisky and steals a blanket to rap hisself in, and hunts a place ware his body will be most in the way. Then he lies down, and if the pizen don't work all to once he sings the deth-song of the brave, and that nocks him. We was tole this to our house by a travler who said he gussed he knew a tarnal site about injins and tar antulers, though he hadn't never been to college. But Uncle Ned he says it is best to git a good edducation first, and then thro' in injins and tar antulers accordin' to taste.

Managers

The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. Why Should Not Women Smoke?

The habit of smoking is usually acquired in defiance of the protests of the stomach, and persisted in in defiance of the smoker's female relatives. The weed ought to give its votary great enjoyment in order to repay him for the domestic trouble in which it often involves him. According to the smoker's view, it discharges its duties fully. In promoting good-fellowship, in soothing sorrow, in calming worry, in putting a man in good humor with the world, it has no rival. It is true that the habit is expensive, is sometimes unpleasant to other people, and is often injurious to the smoker's own health. But most personal pleasures are costly, and occasionally displeasing to the people who do not have them and hurtful to health. Smoking may not be naughty, but it is certainly nice. When men have to choose between society and cigars, they are apt to prefer the latter. Why smoking should be a masculine indulgence does not appear.

Spanish women are not supposed to be more sickly than their sisters of other nationalities, though perhaps not so pleasant to kiss. Tobacco does not seem to hurt them. Nay, if the argument was to be patterned after those of the ultra-prohibitionists of our little creature comforts, we might say—Spanish women smoke; they are famous for beauty, therefore smoking makes women beautiful. To continue the argumentum ad hominem, these are some reasons why smoking would be an especial advantage for women. Their lives are usually made up of an infinity of small cares. They would find that a thousand petty troubles would vanish in the cloud curling up from a good cigar. Thus, when the day's work is done, and husband and wife are sitting cosily together by the fire, a mutual smoke would bring them closer to each other, and would tend to create between them that hearty good-fellowship which is now sometimes wanting. Popular prejudice forbids a woman to puff a cigar on the street or anywhere in public, but individual prejudice keeps a great many from doing the same thing. It is doubtful whether any one has a right to pollute the air of a place set apart for public use. But in the privacy of home, or at the close of a dinner-party, why should not both sexes indulge in the universal narcotic stimulant? Would not the ordinary chatter of society be changed into something better under the influence of the grave kindliness that is born of a quiet smoke?

The Three Sieves.

"Oh, mamma!" cried little Bella, "I've heard such a story about Edith Howard! I didn't think she would be so naughty. One—"

"My dear," interrupted Mrs. Phillips, "before you continue we will see if your story will pass the three sieves."

"What does that mean, mamma?" inquired Bella.

"I will explain it. In the first place—Is it true?"

"I suppose so; I got it from Miss White, and she is a great friend of Edith's."

"And does she show her friendship by telling tales of her? In the next place, though you can prove it true—Is it kind?"

"I did not mean it to be unkind, mamma; but I am afraid it was. I should not like Edith to have spoken of me as I did of her."

"And—Is it necessary?"

"No, of course not, mamma; there was no need for me to mention it at all."

"Then put a bridle on your tongue, dear. If we cannot speak well of our friends, let us not speak of them at all."

The California, the Union, the Pacific and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, a very good substitue. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion, We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

A delicous table delicacy. They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are as superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. Made fresh every morning at Bunker's Stall, 74 and 75 California Market, California street entrance. Try them. 9-B

They Won't Stand It.

Max Adeler says: The fact announced in some of the papers, that a woman in Hoboken has two six-legged cats, does not excite me. This is the kind of news that a man can receive with calmness and we can all retain our composure, even, if cats shall make a general practice of accumulating legs, until every cat on earth is as well equipped in this respect as a centipede. But when they begin to acquire more voice it will be time for the country to rise. When they begin to retrench in legs and to expand in lungs, when they commence to sing further up the scale, and to introduce new varieties of yowls, when they set up a fog whistle as their standard, and then determine to beat it or bust, then there ought to be a popular earthquake, and there will be. The American people are a patient race; but there is a place where they draw a line. It is at abnormally vociferous cats.

Baby Wit.

In one of our Walnut street dry goods houses is employed a young man of diminutive stature and somewhat feminine appearance, although a tip-top salesman and clerk. One day, not long since, a little girl was sent to the store to make some purchases, and it fell to the lot of this young man to attend to her. She was a mere bunch of femininity, not able to talk plain. She asked if he had any "totten flannel." He replied that he had, and asked how much she wanted. "I don't know was the reply." Well, what do you want it for?" said the clerk. "Want to make papa a shirt." "Well, how big is your papa; is he as big as me?" "Big as you," said the little maiden, "I dess he is; he wouldn't be much of a papa, if he wasn't."

What's the Use?

What's the use of bending every faculty to money-getting—thinking of nothing else, toiling for nothing else—when you can't carry a single dollar with you, and have already more than enough to supply every reasonable want, though you should live to be a hundred years old! There is no note-shaving, nor mortgages, or stock-boards, or interest-bearing coupons whither you are going. The current coin of that realm is supposed to consist of manly attributes of character, nobility of soul, the thoughts and inclinations that culminate in good on earth, and make the world better for the possessor having lived in it.

A Plain Case.

An old chap, whose wife is as ugly as sin, was reading an elopement case which seemed to affect him. Said he, "I should be tempted to shoot a man if he was to run off with my wife." "Well," said a hearer, "a man ought to be shot if he run off with your wife!" Verdict for hearer.

Very Genial.

The Chicago Sun says:—

And now comes FIGARO, our San Francisco beauty, with a brand new dress on; an imported one at that. All right, honey, we hope your conduct of late has been exemplary as usual.

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-y

Jealousy.

P. H. McGowan, of the San Mateo Times, is jealous because King Kalakaua didn't visit "Sweet San Mateo's fruitful vale," as one of our most melifluous rhymsters who has a gift for that sort of thing has expressed it. He howls as follows: Blow, ye toadies blow! Kalakaua has arrived. His majesty of the Hawaiian Isles, is visiting us. A live king has been doing the Grand in San Francisco for the past week. His being a little off-colored doesn't make a particle of difference, it makes the event the more spicy. The people of San Francisco didn't have him all to themselves. He came down our way on Thursday. His royal eyes beamed out upon our burg from the special car in which he rode. Unheard of honor. He is said to have exclaimed, "What a beautiful place for the seat of government to be located!" Oh, how that exclamation will be treasured up. Prayers have been offered ever since for its consummation. The supplications are being made to the Supreme Court. An answer is expected soon. The anxious seat is a hard one to sit on. But this is entirely irrelevant. Kalakaua (we thing "Calico" would be much easier) leaves us to-day. He wends his way eastward to Washington. A special telegram from the Capitol informs us that the snobs are getting ready. The dressmakers and tailors have more than they can attend to. Grant has ordered a fresh invoice of "Havana's," Conkling is getting his gymnasium in order for a bout with the King, and "Gath" is preparing a ten-column interview, per special contract with the San Francisco Chronicle. Barnum is already in the field, and has on exhibition the nurse of the "King of the Cannibal Islands." Daly is writing a new society play founded upon some late events which transpired at Honolulu, in the Sandwich Islands, with King Kalakaua as the chief character. Who wouldn't be a king.

Luxurious Editorial Rooms.

The correspondent of the Boston Advertiser says:

The Figaro each day is an epitome of the most readable gossip. It seeks to be nothing more—and it fulfils its mission admirably. It is a sensational paper in a country of sensations. The Figaro is the best lodged, and perhaps one of the best organized newspapers in France. Its office in the Rue Drouot is a miniature palace, in which no appliance of comfort or convenience is wanting. It stands wedged in between the old houses of the street, a veritable gem of Renaissance architecture. You enter under its frescoed portal and find yourself in a vestibule that might for any difference in its arrangement be the entrance to an elegant private mansion. A magnificent stairway, half covered with growing plants and statues, ascends to the second story, where are the editorial rooms and the private office of M. de Villemessant, the presiding genius of the paper. And such editorial rooms! No barnlike makeshifts such as I have seen in America. Quiet little nooks for the editors, stuffed arm-chairs for the reporters, plate-glass, gilding, tapestries and paintings everywhere. And here, too, is the fencing-room, an elegant apartment hung with jute tapestries; it is an armory with as many swords as there are editors, and here each day from three to five o'clock a professor of fencing comes, and each editor has his lesson.

Our San Francisco newspaper proprietors must be horrified at the extravagance of this. Yet it pays, it pays, it pays.

Indian Wives.

Mrs. Livermore's blood boils and her spine rises when she comes to this part of her lecture: "Among the Brahmins, in southern India, when the husband takes a wife he binds around her neck the badge of ownership, as you bind your badge of ownership around the neck of your Spitzbergen dog. She cooks her husband's food, stands behind and serves him, and when he has finished his meal she eats what is left, if he leaves anything, and if not she gets along the best way she can."

A Worthy Judge.

A Council Bluffs lawyer ate peanuts in court and was fined $10 for contempt. The Judge remarked that he was determined to uphold the majesty of the law if it killed the entire peanut crop of the South.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS,
And drink their Rhenish hock."

which secures the combined advantages of higher finish, increased durability and diminished weight. This metal, after many years' trial under the Hoe and other Machines of the leading London and English and Scotch provincial DAILY PAPERS, has been found to be at least TWICE AS DURABLE as the ordinary type metal, and has gained it very universal preference. The great improvements they have introduced in their manufacture, enable them to supply Fonts of this superior metal without any increase of Price upon the ordinary quality.

The new type on which the FIGARO is printed is from the above foundry. Every article for a complete news or job printing office furnished at the lowest prices.

Amusements, Etc.

Opera House.

A lively first part, ending with "The Arizona Diamond Mines," Charley Rhoades in his famous banjo solos, and with the ever-popular Billy Emerson in "That Rascal Billy," Leopold and Geraldine in their great trapeze acts, Billy Rice, Billy Arlington, and J. F. Oberist in "The Rival Artists," and nearly the whole company in the ballet pantomime of "Christobelle," will afford amusement enough to all who visit the Opera House to-night.

California Theatre.

To-night W. J. Florence will take his farewell benefit and appear in the role of Myles Na Coppaleen in "The Colleen Bawn." Mr. Florence has purchased from Boucicault the exclusive right to perform this drama in the United States Miss Jennie Lee will play Elly O'Connor, Robert Pateman Danny Mann, and the cast is generally good At the matinee to-morrow and to-morrow night "Eileen Oge" will be played.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Charles Nickerson, Johnny Tuers, and Frank Mortimore made up a term hard to beat. Hughey Robinson nightly makes his local hits and Miss Mollie La Forrest, Miss Katie Zoe, Mlle. Blanche and many others appear in songs dances and pecialties.

Mercantile Library Hall.

The superb panorama entitled Risley's Mirror of England will remain on exhibition at this hall, but a short time longer. It is in itself a whole picture gallery of delightful landscapes and amusing illustrations of London life. There will be a matinee exhibition to-morrow. G. W. Jester, the "Man with the Talking Hand" will appear on Saturday afternoon and evening.

Wilson's Amphitheatre.

Messrs. Rockwell & Hurlburt, the celebrated horse tamers, are giving free exhibitions of their skill every afternoon and evening, at the Palace Amphitheatre, on New Montgomery street. Each evening Mr. Rockwell delivers a lecture on his system. The white horse Mazeppa is a wonderful illustration of what can be done by kindness, tact and firmness. This animal appears to be able to do anything but talk.

Platt's Hall.

W. Hepworth Dixon, the famous historical lecturer, has been engaged to deliver a course of five lectures at Platt's Hall, commencing on December 15th. The first will be "The German Empire." The titles of the other lectures are published on our first page.

COSMOPOLITAN BAL MASQUE.—The second of these balls is announced for Christmas Eve (Dec. 24th), at Horticultural Hall. All the best features of the last one will be retained, the Clodoch dances, the special French "choral" quadrilles, etc. In addition, 40 young ladies will give a grand "Marche des Amazones Californiennes" dressed in glittering plated armour, and led by a lady of surpassing beauty. There will also be French comic quadrilles by ladies only, a superior band, and all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of both masquers and spectators. Tickets will be the same price as before.

DASHAWAY HALL.—The Spotted Boy.—There is an exhibition at this hall at present which is well worth seeing. The spotted boy is by no means repulsive. His flesh is curiously variegated, like the skin of a pinto horse. The white portions are as fair as the skin of a white man, and the spots are chocolate color. The dwarf lady is much more mature than dwarfs generally are, and is as self-possessed as an adult of ordinary size. A boa constrictor, an an aconda, a series of stereoscopic views and several very intelligent monkeys make up a very good show.

Woodward's Gardens.

The Phoitte Troupe of elastic and grotesque dancers in their great act entitled "Ridiculonsities," grand orchestral concert and skating, at Woodward's on Saturday and Sunday. Don't fail to see them.

CITY GARDENS.—There will be a grand balloon ascension in the mammoth balloon Bismark by Herr Samwells, the German Aeronaut, on Sunday; in addition the Spanish acrobats, five in number, will do their daring feats 60 feet from the round; an afternoon concert and a ball in both Pavilions day and evening. Admission 25 cents.

Chiarini's Circus.

This grand troupe of equestrian and gymnastic performers will open at Wilson's Amphitheatre on December 20th.

Santa Claus

Is not a myth if Christmas candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. In fact, George Haas & Co., No. 20 Kearny street, has fac similes of Santa Claus (in Candy) that are really good enough to eat. His holiday stock of home-made candies and bon-bon boxes cannot be excelled anywhere, as a visit to his store will show. K

THE KING has left us, but Zacharias, the Jeweler, has not, nor does he intend to do so, while he has such a fine stock of jewelry on hand. You know where the place is, Kearny street, near Sacramento. K

Real Works of Art.

There is an immense difference between the dolls of twenty years ago, and those of to-day. The ancient doll was a misshapen monster with a dull expressionless face. Feldbusch & Co., No. 308 Battery street, have received for the coming holidays the most beautiful and varied collection of dolls ever seen. There are crying dolls, sleeping dolls, wide-awake, dolls with hair, and dolls bald-headed, and all as real as life. Toys of every description on hand—to the trade. Also retail Store No. 207 Montgomery street. T

A PERSIAN LOVE SONG.

Ah! sad are they who know not love,
But, far from passion's tears and smiles
Drift down a moonless sea, beyond
The silvery coasts of fairy isles.

And sadder they whose longing lips
Kiss empty air, and never touch
The dear warm mouth of those they love—
Waiting, wasting, suffering much.

But clear as amber, fine as musk,
Is life to those who, pilgrim-wise,
Move hand in hand from dawn to dusk,
Each morning nearer Paradise.

Oh, not for them shall angels pray;
They stand in everlasting light;
They walk in Allah's smile by day,
And nestle in his heart by night.

"The Big Dog."

The Sacramento Bee, which rejoices in a very lively local editor, who is modeling his style on that of the Detroit Times, has the following:

"I ain't no slouch; say, mister, do I look like a slouch?"

What this queer specimen of the genus homo meant by "slouch" is beyond our comprehension. It was vile slang, but fully in keeping with the man's exterior, and if the designation "slouch" indicated cleanliness, neatly combed hair, a white shirt or sobriety, he was certainly not entitled to the compliment, if such he considered it, and which he seemed anxious to have bestowed upon him by an assent from the coffee house proprietor whom he was addressing.

"Do you see them cars, mister?" he continued, pointing at the long lines of freight and passenger trains that obscured the Sacramento river from his view, "Well, them's Guv Stanford's private property, an' Guv Stanford ain't no slouch, either, you hear me. Them's Guv Stanford's private property, an' I'm the big dog with the brass collar. Mister, I'm as well acquainted with that locomotive over yonder as I am with Jim Seymour, that runs her, an' Jim ain't no slouch, either; but he ain't the big dog. I'm the big dog; if I ain't you can take my nose for a cow-catcher. I'm mostly peaceful; I'm purty near as peaceful as an engine with her fires all banked and her cylinders mashed, but my throttle works loose sometimes, an' if a freight car on a down grade with her brake chains broke is a patchin' circumstance to me I ain't the big dog with the brass collar, and I don't know a couplin' from a drivin' wheel. That's the kind o' drawhead I am. Just start me once, mister; chuck my valves wide open; send my indicator spinnin'; give me a clear track, an' if I don't make the rails hum I ain't no big dog no more. Why, mister, I can chew more steam and spit less than anything that runs on wheels. I can wrap around you like a hook; toss you quicker'n a sleeper can drop from a tressle. I'm the big dog with the brass collar; I'm a brakeman from the other side of Reno, an' if you don't roll out the fast freight I'll take off my headlight an' cow-catcher an' run over you. A red flag won't stop me, and there ain't no switches on my irons. Roll her out mister, I ain't a big dog for nothin', an' this roundhouse ain't my lay off, either."

The coffee-house proprietor was evidently familiar with the strange nomenclature of the "big dog," for he produced a bottle, and the self-named canine, sporting a brazen collar, departed after drinking, with a satisfied expression upon his kaleidoscopic countenance. It is hardly necessary to state that he did not pay for his drink, it would have been beneath the dignity of a big dog to have produced coin for anything he wanted very bad.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F, Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since 3-cj

Hats.

As a part of a woman's garb the new hats are unique. Their prototypes have existed among men's head coverings for several seasons, but nothing quite so eccentric has been seen for women's use for many a day. The modish hats are, of all shades of felt; have high crowns (like the quondam Alpine hat, without its dent) and rather wide brims. It is in the brims alone that one can be individual. They are turned up before, behind, on the sides, at the corners—wherever fancy prompts, in short. Velvet and repped silk, of shades contrasting with the felt, with short feathers of all kinds—ostrich, heron, cock, duck, peacock, partridge, robin and every other variety of wing—form the principal portion of the trimming. Inevitably, there is an abundance of jet interspersed, in the form of buckles, pins, sprays and fringes, while blue steel holds its own. But, as jet and steel are not happily adapted to every color, there is now and then a surcease of them. The brims of these hats are not wired; consequently they are so softly flexible that, while they are turned up on one side, they can be turned down upon the other, producing a singularly "rakish" effect. These hats have in fact too great a tendency in this direction, and require unusual taste and discretion in their use. The usual garniture is a binding of velvet, wide or narrow, as preferred, piped with repped silk; finger wide band, also of velvet, round the crown; a bunch of loops of the combined silk and velvet securing the brim against the crown—these, in turn, surmounted by such feathers as may be used, and the flowers and leaves, if any are employed, tucked in with the rest, forming a general conglomerate. Flowers are rather less in favor than usual just now, though it may be only because everybody is wearing felt; and felt and flowers are naturally incongruous. Such flowers as are worn, however, are mainly of a deep rich red—a color, by the bye, especially fashionable this season.

Bonnets do not differ essentially from those of last year, except in being rather larger. They have the same irregular shapes and superfluous decoration as before, but are chiefly of darker tints; even reception and opera hats being black or nearly so, picked out with white or some very pale contrasting hue.

The Dictionary Modernized.

Honesty—A lost art.

Murder—An obsolete term, once used by the ancients to indicate the transmigration of souls.

Embezzlement—Spelt t-h-e-f-t in the dark ages, but altered to suit panic prices, and means wealth, happiness, joy, and singing all day long.

Divorce—A patented machine for severing two limbs at a time. A handy article to have in the house when mortification sets in. Territory for sale.

Children—An order of animals known and divided into various species, viz: the brat species, the angel species, the duck species, the cub species, the kid species, the rooster species, and the whole species.

Love—A windmill that shifts as often as the wind. Frequently utilized to draw water and spank babies.

Happiness—A flea on the back of a dog that has lost its front teeth.

Fame—A counterfeit bill on the top of a greased pole, which few obtain, and when obtained is found to be not worth the trouble.

Formula of divorce used by a negro justice in Desha County, Arkansas: "As I jined you, so I bust you sunder. So go, you niggers. You go."

The California, the Union, the Pacific and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, a very good substitue. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion, We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles. *

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are as superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and perk mixed, as anything can be imagined. Miss Neilson.

Miss Neilson has lost her popularity, and the Eastern papers are pitching into her fiercely. The Philadelphia All Day City Item of the 3d says:

If ever a theatre was completely "under a cloud," it is the Arch. After offering Miss Neilson terms that prevented the theatre from making money, even if the audiences were of the largest kind, the enterprise is suddenly nipped in the bud by—what?

Report states that Miss Neilson had been suddenly attacked by a severe cold. Can this be so? If the cold was sufficiently severe to prevent her acting last night, she can hardly have recovered sufficiently to act this evening.

Was it not a glimpse of the Arch's box-sheet that made the unhappy Neilson so ill? There was a rumor last evening to the effect that the number of seats engaged by Miss Neilson's admirers was about thirty during the day. If this be true, we are not surprised at the late Mrs. Lee's illness.

Miss Neilson's engagement throughout the United States this time will be failures. What may be termed "the Neilson fever" is over, and the lady's separation from her husband is a severe blow to her business interests, for Mr. Lee was an indefatigable manager and left nothing done to make his wife's engagements brilliant successes. And by tact and indomitable perseverance he succeeded in doing so. Why, then, has Miss Neilson come to the United States without him? The satisfaction of having a husband must be great to any woman, but to an actress the satisfaction of having a first-class business manager must be greater.

We consider this confoundedly impertinent of the Item. It had better mind its own business.

American Geography.

It is well known that the English are wonderfully ignorant of American geography, but it is not often that they confess it. Lord Roseberg, in a recent speech in London, said that "he could walk up to a map in the dark and put his finger on the site of Cicero's villa, but if any one asked him where San Francisco was he should have to think twice." This remark recalls to the table-talk editor of the Gentleman's Magazine a similar remark of Mr. Cobden. "These men," said Cobden, speaking of English Embassadors, and of the necessity of turning them into commercial travelers—"these men know where the Ilissus is; but they know nothing of the Mississippi." (It was twenty years ago). "Yet the Mississippi could float all the navies of Europe upon its bosom, and it took me half a day to find the Ilissus when I was in Athens, and then I only found the bed of the river. Half a dozen washerwomen had dammed up the Ilissus to wash their clothes."

The Sun's Blessing.

Sleepless people—and there are many in America—should court the sun. The very worst soporific is laudanum, and the very best, sunshine. Therefore it is very plain that poor sleepers should pass as many hours in the sunshine, and as few in the shade as possible. Many women are martyrs, yet they do not know it. They shut the sunshine out of their houses and hearts, they wear veils, they carry parasols, and they do all possible to keep off the subtlest and yet most potent influence which is to give them strength and beauty and cheerfulness. Is it not time to change all this, and get color and roses in our pale cheeks, strength in our weak backs, and courage into our timid souls? The women of America are pale and delicate; they may be blooming and strong, and the sunlight will be a potent influence in their transformation. Will they not try it a year or two, and oblige thousands of admirers?

Peculiar Advantage.

"You haven't put on a clean shirt to-day," said a captain to his corporal; "you never saw me without a clean shirt on parade, when I was corporal." (He loved to speak of the immense difference between his present situation as captain, and that from which he had risen as corporal.) "True, your honor; but then your honor's mother was a washerwoman."

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

A delicous table delicacy. They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are as superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. Made fresh every morning at Bunker's Stall, 74 and 75 California Market, California street entrance. Try them. 9-B

THE GREAT FOUR-MILE RACE.

SPEED RECORD.

Everybody is going to the great race on Saturday, and as everybody will want to talk "horse," "time," "record," etc., and will want to have the figures at his tongue's end, we have compiled the following speed record especially for the readers of FIGARO, that they may go on the track well posted in facts, dates and figures, and be able to bet their money understandingly. The table is up to date, and includes the many triumphs made on the turf at the various meetings this year:

FIGARO'S RUNNING RECORD

Giving the fastest time on record from a half-mile dash up to four-mile heats.

½ mile, Olitipa, by Leamington, 2 years, 97 pounds, time 47½, Saratoga, 1874.

¾ mile, Madge, by Australian, 3 years, 87 pounds, time 1:15½, Saratoga, 1874.

1 mile, Alarm, by Eclipse, 3 years, 90 pounds, time 1:42½, Saratoga, 1872.

1 mile, Springbok (second heat), by Australian, 4 years, 108 pounds, time 1:42½, Utica, 1874.

1 mile, Gray Planet, by Planet, 5 years, 110 pounds, time 1:42½, Saratoga, 1874.

[Longfellow was said to have run the first mile in the cup race at Saratoga in 1871 in 1:40, and Tom Bowlin was timed a mile, at the Lexington Spring races in 1:41½—not official.]

1¼ miles, Fadladeen, by War Dance, aged, 111 pounds, time 1:56, Saratoga, 1874.

1¼ miles, Picolo by Concord, 3 years, 83 pounds, time 1:56, Saratoga, 1874.

1¼ miles, Frogtown, by Bonnie Scotland, 4 years, 104 pounds, time 2:09½, Lexington, 1872.

1½ miles, Tom Bowlin, by Lexington, 4 years, 104 pounds, time 2:34½, Lexington, 1874.

1½ miles, Reform, by Leamington, 3 years, 83 pounds, time 3:05½, Saratoga, 1874.

[Tom Bowlin was timed at the Lexington Spring races 1¾ miles in 3:00¾—not official.]

2 miles, True Blue, by Lexington, 4 years, 108 pounds, time 3:32½, Saratoga, 1873.

2 miles, Katie Pease, by Planet, 4 years, 105 pounds, time 3:32½, Buffalo, 1874.

[Tom Bowlin was timed at the Lexington Spring races 2 miles in 3:27¾—not official.]

2¼ miles, Harry Bassett, by Lexington, 4 years, 108 pounds, time 3:59, Saratoga, 1872.

2¼ miles, Katie Pease, by Planet, 4 years, 105 pounds, time 4:28½, Buffalo, 1874.

2¾ miles, Hubbard, by Planet, 4 years, 108 pounds, time 4:58½, Saratoga, 1873.

3 miles, Norfolk, by Lexington, 4 years, 100 pounds, time 5:27½, 5:29½, heats, California, 1865.

4 miles, Fellowcraft, by Australian, 6 years, 108 pounds, time 7:19½, Saratoga, 1874.

4 miles, Lexington, by Boston, 5 years, 103 pounds, time 7:19½, New Orleans, 1855.

An Indignant Judge.

An Arkansas Judge had his law office close to a certain doctor's—in fact they were separated only by a plank partition with a door in it; the Judge was at his table, busy with briefs and bills in chancery. The doctor was writing a letter, and, pausing at the word enconomical, called out, "Judge, isn't e-q-u-i the way to spell equinomical?" "Yes, I think it is," said the Judge: "but here's Webster's dictionary; I can soon tell." He opens it with a slam; the Judge lays his specs on the table, and rising slowly, breaks forth: "Well, sir, I've always been a Daniel Webster man, and I voted for him for President; but any man that will write as big a dictionary as this, and not put as common a word as equinomical in it, can't have my vote for anything hereafter."

Strong Inducement.

The Decatur Republican is responsible for the following: A well-dressed man attracted considerable attention the other day, by sitting upon the edge of the sidewalk for some time, with his head between his hands, as if in deep meditation. At last a sympathetic stranger approached him, and said: "Friend, you seem to be in trouble; can I assist you in any way?" The man sprang to his feet, and taking off his hat, parted his hair carefully, and said: "Stranger, do you see that cut? My wife did it this morning with a flatiron, and then sent me down town to buy her a new bonnet. And I have been sitting here for an hour, trying to decide whether I will buy one or not; and blame me stranger, if I haven't about decided to get it."

A Conscientious Report.

"How many regular, steady boarders are there in your house?" asked a census-taker of a servant girl. "There's fifteen in all, sir; but not mor'n four of 'em is steady persons, sir."

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Conforming with the Times.

Messrs. Fox & Vincent, who are the Bonifaces of the old established and popular saloon, 133 Montgomery street, opposite the Occidental Hotel, have reduced the price of their beverages to the popular rates. The same first-quality grades of liquors which have given this symposium its celebraty, will be sold hereafter at popular prices, instead of 25 cents, as formerly 10 c

Charlotte Cushman in New York.

Miss Charlotte Cushman, who is playing "Meg Merriles" at Booth's Theatre, New York, has aroused Mr. William Winter, of the Tribune, into the following outburst:

"It is difficult to write calmly of a personage so grand and thrilling. It would be idle to write the worn words of description or the faded phrases of compliment. Miss Cushman acted Meg Merriles upon this occasion in such a way as to make us forget that we had seen it before, and feel only that we were now seeing it for the first time. In the glory of her youth she never was more powerful than when, upon this memorable night, she burst into the gloomy wood and stood transfigured before us—a living monument of frenzied suspense and regal misery. Her figure towered; her very soul seemed to dilate; years of suffering were written on her countenance; a world of love and of prophetic hope blazed from her eyes, every muscle of her body seemed hardened into marble, by the tremendous tension of excitement under which she leapt into the character; her presence was literally inspired, and, when she spoke, the nameless quality of anguish and pathos in her voice thrilled every chord of every heart in the vast assemblage that saw this wonder and heard this music. Genius in the art of acting can do no more than was ever done by Charlotte Cushman in that supreme moment. At the end of the scene the stormy applause of a multitude excited beyond all limits of discretion almost shook the building—till the actress came back upon the stage, to look one moment upon her triumph, and calm with her smile this raging sea of admiration. In a very long experience of such matters we have seen no effect parallel with this."

Proof Positive.

Two Irish laborers, a Romanist and a Protestant, held the following colloquy: 'An' d'ye mane to tell me that the Catholic is the only thrue religion?" "Faith an' I do. D'ye believe in the Episthles of the Apostle Paul?" "Of coorse." "Arrah, thin, I have ye sure. D'ye mind the Episthle of Paul to the Romans? An' was ye iver after hearing of inny Episthle to the Protestants?"

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Amusements, Etc.

Maguire's New Theatre.

It is a long time since so pleasant a bit of Irish comedy acting has been presented in this city as was enjoyed last night at this house. J. A. Herne's Mickey Free is one of the best Irish characterizations ever seen on any stage. In the scene where he appeared as Aunt McCann, at Sir George Dashwood's party, he made the audience fairly roar with laughter. The dramatization of "Charles O'Malley" is a very clever one, the scenes are effectively arranged, and the individuality of the characters is well preserved. Thomas Whiffen gave a gentlemanly and pleasant impersonation of the title role, Miss Sydney Cowell acted the part of Mary in a charmingly piquante manner, George Giddens was very amusing as the rattle-brained Frank Weber, J. S. Lindsay as Capt. Power was good, Miss Blanche Galton played the role of Lucy Dashwood very pleasantly, and the play, as a whole, was quite a success. There is genuine fun in Herne's Mickey Free, and none should miss the present opportunity of witnessing real Irish comedy. "Charles O'Malley" will be played every evening this week. On Saturday J. A. Herne will take his benefit.

California Theatre.

"La Femme de Feu," with Mrs. Agnes Booth as Diane Berard, has proved quite popular. It will be played this evening for the last time. To-morrow night Mrs. Booth will take her farewell benefit and appear as Constance in Shakspeare's play of "King John;" for this occasion J. B. Booth will make his first appearance in many years and play the title role. Joseph Wheelock will undertake the role of Falconbridge.

Opera House.

Billy Emerson and his band of merry men appear in a great programme of acts, songs and specialties. Harry Sefton and Miss Jessie Danvers in "The Spider and the Fly," and Lottie and Frank in their wonderful act entitled "The Leap for Life." To-morrow evening Lottie, Frank, and Katie will take their farewell benefit. No gymnasts have ever achieved equal popularity here, and they will certainly have, as they richly deserve, a splendid house.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Frank Mortimore, Harry Devoy and John Kelly in "Gally the Troubadour," John Kelly, Hughey Robinson and Frank Mortimore in "Struck Oil," Mlle. Blanche in ballads, Hughey Robinson in local hits, and many other attractive performances are presented at this house.

Platt's Hall.

There was a capital attendance at this hall last night when Alfred Wilkie, the favorite tenor was the recipient of a complimentary benefit, prior to his departure for Europe. An excellent programme was performed. The beneficiary was in splendid voice, and sang "The MacGregor's Gathering," "Beware," and other songs in a style which drew great applause, Miss Susan Galton delighted the audience with "The Skylark," and "Tripping Through the Meadow," S. H. Marsh and Henry Marsh played a harp and piano duet, Miss Lena Devine sang a romanza by Wallace, and altogether a most satisfactory programme was given. Mr. Wilkie took leave of the public in a few well chosen sentences, expressing the hope that in the course of a couple of years he would again appear before them.

Woodward's Gardens.

By request, Prof. Miller and Capt. Martin will repeat their excellent fencing exhibition on Saturday and Sunday. Frank Clifton, the only double pirouette bar performer, and that giant of strength, the Australian Hercules, will appear with the new troupe. The grand orchestral concert on Sunday, rain or shine.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-y

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

Dr. Doherty.

Has devoted his study more particularly to chronic and specific practic, and as such is now the most successful of any Physician in San Francisco. Office, 519 Sacramento street, corner of Leidesdorff, a few doors below the What Cheer House. T

The rider of Thad Stevens is getting in condition by eating Eastern oysters and fresh fish for brain food, fine steaks and eggs for nerve and muscle, at Frank Johnson's, corner Clay and Leidesdorff streets.

Medical Wonder

Cures rheumatism, billious pains, neuralgia,

THE EVERY-DAY DARLING.

She is neither a beauty nor genius,
And no one would call her wise;
In a crowd of other women
She would draw no stranger's eyes:
Even we who love her are puzzled
To say where her preciousness lies;
She is just an every-day darling;
In that her preciousness lies.

She is sorry when others are sorry,
So sweetly, one likes to be sad;
And if people around her are merry,
She is almost gladder than glad.
Her sympathy is the swiftest,
The truest a heart ever had;
She is just an every-day darling,
The dearest that hearts ever had.

Her hands are so white and little,
It seems as if it were wrong
They should ever work for a moment,
And yet they are quick and strong;
If any dear one needs helping,
She will work the whole day long,
The precious every-day darling,
Every day and all day long.

She is loyal as knights were loyal,
In the days when no knight lied,
And for sake of love or of honor,
If it need be, a true knight died;
But she dreams not she is braver
Than the woman by her side,
This precious every-day darling,
Who makes sunshine at our side.

Ah, envy her, Beauty and Genius,
And women the world calls wise;
The utmost of all your triumphs
Would be empty in her eyes.
To love and be loved is her kingdom;
In this her happiness lies.
God bless her, the every-day darling!
In this her preciousness lies.

Feminine Vagaries.

If to her share some female errors fall,
Look on her face, and you'll forget them all.

Why was Ruth very rude to Boaz? Because she pulled his ears and trod on his corn.

A woman's vanity is not of the sort that begets patriotism. The women of Berlin still follow the Paris fashions.

Miss Cook, of Kentucky, has got a bird for her hat. She shot a genuine bald eagle with an old army pistol last week.

Twenty-one girls of Kenosha, Wisconsin, have "Resolved, that if the young men won't come and see us, we will go and see them."

It isn't considered good manners anywhere, except in Chicago, for a lady to sit with her feet on a chair and spit out of a third-story window.

Garters with monogram clasps are now all the fashion with pretty girls. The style is said to be convenient and elegant, and we hope to see more of it.

How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a man's wife draw the bed-clothes over her head and declare that she won't build a fire if she dies for it.

When a lady goes into a Chicago shoe store and asks for gaiters, the clerk reaches out for the box labelled "7s" and then goes up until he secures her fit.

Our friend Spriggins has been subjected to severe social criticism for beating his wife—till it was explained that he was in the habit of beating her in euchre.

A lady wants to know what is the meaning of "ante" and "pass the buck?" Her matrimonial companion uses it in his dreams, and she is afraid it indicates typhoid fever.

An Illinois girl drugged her father and mother the other night when she expected her lover, and it was forty-eight hours before the doctor could bring the old folks out of it.

The season is fast approaching when the married man pulls his head out from under the bed-clothes in the morning and says: "Come, Mariar, it's time you got up and built the fire."

Girls, as you value your lives, don't get up and get breakfast in the mornings. A young lady attempted it one day last week, and was burned to death. Show this to your mammas.

A Cincinnati young man sent a note to his girl, asking at what time he should call, and received in return the following brief billet-doux:—

DEER JON—Comet afpastate. MARY.

A very pretty garment for house wear is the new fashioned French dress apron. It is made of any colored silk with a ruffle (kilt plaited) of Swiss muslin, about five or six inches wide. The ends form a sash behind.

Worries.

By worries we mean evils in anticipation; those fears, vexations, irritations and dangers which haunt the mind, unsettled and disturbed, out of its ordinary routine, though it is so far at ease in present circumstances, and has so little ground in positive fact for its forebodings, that it has to call in fancy to swell vague apprehension into shape and consistency. Misfortune is not a worry, nor yet is a well-grounded anxiety. Worries are possibly impending troubles and annoyances magnified into such large dimensions as not seldom to cause more uneasiness as mere creatures of the imagination than they would do if converted into fact. We know while we brood over them and dilate upon them that we ought to combat them, that we are exaggerating trifles into things of importance; we are conscious of a fevered, fretful fancy, and that our fears are of the nature of phantoms. The real troubles of life, experience tells us, are facts equally patent in all times of the day, in all weathers, in every state of health. We may feel them more at one time that at another, but they never lose their character to the understanding. We are aware, on the contrary, that worry expands and dwindles. Awake at midnight, it is a terror; at noonday a bugbear to be smiled at, set aside, overcome, but none the less is its sway powerful at its own time and hour.

An Infallible Test.

The new play by MM. Meilhac and Halevy at the Varieties, "La Ingenue," is comparatively a failure, though Celine Chaumont and Dupuis are delightful therein, as usual. Too cynical in tone, and resembling too closely "The Petite Marquise," by the same authors, it has been but coldly received, and will probably not enjoy a very protracted existence. One speech therein is rather clever. The hero of the piece, a naughty young nobleman, has disguised himself as a tutor, in order to gain access to the house of a married lady with whom he is in love; whereupon the ingenue begins to ask him puzzling questions, and finally demands "What king of France succeeded Louis XII.?" "Louis XIII., of course," answers the disguised gentleman. "Ah!" she cries, "I have caught you now. You are no tutor; you must be a society man; you are so ignorant!"

A Nice Sort of Woman.

An exchange says: "The Princess of Wales is wonderfully popular in England, and few are those who object to her endearing title, 'England's Darling.' Her beauty, to eyes that see her unobstructed by any glamour of intense royalty, is really not extreme, and seems past its most brilliant prime. It is the sweet graciousness of her manner that endears her to the popular heart; the gentleness of nature that causes her to bow with pleasant smiles to gazing crowds.

The California, the Union, the Pacific and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, a very good substitue. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. IF ANY MAN CAN
JOHN BOLLMAN

Can, and Does, Sell, in spite of a legion of long-tailed Celestials and their white friends, PURE HAVANA CIGARS FOR FIVE CENTS APIECE, or THIRTY DOLLARS PER THOUSAND. They are called

Los Brillantes,

And, judging by the daily increasing demand for them, they will in time outsell any other brands of cigars. Competition, of course, will do all it can to retard and stop their sale, and therefore we would earnestly request the generous public to see for itself and first give them a fair trial, are condemning them. A meritorious article may be cheap as well, and our maxim has been and always will be, to sell a first rate article at the lowest PRICE POSSIBLE. These cigars as well as our celebrated RUSSIAN CIGARITOS are sold in all the principal cigar stores in this city and adjoining towns, or the factory, 409 WASHINGTON STREET, CORNER BATTERY.

MONDAY.....DECEMBER 14

Mr. J. S. Clarke.

All the New York papers have given a warm greeting to Mr. Clarke, the Tribune leading the column with characteristic strength, justice and elegance.

Mr. Clarke has good reason to be proud of the praise lavished upon him. Mr. Winter, of the Tribune says, in a long, and admirable criticism:

"Mr. Clarke was always a brilliant actor and an absorbingly comical person. His born faculty for acting has been cultivated with really scientific thoroughness. He has learned his powers, and he has learned how to use them—two results as certain as the combinations of the wisest chemistry. There is not a button on his coat that does not seem to bear its part in the artistic picture which he creates before our laughing eyes. His very back is eloquent of mirth, and deeper than mirth—of character. His countenance, now wooden as a painted doll's, becomes with the suddenness of light surcharged with comic apprehension and brilliant drollery. Each inflection of his voice seems to bring out a new shade of meaning, and he can thus pile one funny effect upon another till a perfect climax of humorous and eccentric situation and significance makes his auditors roar with inextinguishable laughter.

"No actor could get more meaning out of the keen half-lines of the practical farce writer. He makes a monosyllable crackle: and last night he lit a genuine conflagration of wit."

The Clerical Buffoon.

Rev. Talmage is receiving thrusts right and left for his ridiculous tirades against theatres. Among others Stuart Robson, the comedian, has written him a letter, which closes as follows: "I do not propose to make an elaborate defence of the church-like charges of you and your kind, but to express my surprise that at a time like the present, when many of the most prominent people of the pulpit are busy in defending themselves from well-sustained accusations of theft, murder, seduction and baby-burning, an eminent preacher can be found who thinks it a fitting opportunity to publicly assail the stage and its followers."

Just Like Beecher.

In his prayer meeting talk Nov. 27th Rev. H. W. Beecher said, according to the Brooklyn papers:

"A man may find himself with holes in his boots, without money to pay his rent or buy coal or bread, and with no work or prospect of any; but if he could trust in God all would be well. 'Ah,' say some, 'but he might perhaps starve to death.' Well, glory be to God! that would be the best of all."

Glory be to God! it would be the best of all if Beecher would starve to death. This is alas! the most unlikely thing in the world. He may die of dyspepsia or gout in the stomach.

Inside and Outside.

Parent (whose daughter has a weakness for an artist)—"I hear you take walks with that picture-making fellow. Have no more to say to him! A smart fellow, with scarcely a coat to his back!" Smart grandson—"Oh, come now, grandpa; he's not much worse than you in that respect, for it was only yesterday I heard the doctor say you hadn't any coat to your stomach!"

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P. M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. Reference given if required. H

Medical Wonder.

The great cure for rheumatic and other pains,

THIS.

There are some fussy people who always appear to be busy. They acquire a reputation for activity, and yet they don't accomplish much. They run to and fro, but do nothing in particular. If at the close of the day they were to sit down and ask, "What have I accomplished?" they would have to answer: "Nothing, or nearly nothing." Going into the office of a man of a class the antithesis of that which we have just described, you find him lounging easily in his chair, smoking a cigar and looking as if he had not a care in the world. If you are one of the fussy, fly-about men, you say to yourself, "That fellow has an easy time of it." You think he is perfectly at leisure, and gabble away about the events of the day. You are quite mistaken; the man is at work. He is doing what you never do; he is arranging his business in his head. He is thinking, "I have to see Jones at two o'clock, Brown at half-past three, and Robinson at four. I must write three letters, and see those men. I must economize my time." He wishes you at the devil because you are interrupting him, but he has so trained himself as to go on with his thinking and answer yes and no to a noisy bore who bothers him. He will get through all his business comfortably and without effort. He thinks. He is never flurried and flustered. If he is very busy, and you ask him, "Are you busy?" he says "yes; call in again—shall be glad to see you." If he does not find a man in his office he does not go rushing all over San Francisco to find him, but either waits a few minutes for him or leaves a note on his desk making an appointment with him. There is an immense amount of pretense in the "business" that is going on. So much hurrying and bustling about does not accomplish much, so much talk is wasted. People don't use the monosyllables "yes" and "no" enough. They can be used civilly enough, and in a pleasant tone of voice. A canvasser enters your office while you are busy. "May I get your subscription for a new work, profusely illustrated?" etc., etc. You turn round pleasantly and say "No," and go on with your work, whether it is thinking or writing. If the canvasser persists you take up a pen and begin to write; if he won't go, you say, "I am busy." You can be a little decided in your tone this time, and you will probably start him off. Do your thinking pleasantly. Get your brain in good order before you begin to exercise it in consideration of any important matter. Above all things don't move in any direction until have you thought what you are going for. By observing these simple rules a great deal more work can be accomplished than is at present. One thing more: attend to your own business and let others attend to theirs.

Hospitality.

It isn't pleasant after you have had dinner with a friend at a restaurant to over hear him wrangling with a friend about the price charged for it. King Kalakaua has left us but a few days, and his quondam hosts are already counting on their fingers how much the bill for his entertaiment comes to, and some of the newspapers are making a noise about it sufficient to reach across the continent. What a pity it is that these things can't be done in a gentlemanly manner. The average San Franciscan is hospitable in the matter of drinks, but he doesn't know enough to invite a man to dinner and make it pleasant for him. This is an art yet to be acquired.

Wilson's Amphitheatre.

Messrs. Rockwell & Hurlburt, the celebrated horse tamers, are giving free exhibitions of their skill every afternoon and evening, at the Palace Amphitheatre, on New Montgomery street. Each evening Mr. Rockwell delivers a lecture on his system. The white horse Mazeppa is a wonderful illustration of what can be done by kindness, tact and firmness: This animal appears to be able to do anything but talk.

The California, the Union, the Pacific and Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, a very good substitue. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion, We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles. *

Platt's Hall.

W. Hepworth Dixon, the famous historical lecturer, has been engaged to deliver a course of five lectures at Platt's Hall, commencing on December 15th. The first will be "The German Empire." The titles of the other lectures are published on our first page.

Infant Prodigies in France.

France is on the eve of putting an end to the production of infant prodigies, who are in connection with the professions of acrobats, sweeps, ballad singers, organ-grinders and beggars, a fraternity counting in France 5,378 members. The infants of this troupe know neither childhood, home, instruction, nor religion. Some come from Italy, but the majority are French, formed by joint stock companies or commission agents. A young sweep will frequently earn about 300 francs for his employer during the season, receiving fifty as his share. Little girls are also employed, and made up as boys, clothed in rags and turned out to beg. On an average twelve young children are stolen every year, and their limbs cruelly tortured to become qualified as tumblers. Seventy-five per cent of these die during the process. Hereafter every child under 16 years of age will not be allowed to astonish the natives, and the hirers of young talent will be punished. Beggars must be provided with permits, detailing their origin and establishing identity.

A Sensitive Boy.

This is what she sent the schoolmaster about him:

Deer Sir—My little boy is looking so bad and he dont complane of bein sick I am afred tu large boys plays so ruf with him will pleese see that they dont stand him on his hed and dont let them be ruf with him he cride all nite with his hed i cant git him to enay of them hirts him he wont tell me enay thing they doe to him will you pleese lit him play with the littlegireles as he is so small you can see yourself that his eye looks so bad and I am onknessy about him pleese knotise and take caer of him he is so yung yours truley.

Capital Stock, $500,000

If You Want a Piano, Buy at Headquarters, and don't be fooled into buying advertised worthless trash. Buy an ANTISELL PIANO-FORTE, and you have the best Piano made, and indorsed by hundreds of our leading artists and musicians throughout California. We sell at manufacturers' prices, and having a large capital and business are enabled to undersell agents who are only middlemen. Agents have to pay high prices to cover their long credits, and usually make the enormous profits of from $100 to $500. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. We have just received from our factory a fine assortment that we offer at a small advance, either for cash or instalments, instead of renting. They are overstrung bass Agraffes, French action, etc., possessing every improvement recognized by people of cultivated musical taste, and the grand result is that for power, sweetness, brilliancy, and singing quality of tone, evenness throughout the entire scale, delicacy and elasticity of touch, strength, durability, beauty and finish, the ANTISELL PIANO stands unequalled.

N. B.—We sold our miscellaneous stock at auction, which consisted of Steinway & Son, Chickering, and Decker Brothers, as it don't pay to keep those makes, we find the demand so limited.

Opera House.

It is the same old story, "standing room only after eight o'clock." This is not to be wondered at, when it is understood that the entertainment is the best of its kind in the United States. To-night, George Voges, the favorite tenor, will commence an engagement, and will sing "Don't be Angry with me Darling," in the first part. This portion of the entertainment will terminate with the ever-popular "Carry the News to Mary," by Billy Emerson and his splendid band of Minstrels. This will be followed by a screaming act by Billy Rice and Billy Arlington, entitled "The Arrival of Bolivar," Linden in burlesque ballads, George Voges in ballads, Ben Cotton, Billy Rice and Billy Arlington, in the "Three Doves;" Charley Rhoades in banjo solos; Billy Emerson in his new and characteristic specialty entitled "Muldoon, the Solid Man;" the dramatic sketch entitled "Creatures of Impulse," and the graceful and bewildering feats on the trapeze of the incomparable Leopold and Geraldine.

California Theatre.

To-night after an absence of ten months, John McCullough, San Francisco's favorite actor and worthy manager will make his reappearance. He will play Virginius, in Sheridan Knowles' tragedy of that name, and will be admirably supported by Barton Hill as Icilius, Henry Edwards as Dentatus, Miss Bella Pateman as Virginia, Mrs. Sophie Edwin as Servia, T. W. Keene as Appius Claudius, John Wilson as Numitorius, Nelson Decker as Lucius, and others as Roman citizens of high and low degree. There will be an immense audience to welcome Mr. McCullough back from his highly successful tour through the Eastern States. To-morrow night Mr. McCullough will appear in his great role of Richelieu.

Platt's Hall.

To-morrow night the eminent litterateur and lecturer, Hepworth Dixon, will make his first appearance before the public of San Francisco and will deliver a lecture on "The German Empire." The fact that during the late trouble Mr. Dixon fought the battles of the United States Government in England with his pen, at a time when to do so was to be unpopular, will ensure him a friendly reception here.

Wilson's Amphitheatre.

Rockwell & Hurlburt's free exhibitions of horses trained by their system draw immense crowds every afternoon and evening. The "star" Mazeppa is one of the best trained horses in the world, and delights the spectators by the variety of actions he performs at the word of command. He will show his teeth, put back his ears, wag his ear (this would astonish Lord Dundreary), lift up the foot his trainer mentions, and in fact appears to understand all that is said to him. The applications for admission to the classes are very numerous.

COSMOPOLITAN BAL MASQUE.—The second of these balls is announced for Christmas Eve (Dec. 24th), at Horticultural Hall. All the best features of the last one will be retained, the Clodoch dances, the special French "choral" quadrilles, etc. In addition, 40 young ladies will give a grand "Marche des Amazones Californiennes" dressed in glittering plated armour, and led by a lady of surpassing beauty. There will also be French comic quadrilles by ladies only, a superior band, and all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of both masquers and spectators. Tickets will be the same price as before.

Notes.

Mr W. J. Florence, in closing his engagement at the California Theatre on Saturday night, made a few parting remarks, and Henry Edwards in a little speech assured the audience that the departure of Mr Florence was as much regretted by his professional associates as by the public. Mr. Florence for his part is so delighted with San Francisco that he talks of building a theatre here.

On Friday Mr. McCullough will appear in the character of Othello, in which he stands without a rival.

During the McCullough season at the California Theatre, Otway's "Venice Preserved" will be presented.

The exhibition of Risley's Panorama of England will re-open at Mercantile Library Hall on the 21st. This magnificent series of landscape paintings and views of London has been thoroughly endorsed by the San Francisco public.

It has been incorrectly stated in some of the newspapers that the Warm Spring Indians have returned to their hunting grounds. Jack Hudson, the guide counsellor and friend of the baby elephant, has taken these conquerors of the Modocs to Europe, where they will doubtless cause a sensation.

Ladies Oyster Parlors.

The cosiest, neatest and most respectable Ladies Oyster and Refreshment Rooms on the Pacific Coast are to be found at the Southern Pacific Oyster and Refreshment Rooms, Summer street, between California and Pine, below Kearny. All Ladies who have visited them are charmed with their elegance and simplicity, and pronounce them "So Nice."

Real Works of Art.

There is an immense difference between the dolls of twenty years ago, and those of to-day. The ancient doll was a misshapen monster with a dull expressionless face. Feldbusch & Co., No. 308 Battery street, have received for the coming holidays the finest and most beautiful and varied collection of dolls ever seen. There are crying dolls, sleeping dolls, and dolls wide-awake, dolls with hair, and dolls bald-headed, and all as real as life. Toys of every description on hand—to the trade. MY GIRL.

[The papers in the interior towns of California don't publish much original poetry. Whenever we come across anything good we are always pleased to republish it in FIGARO. The verses which follow, written for the Solano Republican and printed without the author's name, are above the average.]

Was Sierra so proud of its forests,
Or crown of its pearl?
Was a miser so rich in his treasure
As I in my girl?

Was ever a mother so blessed
And happy as I?
My girl is a gem to my life,
As stars to the sky.

She is lying at rest on my bosom,
A flower asleep;
God grant that her blue eyes may open,
Yet never to weep.

I pray that no anguish may furrow
The brow of my girl,
Nor that long years of sorrow may silver
This delicate curl.

But thus should God grant to my darling
A life without pain,
He would close these dear eyes to the sunshine
Nor open again.

God knows that to live she must suffer
And wander astray;
But He missions the angels to watch her
The long weary way.

Smooth be the path that they walk in,
These little white feet;
May they grow into strength and perfection
If rough ones they meet.

May charity flow from these fingers
Now folded at rest;
May they weave in life's wonderful fabric,
Threads, strongest and best.

A heart all untried has my darling,
A pure heart, I know,
God grant that angels will help her
In keeping it so.

And thus, at the shrine of my treasure,
I wait with a prayer,
While my hopes go out to the future,
For my answer is there.

A Blow at Woman's Rights.

Married soldiers are not held in high esteem, it appears, in the regular army of the United States. Perhaps they are more careful of their lives than bachelors and widowers, who have no "guardian angels" at home to watch over their safety, in spirit, on the battle field. Married soldiers "overrun the military posts," Inspector-General Sackett says, with their alleged wives; and so many of them enact the role of washerwoman that it is no wonder the rank and file are often found in "the suds," and that Midshipman Easy's jocose inquiry is so frequently heard: "How are you off for soap?" Inspector-General Sackett declares that it "requires about as much transportation to move four laundresses as it does to move a whole company of men," and thinks that a man can be detailed to do that duty quite as satisfactorily. The Woman's Rights folks will only see in thi suggestion, however, another "unmanly fling" at the sex. As a question of economy, though, it must increase seriously the cost of army transportation and support to include so many non-combatants.

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since 8-cj

Pulpit and Stage.

The Spirit of the Times says; The following letter strikes us as the most judicious and practical contribution to the Pulpit vs. Stage controversy that we have seen. It will doubtless strike all professional readers similarly. No one has forgotten the magnificent sums raised for the "Little Church Around the Corner." What act of the stage would more completely destroy every act of those who are pelting its representatives with all the opprobrious epithets in the vocabulary than by getting up a monster benefit for the purpose proposed in the following letter? It would be a new and beautiful exemplification of the generosity of one of the most liberal professions:

NEW YORK, Nov. 24, 1867.

DEAR SPIRIT: By inserting the following letter in your widely-read paper you may possibly aid in a very good and necessary work, and greatly oblige

A RETIRED ACTOR.

To the Managers and Actors of New York and Brooklyn: Permit me to call your attention to a matter in which I know you will take deep interest. I refer to the situation of an orphan child whose mother bequeathed to it only a heritage of shame. I refer to the child of Mary E. Pomeroy at Jersey City. No matter to whose sin that child owes it that she was born at all, she is now alive and has the world to face. As the members of the Church of which the unhappy mother was organist are busied in trying its pastor, and as other prominent churches are also similarly occupied in our courts of law and outside of them, would it not be well to get up some matinee entertainments, the proceeds of which could be applied to the maintenance and future education of the infant? I feel sure that Messrs. Shook & Palmer, Mr. Wallack, Mr. Jarratt, Mrs. Conway and Mr. Lamb, and perhaps others, would co-operate in the undertaking. I know that while the Pulpit is just now censuring the Stage for its immoralities, it seems hard to appeal to appeal to the generosity of the latter in behalf of the former; but I have known the profession too long to doubt its still honoring its old habit of returning charity for slander. I hope that my old associates will think favorably of this project.

Cost of Living East.

The Washington Critic says: An illustration of the way things go nowadays was shown by the conversation of a so-called guest, but real victim of a first-class hotel in Philadelphia recently. The guest protested against the charge of five dollars a day, and said to the proprietor: "I came here from California when gold was $2 80. What did you charge then?" "Five dollars," was the reply. "Yes," said the guest, "and everything was high in proportion. I paid in gold and you received it at the current rate—two dollars in gold being more than equivalent to a day's board. Then money was plentiful, and there seemed some justice in the price. But how is it now? Gold is down to $1 10, and flour is cheaper than it was in 1859, or at almost any time before the war; other products are down proportionately in price, and you still charge me five dollars a day. I could board then for fifty days where I now board twenty. What reason is there for this? You must come down in your prices. I now eat an acre of land a day. Where I live in North Carolina I can buy good land at five dollars an acre. A man may eat up a plantation here in a month. It is monstrous!"

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

A delicous table delicacy. They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are as superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. The Science of Advertising.

The New York Mail makes the following remarks on the subject of advertising: We have now entered upon the holiday season and retail business is much brisker than it has been for many months. At such a time the merchants of the city are especially interested in attracting the notice of their customers, and hence a few words on the science of advertising will not be misplaced in our columns.

The object of advertising is to inform the greatest number of people in the most effective manner, and this object is best attained by announcements in the columns of the Press. There are other methods of advertising, and novel ideas spring up every day, but such are but for the moment, and the experience of all first-class and successful houses induces them to do their advertising in the newspapers, and there alone.

Next comes the question as to what is the best method of securing the attention of newspaper readers. It is very simple and consists in continuous advertising. The retail merchants err in judgment when they order in a large advertisement for one time only, permitting many days to pass before their order is repeated. Such fitful spasms of advertisement doubtless produce a certain effect, but it is the steady, constant advertiser who prospers in the end. The best way is to advertise liberally and continuously, and all who have sufficient courage and capital to invest without stint, have found themselves rewarded even beyond their expectation. But there are many who are inclined to limit their advertising expenditure. To these we wish to speak. At present such merchants are apt to launch into extravagant advertisements, inserted for one time, and when they do not find their business increase in a day, they grumble at the cost and refuse to repeat the experiment. They have not studied the sciences of advertising.

The secret of success lies in uninterrupted advertising on a small scale, now and then varied by occasional "spreads" on suitable occasions. Every paper has its regular readers, and the uninterrupted advertisement familizes them with the name and object of the firm.

Art There Old Mole?

The editor of the San Jose Mercury has suddenly woke up. The ruffian never gave us a notice when we "donned a new dress," but he shows his kindly feeling in the following:

For ourselves we would as soon be a mermaid as an angel.—FIGARO.

That is, he would as soon be trigged out with a set of fins as a pair of wings. As there isn't much show for the latter, in FIGARO's case, and as he would cut a ridiculous figure paddling around in perdition with the other arrangements, we sincerely hope he may be provided with means of locomotion better suited to his taste.

The editor of the Mercury, before he speaks authoritatively about the fashions in the lower regions had better wait, say thirty years, and then he can come and tell us all about it. He can materialize.

Give Freely.

Josh Billings says: "If yu are going to giv a man enny thing, giv it to him cheerfully and quick; don't make him git down on his kneze in front ov yu and listen to the 10 commandments, and then give him 5 cents."

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P. M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. Reference given if required. H

A Delightful Climate.

The Portland Oregonian is stimulated by the glorification of their climate indulged in by Californians to do something of the same kind. It does not make out a very cheerful case. It says:

Our wet winters—the wetness of which are exaggerated beyond all reason—are found to be less unpleasant when brought into sharp contrast, than the cold, bright, bracing winters of other climes. There are few who would choose clear weather, with the mercury down to twenty-five, or fifteen, or zero, in preference to such weather as Oregon is having just now, and which may be relied upon for eighty out of the ninety days of winter yet to come: cloudy, damp, foggy, with much rain, and occasionally an hour of sunshine, and the mercury varying between forty-five and sixty degrees, oftener sixty than forty-five. We commend to those recently arrived here and who get tired of our moist weather, a careful retrospect of the winters they were accustomed to see in the Western States, taking into the account all the inconveniences and disadvantages they entailed; and we feel sure they will not fail to conclude that Oregon is vastly better in this respect than the lands to which their affections now turn.

In addition to the ungrammatical expression "the wetness are exaggerated," we object to so much moisture. "Cloudy, damp, foggy, with much rain," is a description of a climate which may be suited to web-footed creatures, but the average biped prefers to be occasionally dry. The Oregonian observes that there are "ninety days of winter yet to come." This is a lively prospect. We shall postpone our trip to Oregon until spring.

An Extraordinary Attraction.

The Chronicle Footlight Flasher in its notice of Fred Whymper's benefit, after mentioning the plays to be performed, says:

"A musical olio will be given between these pieces, which is expected to include most of the disengaged artists in the city, and their pictures will be disposed of by lot among the audience."

This of course means that the artists who have contributed the pictures will also appear in the musical olio. Their pictures will be disposed of by lot. We suppose in the olio Denny will sing "A Life on the Ocean Wave;" Snow will oblige the audience with "From Greenland's Icy Mountains"—or it might be arranged as a duet for Frost and him; Hill, "A Life in the Woods for me;" Brookes, "I Wish I Were a Fish;" Keith, "Ye Flocks and Herds," and Whymper, "Don't Cry, Baby Darling."

A Message from the Dead.

There is such a thing as being "too smart." A Detroit thief went to the door of a house, rang the bell and asked the servant to call her mistress, as he had particular business with her. The lady came, when the stranger informed her that Mr.———, naming the name on the door-plate, had sent him to the house to get twenty dollars which was due him. But for one thing he might have got the money. The lady's husband had been dead seven years.

A Well-Educated Child.

A lady and her eight-year-old daughter were among the passengers on a Detroit street car, the other day, and presently the little Miss observed a man take out his handkerchief, flourish it around, and then wipe his nose. The child leaned over to her mother and whispered: "Mamma, that gentleman is trying to flirt with me, but I shall give him the handkerchief signal that I distrust his motives."

Reasonable Enough.

"John, stop your crying," said an enraged father to his son, who had kept up an intolerable yell for the last five minutes. "Stop, I say, do you hear?" again repeated the father, after a few minutes, the boy still crying. "You don't suppose I can choke off in a minute, do you?" cried the urchin.

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-T

The California, the Union, the Pacific and Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, a very good substitue. After the theatres are opt there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion, We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

A Polarized Ass.

The Grass Valley Union says: We had thought that since the strychnine fiend had killed off most of the dogs in Grass Valley, that there was not a very talented one left. We were mistaken. Theodore Wilhelm, at Naffziger's place, has a dog that knows whats what. That dog is named "Butch," and he is a bull. His tail curls beautifully and his ears stand straight up. He is remarkable for retrieving. We saw him tried the other day. A friend of ours was standing on the street, in the beautiful sunshine, with a group of friends around him. Butch came up and joined the crowd. Some one of the party remarked about Butch being so talented. "You can just throw a half a dollar out there in the street," said the eulogist of the dog, "and Butch will find it, no matter if the mud and stones cover it up." Our friend likes smart dogs, and he always encourages smartness in a dog. He pulled out of his vest pocket a half dollar and tossed it into a pile of stones. Butch went after the coin, raked the stones over, found the money and then deliberately trotted off to his own place of business with four bits in his mouth. Our friend remarked: "That dog has too much education; a man has no more chance against him than has an immigrant when a three card monte sharp is around."

A Bad Bargain.

A lady went to a Dutch corner grocery the other day for some trifling thing. The goods wanted were on the very top shelf. The woman placed a box on a chair and climbed up to the shelf, at evident risk of her limbs. Her husband sat by the stove playing with a small dog. A lady said: "Why don't you make your husband reach it?" A look of infinite contempt came into her face as she replied: "My husband! I got awfully sucked in mit dat man. He knows nothing but to play mit a dog."

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest, cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Cothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Cothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jaekson. PIANO CO.

Capital Stock, $500,000

If You Want a Piano, Buy at Headquarters, and don't be fooled into buying advertised worthless trash. Buy an ANTISELL PIANOFORTE, and you have the best Piano made, and indorsed by hundreds of our leading artists and musicians throughout California. We sell at manufacturers' prices, and having a large capital and business are enabled to unload agents who are only middlemen. Agents have to pay high prices to cover their long credits, and usually make the enormous profits of from $100 to $500. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. We have just received from our factory a fine assortment that we offer at a small advance, either for cash or instalments, instead of renting. They are overstrung bass Agraffes, French action, etc., possessing every improvement recognized by people of cultivated musical taste, and the grand result is that for power, sweetness, brilliancy, and singing quality of tone, evenness throughout the entire scale, delicacy and elasticity of touch, strength, durability, beauty and finish, the ANTISELL PIANO stands unequalled.

N. B.—We sold our miscellaneous stock at auction, which consisted of Steinway & Son, Chickering, and Decker Brothers, as it don't pay to keep those makes, we find the demand so limited.

There was a splendid audience at this house last night to greet John McCullough on making his reappearance. It was a genial audience—an audience determined to be pleased. "Virginius" was seldom so well played as it was last night. In the title role Jon McCullough stands unrivalled, and Barton Hill and Henry Edwards are splendid Romans. Mr. McCullough's performance of Virginius last night was finer than any we have heretofore witnessed; it was full of subtle points. Nothing could have been better managed than the scene where the father, taking a last farewell of his child, catches sight of the butcher's knife and conceives the idea of taking her life to save her honor. The audience appreciated this, and applauded loudly. Mr. McCullough's voice has decidedly improved; not a great deal, but a gain has been made. The voice is admirably managed in the lower gamut where it is harsh, and modulated most pleasantly where no strain on it is required. Barton Hill gave an admirable impersonation of Icilius, playing the part with fire and intensity, and Henry Edwards as the cynical Dentatus presented a perfect relization of the character. In Rome a man had a right to speak his mind, but he had to run the chance of sudden death. Mr Edwards quite succeeds in giving us this idea of Dentatus. J. W. Keene displayed much force in the character of Appius Claudius, and shared in the applause and the recalls. Miss Bella Pateman looked charmingly interesting as Virginia, and posed with much skill; her utterance of some of the speeches was rather studied, and did not seem that of a gushing girl of eighteen. Mrs. Sophie Edwin, whom the public are always glad to see on the stage, played the part of Servia with her accustomed good taste, and altogether the drama was most successfully represented. That it was "for one night only" suited the company well for a Roman play in which bare arms and exposed throats are the rule, is not popular when the thermometer is at the (for San Francisco) exceptionally low degree of 40° Farenheit. To-night the play of "Richelieu" will be performed with John McCullough as the King-Cardinal, T. W. Keene as De Mauprat, Barton Hill as De Baradas, John Wilson as Louis XIII, Nelson Decker as Francois, Miss Bella Pateman as Julie de Mortimar, Miss Belle Chapman as Marion De Lorme, and a generally strong cast. Mr. McCullough's impersonation of Richelieu has been endorsed in every city in the East in which he has appeared, and is, we doubt, not a still more finished piece of acting than it was when it was last given in San Francisco.

Opera House.

Just the same as usual last night. The house was jammed so full that when a man started to laugh he shook his neighbor, and the whole audience quivered like a mould of blanc mange. Everything went off well. "Carry the News to Mary" was performed with immense spirit by Billy Emerson, J. R. Kemble, Ben Cotton and others. George Voges was applauded for his ballad; Cotton, Rice and Arlington sent the audience into fits of laughter by their acting and singing in "The Three Doves;" Charley Rhoades was encored again and again, and sang songs and played the banjo until he was tired, and then came the novelty of the evening. This was Billy Emerson in the character of "Muldoon, the Solid Man," made up so that nobody could possibly recognize him, and with a brogue that Florence or any other of the so-called Irish comedians would give any money to possess. "Muldoon, the Solid Man" is the hit of the season, one of the best bits of character acting we have seen for a long time. "Creatures of Impluse" and the daring and graceful feats of Leopold and Geraldine on the trapeze wound up a bill which will certainly keep the Opera House crowded as full as ever.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

The acts of the "Ash Barrel," by Charley Nickerson and Harry Devoy, "Justice of the Peace," by Mortimore, Tiers, Robinson and Nickerson, "Professor Fowler Outdone," concluding with "One Night in a Barroom," and a great variety of acts, songs and dances, make up a good entertainment.

Chiarini's Circus.

This grand combination of equestrian, gymnastic and equine talent will commence a season of entertainments at Wilson's Amphitheatre on New Montgomery street on Monday next. The troupe as at present constituted comprises twenty-five star performers, thirty trained horses and ponies, the performing guanaco and monkeys, and the Fusi-Ya-Ma Rocky Mountain Wonder Troupe of Japanese Court jugglers and gymnasts. On our first page will be found an interesting summary of Signor Chiarini's engagements during his two years' tour, estimates of the expense attending the transportation of his mammoth company and other particulars. We confidently predict for Signor Chiarini a season even surpassing preceding ones in this city.

Fred. Whymper's Benefit.

In addition to the new operetta and farce previously announced the following distinguished and well-known vocalists and musicians have already volunteered for the ollo. Messrs. Alfred Kelleher, hen, Julius Hinrichs, Oscar Weil, Louis Schmidt, Dick and T. W. Kohler, and the Misses McCabe. The musical arrangements will be under the leadership of Geo. T. Evans, with a full orchestra.

Woodward's Gardens.

The Algerian Arab Troupe under direction of the famous Ali Fooldol the "Tower of Strength" will appear Saturday and Sunday in conjunction with the variety troupe and the usual Orchestral Concert.

Platt's Hall.

This evening the eminent litterateur and lecturer, Hepworth Dixon, will make his first appearance before the public of San Francisco and will deliver a lecture on "The German Empire." The fact that during the late trouble Mr. Dixon fought the battles of the United States Government in England with his pen, at a time when to do so was to be unpopular, will ensure him a friendly reception here.

COSMOPOLITAN BAL MASQUE.—The second of these balls is announced for Christmas Eve (Dec. 24th), at Horticultural Hall. All the best features of the last one will be retained, the Clodoch dances, the special French "choral" quadrilles, etc. In addition, 40 young ladies will give a grand "Marche des Amazones Californiennes" dressed in glittering plated armour, and led by a lady of surpassing beauty. There will also be French comic quadrilles by ladies only, a superior band, and all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of both masquers

YOU AND I.

BY GEORGE COOPER.

Tripping thro' the meadow sweet,
You and I together;
Pleasant was the waving wheat,
Golden was the weather.
Robbins, piping in the sky,
Told their happy story;
How the moments wandered by,
Lost in Summer's glory!
Love, to us, was all complete—
Brighter than the weather—
Tripping thro' the meadows sweet,
You and I together!

Purple leaves are falling now,
Blighting is the weather;
At the fireside here we bow,
You and I together.
Still we hear the robin sing
As in days departed,
Still my arms around you cling,
Blithe and happy hearted!
Life to us is all complete,
'Mid this wintry weather,
Waiting for the Summer sweet,
You and I together!

How to Manage Her.

A man named Taddles, in Virginia, has got his wife in proper subjection, and means to keep her so. "Oh," says he, in telling about it, "there ain't many who know to rule a wife. Now, my old woman is one of the best-natured women in the world, but she's got a deuce of a temper. Whenever I see she's got her madness up, if it's a dozen times a day, I just quietly say nothing, but rather humor her, and she comes around all right after a time. Even when she throws things at me or gives a wild dash at me with the broom or rolling-pin, I just dodge a little, and she never hits me a third time before I get my eyes on her and let her know I disapprove of such actions on her part. Perhaps I have to leave the house to show her this, but she sees the point. Then, by being careful not to irritate her, and letting her have her own way, I manage to make her do as I please. And you bet I make her understand and appreciate my discipline. Oh, I keep her under perfect control! A man has, you know, got to be the master in his own house, or your wife will ride you down as if you wasn't nobody. My wife's a perfect angel in her natural disposition, but any other man but me would spoil her."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since 3-cj

Santa Claus

Is not a myth if Christmas candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. In fact, George Haas & Co., No. 20 Kearny street, has fac similes of Santa Claus (in Candy) that are really good enough to eat. His holiday stock of home-made candies and bon-bon boxes cannot be excelled anywhere, as a visit to his store will show. x

Ladies Oyster Parlors.

The cosiest, neatest and most respectable Ladies Oyster and Refreshment Rooms on the Pacific Coast are to be found at the Southern Pacific Oyster and Refreshment Rooms, Summer street, between California and Pine, below Kearny. All Ladies who have visited them are charmed with their elegance and simplicity, and pronounce them "So Nice." N

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-y

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

A delicous table delicacy. They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are as superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. Made fresh every morning at Bunker's Stall, 74 and 75 California Market, California street entrance. Try them. 9-B

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a modle of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

Charlotte Cushman

Little Johnny on the Donkey.

This joker belongs to the genious ass, and it has two species, the he and the she. It is a beest of burden, but I shud think its ears was enoughf without anything onto its its back. It is a kind of horse, but littler, and not so nice; tho donkies, I expect, is pretty to their selfs, like womens, but womens can't bra, they scoles. I like to here a donkey bra, and a fiddle is good too, but give me a hand organ.

There was a ole feller used to come here wich had a orgin with a donky to draw it on a cart, for he was too ole to carry it on his stummach. He had been all his live savin money to by the donky, and wen he got one he was as proud as a luce afire, and wouldent speak to the men wich carried their orgins on their stummachs. Once the ole man he was sick and the other fellers they clubd to gather and hired the donky for a week, and spiled him. So wen the ole man got well and begun to pla the orgin the donkey begun to bra, like the fellers had tot him. Then the ole man let go the crank and said to the donky who's a turnin' you? But wen the ole man begun agin the donkey begun agin too, and the ole man stopt and said how many tunes was the donky set for, wich only moved his ears and waited for the orgin. The nex time wen the donky did it the ole man said could the donky pla Nelly Gra, but wen the jokes was all out you never see sich a furyous ole man. He wopt the donky offel, but no use. Well, that night Mister Briley, the bucher, heard music a playin and a playin like mad in the field, and he thot it wos fairies, and drest hisself and went out to see wot they was up to, but it was the ole man had cut the donky's hed of and stuck it on a hedge, and was standin a turnin of the orgin as fass as he could make it hum for spite. Wen Mister Briley he see wot was up he crept behind the hedge and put his hands to his mouth, so, and brade frightful! The ole feller dropt his orgin and cut away like he had bit hisself with a mad dog, and was never see agin by no body, and serve him rite.

If you was ast can a donky tok, yuu wud say no, and then the Sunday Scoohl teacher would say you wicked little boy, they was one tokt to Balim, you must git seventeen chapters by heart.

Once in Spain they was ever so many donkies being drove to market along a narro path in the bottom of a vally, with each donkies head tide to an other's tail, but a land slide slid down of the mountin and berried em. A long time after that a geogolist wich was a digging in them parts foun their bones, and follered up the line til he dug 'em all out. Then he wrote a account of a fossle animil which was a half a mile long, and had more legs than a centipee. Wen Mister Cuvier heard about it he went and look, and then made a picter of the animil like it was wen it was a live, and sech a looking picter no boddy ever see. The heads bothered Mister Cuvier, but he said it wasent science for a animil to have so many heads, and he left 'em all out of the picter but one.

My father met a man once carryin a donky pick a back, and wen my father said poor little feller, wat broke his leg, the man said t'blessit moke has luggit I all t'wy from Lunnin, an' I be guvin' he a bit of a rust; that's wok brakit un's lag.

The donky is see in their glory at Hampsted Heeth, but wen our famly was to Malvern they was donkies there too.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

There is an immense difference between the dolls of twenty years ago, and those of to-day. The ancient doll was a misshapen monster with a dull expressionless face. There are crying dolls, sleeping dolls, and dolls wide-awake, dolls with hair, and dolls bald-headed, and all as real as life. Toys of every description on hand—to the trade. which secures the combined advantages of higher finish, increased durability and diminished weight. This metal, after many years' trial under the Hoe and other Machines of the leading London and English and Scotch provincial DAILY PAPERS, has been found to be at least TWICE AS DURABLE as the ordinary type metal, and has gained it very universal preference. The great improvements they have introduced in their manufacture, enable them to supply Fonts of this superior metal without any increase of Price upon the ordinary quality.

The new type on which the FIGARO is printed is from the above foundry. Every article for a complete news or job printing office furnished at the lowest prices.

Chips from Eastern Exchanges.

"Slipping his grip" is Californian for dying.

The San Francisco hoodlum says, "Oh, chaw me hair!" when he meets a girl with it frizzled.

Women in San Francisco have been deprived of the right to stand up in the bars and drink like men. Shameful!

A San Francisco Chinaman is greatly blamed for having been beyond the range of a hoodlum who fired a slung shot at him on the street last week. An old lady received the charge instead of the Chinaman, and the mischievous youth is now raving in a police station.

"Old Kaintuck" lives at Red Dog, near You Bet, in Nevada county, California. He it was that the foreign tourist asked what the annual crop of Kentucky was, and he replied: "I can't say stranger; but I know its enough to make all the whiskey we want, besides what is wasted for bread."

Nickels are not so highly esteemed in California as elsewhere. They boil 'em down and make fancy truck nails of them.

When that blushing San Francisco bride showed the check for a million to her husband, he burst into tears and exclaimed with intense fervor, "and even this shall not separate us."

When California mining companies want to suspend operations for a while they pump their mines full of water, so that no one else can get at the ore without great trouble.

"Sociability."

An Irishman used to come home often drunk, and once, when he was watering his horses his wife said to him, "Now, Paddy, is not that baste an example to ye? Don't you see he laves off when he has had enough the craythur! he's the most sensible baste of the two." "Oh, it's very well to discoorse like that' Biddy," cried Paddy, "but if there was another horse at the other side of the trough to say, 'Here's your health, my ould boy,' would he stop till he drunk the whole trough, think ye?"

A Warning.

A Texas jury recently retired from the court-room long enough to write a verdict of "not guilty," at which the accused was so rejoiced that he told the jury to "go down to the grocery and help themselves," for which the judge fined him fifty dollars.

Here, the criminals or their lawyers put drinks into and otherwise encourage the jurymen before they go into court. It is worth hard coin to a man to get on the Grand Jury now-a-days.

A Nice City.

The Louisville Courier-Journal says:—"An exchange tells us that Brooklyn has three thousand saloons and three clerical scandals. The reason the saloons so greatly outnumber the clerical scandals is chiefly because you know where to lay your hands on the saloons when you want to count them."

Celebrating His Escape.

Speaking of the escape from indictment of one of the parties presented before the Grand Jury, the Alta of yesterday says:—Last night the jubilant Charles, elated doubtless over his escape, got on a spree and went to Buckley's Varieties to enjoy the performance.

The Right Way of Putting It.

"It is very hard, my lord," said a convicted felon at the bar to Judge Burnet, "to hang a poor man for stealing a horse." "You are not to be hanged, sir," answered the judge, "for stealing a horse, but you are to be hanged that horses may not be stolen."

Medical Wonder.

The great cure for rheumatic and other pains, colds, sprains, etc. For sale everywhere. L

In the Olden Time.

An exchange naively remarks:

Many years ago men could be easily found to give any evidence, upon oath, that might be required, and some of these persons walked openly in Westminster Hall, with a straw in one of their shoes, to signify that they wanted employment as witnesses; hence originated the saying, "He is a man of straw." But the custom has high antiquity. A writer in the Quarterly Review (vol. xxxiii., page 344), on Greek Courts, says: "We have all heard of a race of men who used in former days to ply about our own courts of law, and who, from their manner of making known their occupation, were recognized by the name of straw-shoes. An advocate or lawyer who wanted a convenient witness knew by these signs where to find one, and the colloquy was brief. 'Don't you remember?' said the advocate. The party looked at the fee and gave no sign; but the fee increased, and the powers of memory increased with it. 'To be sure I do.' 'Then come into court and swear to it.' And straw-shoes went into court and swore it. Athens abounded in straw-shoes."

Of course such men cannot be found in the United States! There are none in San Francisco! "Many years ago" men did this kind of thing. Plain perjury in San Francisco costs just two dollars and a half an oath. There are scores of men who make their living by it. Everyone knows it; and yet newspapers talk about "many years ago"!

Sacred Concert.

"Bring up the next prisoner," said the judge to the officer of the court.

"Yes sir. Come out of here, the judge wants to see you," said the officer to a prisoner who had been arrested for being intoxicated on Sunday.

"What's your name?" asked the judge.

"Me name is it; well sir, I have the honor of being called Bill Muldoon."

"Officer, what did you arrest this man for?"

"Your honor, as I was patrolling my beat in Fulton street, when this man came staggering along and making a great noise. Said he had been to a sacred concert, and that I dare not arrest any one for attending a sacred concert. So I asked him what concert he had been to, and he said, 'Over in Brooklyn to hear Talmage;' and as there is nothing sacred about that I arrested him."

"Do you mean to tell me, sir, that you have been over in the City of Churches and got intoxicated there, and then had the audacity to come over here to get arrested?"

"Well, sir, you see I heard everybody talking about sacred concerts on Sunday, and I asked a friend of mine where I could find one, and he told me over in Brooklyn. So I went over and found a place where the people were going in in crowds, and in I walked, and they never asked me for a cent, either. Well, it was a bully concert, they had a good cornet player and some good singers, but only one actor, and I tell you he beat old Bowery all hollow. Well, I went out and got a good horn of brandy after the show was over, and it must have flew to my head. If you let me go this time I'll never go any more."

"What was the name of that actor?" asked the judge.

"I asked some people who he was, and they said it was Talmage, if I am not mistaken."

"Well, you may go, for I think not only you but the public has had punishment enough from this same actor."

And he went.

Santa Claus

Is not a myth if Christmas candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. In fact, George Haas & Co., No. 20 Kearny street, has facsimiles of Santa Claus (in Candy) that are really good enough to eat. His holiday stock of home-made candies and bon-bon boxes cannot be excelled anywhere, as a visit to his store will show. K

Ladies Oyster Parlors.

The cosiest, neatest and most respectable Ladies Oyster and Refreshment Rooms on the Pacific Coast are to be found at the Southern Pacific Oyster and Refreshment Rooms, Summer street, between California and Pine, below Kearny. All Ladies who have visited them are charmed with their elegance and simplicity, and pronounce them "So Nice." N

The Old Mint Restaurant.

Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

The Place for Talmage.

The authorities of St. Johnsbury, Vt., have closed all the billiard saloons and bowling alleys in town. The authorities think these games dangerous to the public morals. The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage ought to go to St. Johnsbury. It's a place that would suit his hypochrondriac nature exactly. He thinks that the only way to be happy is to be extremely miserable. He looks upon a smile as a sin, and a harmless joke as a direct emanation from the infernal regions. That's the kind of men who rule in St. Johnsbury.

No Doubt.

A high-school pupil in a street car recited her geometry lesson to a fellow-girl, recently as follows: "If the angles at the base of an isosceles triangle are equal to the square of the hypotheneuse of a right-angle cone, then the rectangle of the diameter of a circle is equal to the square of the—ah—to the—ah is equal to the—ah—to the square—to the square—to the—ah—oh, bother! Gimme that book! I wish pa 'ud let me take dancing lessons instead of these horrible squares, and angles, and hypotheneuses."

Great Bargains in Clothing.

Capital Stock, $500,000

If You Want a Piano, Buy at Head-quarters, and don't be fooled into buying advertised worthless trash. Buy an ANTISELL PIANO-FORTE, and you have the best Piano made, and indorsed by hundreds of our leading artists and musicians throughout California. We sell at manufacturers' prices, and having a large capital and business are enabled to undersell agents who are only middlemen. Agents have to pay high prices to cover their long credits, and usually make the enormous profits of from $100 to $500. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. We have just received from our factory a fine assortment that we offer at a small advance, either for cash or instalments, instead of renting. They are overstrung bass Agraffes, French action, etc., possessing every improvement recognized by people of cultivated musical taste, and the grand result is that for power, sweetness, brilliancy, and singing quality of tone, evenness throughout the entire scale, delicacy and elasticity of touch, strength, durability, beauty and finish, the ANTISELL PIANO stands unequalled.

N. B.—We sold our miscellaneous stock at auction, which consisted of Steinway & Son, Chickering, and Decker Brothers, as it don't pay to keep those makes, we find the demand so limited.

Opera House.

There was another jammed house last night. Emerson's new song, "The Man on the Cream colored Horse," and Russell's fine ballad, "There's a Letter in the Candle," in the first part, received encores. Two betterrendered songs cannot be heard anywhere. Rice, Arlington, Cotton and Kemble in their acts; Charley Rhoades in his local banjo solos, Emerson in his wonderfully clever personation of "Muldoon, the Solid Man," and Leopold and Geraldine in their brilliant trapeze act, were all encored, and make a bill that can not be equalled by any other minstrel company in the world.

California Theatre.

There was a large audience present here last night to witness John McCullough's performance of Richelieu in Bulwer's great play of that name. Mr. McCullough has improved his Richelieu as much as he has his Virginius, and so fine were the tones and delicate the modulations of his voice in some scenes, that a stranger would have been astonished to learn that it was ever considered harsh. Such steady progress in tuning and improving what seemed once a refractory organ must afford great satisfaction to all who can appreciate our California tragedian. Last night the lights and shades of the character of the Cardinal were most skillfully contrasted, and the effect of intellect struggling with physical infirmity was well produced. T. W. Keene displayed much earnestness in the role of De Mauprat, but did not quite "fill" it. Miss Bella Pateman did some fine acting as Julie de Mortimer, making her point well in the scene where she seeks refuge with Richelieu from the king, and the Cardinal suggets that she yielded. Barton Hill looked particularly well as Baradas, and acted splendidly; Nelson Decker perfectly realized the character of the enthusiastic Francois, and acted as if he were in earnest. J. P. Burnett didn't do anything particular with the part of De Beringhen, but got a laugh in the final scene. W. M. Leman was at home in the role of Joseph. Miss Belle Chapman acted and read the part of Marion de Lorme very well with the exception that she tries to deepen her girlish voice, and will spoil it if she does not take warning. The play was well put on the stage and the curse scene was very effectively arranged. That in the delivery of the famous 'circle" speech Mr. McCullough electrified the audience va sans dire. "Richelieu" will be repeated to-night and to-morrow night and will also be played at the matinee on Saturday.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Harry Deroy and Charley Nickerson in the act entitled "The Ash Barrel," Mortimore and others in "Professor Fowler Outdone," Mlle. Blanche in ballads, Miss Fanny Webster in comic songs and others in various specialties make up a good bill at this house.

Platt's Hall.

Hepworth Dixon, the English lecturer, drew a good house last night, and delivered a most interesting discourse on "The German Empire," which was listened to with much attention by the audience The next lecture will be given to-morrow evening, the subject will be "The Tower of London."

Wilson's Amphitheatre.

Rockwell & Hurlburt's free exhibitions of horses trained by their system draw immense crowds every afternoon and evening. The "star" Mazeppa is one of the best trained horses in the world, and delights the spectators by the variety of actions he performs at the word of command. He will show his teeth, put back his ears, wag his ear (this would astonish Lord Dundreary), lift up the foot his trainer mentions, and in fact appears to understand all that is said to him. The applications for admission to the classes are very numerous.

Chiarini's Circus.

This grand combination of equestrian, gymnastic and equine talent will commence a season of entertainments at Wilson's Amphitheatre on New Montgomery street on Monday next. The troupe as at present constituted comprises twenty-five star performers, thirty trained horses and ponies, the performing guanaco and monkeys, and the Fusi-Ya-Ma Rocky Mountain Wonder Troupe of Japanese Court jugglers and gymnasts. On our first page will be found an interesting summary of Signor Chiarini's engagements during his two years' tour, estimates of the expense attending the transportation of his mammoth company and other particulars. We confidently predict for Signor Chiarini a season even surpassing preceding ones in this city.

Fred. Whymper's Benefit.

In addition to the new operetta and farce previously announced the following distinguished and well-known vocalists and musicians have already volunteered for the ollo. Messrs. Alfred Kelleher, Cohen, Julius Hinrichs, Oscar Weil, Louis Schmidt Dick and T. W. Kohler, and the Misses McCabe, The musical arrangements will be under the leadership of Geo. T. Evans, with a full orchestra.

Woodward's Gardens.

The Algerian Arab Troupe under direction of the famous Ali Fooldol the "Tower of Strength" will appear Saturday and Sunday in conjunction with the variety troupe and the usual Orchestral Concert.

COSMOPOLITAN BAL MASQUE.—The second of these balls is announced for Christmas Eve (Dec. 24th), at Horticultural Hall. All the best features of the last one will be retained, the Clodoch dances, the special French "choral" quadrilles, etc. In addition, 40 young ladies will give a grand "Marche des Amazones Californiennes" dressed in glittering plated armour, and led by a lady of surpassing beauty. There will also be French comic quadrilles by ladies only, a superior band, and all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of both masquers and spectators. Tickets will be the same price as before.

Notes.

Otway's "Venice Preserved" is in rehearsal for production on Monday next. In order to afford time for the preparations necessary to produce Hamlet in perfect style the representation of that play will be postponed until December 28th.

Fred. Whymper offers a prize of ten dollars for the best original conundrum handed in at his benefit at Maguire's New Theatre on Saturday next.

UNDER THE LINDENS.

BY WALTER B. LANDER.

Under the lindens lately sat
A couple, and no more, in chat;
I wondered what they could be at
Under the lindens.

I saw four eyes and four lips meet;
I heard the words, "How sweet!
How sweet!"
Had thus the fairies given a treat
Under the lindens?

I pondered long, and could not tell
What dainty pleased them both so well;
Bees! bees! was it your hydromel
Under the lindens?

Femininities.

At the recent election in Michigan the constitutional amendment giving suffrage to women received 40,000 votes, a larger number than were cast for any other of the amendments. This is a feather, if nothing more, in the caps of the brave sisterhood.

A policeman in Chicago passing a house the other night heard a woman screaming: "Oh, Henry, Henry, come here quick! Susan! mother! the baby!" Gallantly breaking in the door and rushing up stairs, the officer found that the baby had—just cut a tooth!

Says the Berlin (Germany) correspondent of the Woman's Journal: "I must tell you something of a woman here whom I consider it an honor to know. She has a wood yard, perhaps the only woman in the world who sells cord-wood. She is very much of a lady, and has paid her husband's debts and brought up three children well."

A singular effect was produced at the New York Academy of Music a few nights since, when the ladies appeared with heads shorn of chignon, rat, friz, and all those other wonderful contrivances which have obscured the view of the stage and driven the average man to desperation. It was a return to a state of nature which is in every way to be commended.

The other day, in Detroit, a boy eight years old called at a house in the northern part of the city and asked the lady for ten cents, saying he was the sole support of his mother. She reached after her purse and inquired: "How old is your mother?" "She's seventy years old," promptly replied the lad, and he wondered what made the lady hustle him out without giving him any money.

Philadelphia girls are sometimes enthusiasts. One of them says she would get married if she could kick like Lotta.

Indiana pauses to reflect upon the statistical circumstance that the applications for divorces exceed those for marriage licenses by 150 per cent.

First Girl of the Period—What has become of Julia Ware! Second do.—Oh, she is doing first rate. She has been deceived by a timid old fellow with lots of money.

It may not have been generally observed, but it is none the less true, that many a young man misses the idol of his affections by his extravagant use of hair grease.

A marriage license was recently issued in Washington to a couple whereof the gentleman, while in a state of temporary insanity, attempted to murder the lady he is about to marry. She was bound to have her revenge.

The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. Johnny on the Lion.

A lion met a tiger and said I am the king of beace, but the tiger he said wot good did that do him wen they was lots of animils could lick him like smoke, one of wich was the tiger. Then the king said he woudent pursu the subjeck, and the subjeck said that was cos he dassent. But mother says it was notty to sass the king.

The lion has a mane jus like my sister, but the she one is more like Billy. They is said to rore like dissant thunder, but I spose that is cos wen one hears 'em one tries to make it dissant by runnin. If I was to meet a lion in the woods I wud go up to him and cut of his head, and that wud make him rore like thunder if any thing woud. Some lions is big enugh to take a ox by the back and shake it like you wud a rat.

There was a lion on a rock, and a mule come belo with a pack saddle on, wich is like a saw horse. The lion was near sited and didnt see the pack saddle, and recht down from the rock to nip the mule, but got the saddle fass in its jaws, and the mule got a way. Then the lion was in awfle pain, and went to a village, and walked along threw the street til it found a man a sawin wood, and went up to him, and winkt its eye like it said wot woud he give for a first rate saw horse? But the man seen by the girth that it was a pack saddle and went a way without makin a offer.

Some folkes says the lion looks like a man, but Ide like to kno wot man, for I never see him. Maybe them in Traffalger square does, for they don't look much like lions, less you mean lions wich is shaved evry mornin, and has their hair brushed and oild, and carries a prayer book. The stif tale feller wich stud on Norfumerlon House was werth a million of 'em, but a hipotames is the jockey for me.

A Good Showing.

The teachers of Chicago have now for two years, under a voluntary agreement, dispensed with the use of the rod in school, and Superintendent Pick claims the following results: 1. Order as good as ever before. 2. Obedience is prompt and cheerful. 3. Maliciousness less than ever before. 4. Suspensions for misconduct are only about one-half what they have been in the best of former years.

An Unpleasant Attitude.

"Make you a coat, Sir?" said a suspicious tailor to a suspected customer. "Oh yes, Sir, with the greatest pleasure. There, just stand in that position, please, and look right upon that notice while I take your measure." Customer reads the notice: "Terms cash."

A Popular Name.

Maria is a popular name in Illinois. When a cat climbs a back fence in a well-populated neighborhood, and plaintively calls on "Mariar," twenty or thirty windows are hastily thrown up, from which protrude twenty or thirty female heads, wildly answering, "What?"

Very Pleasant.

Ten years ago scarcely a hotel in New York had an elevator. Now nearly all have one, and those that not are rated second-class. Elevators are promotors of laziness says Leland.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Real Works of Art.

There is an immense difference between the dolls of twenty years ago, and those of to-day. The ancient doll was a misshapen monster with a dull expressionless face. Good Gracious!

The Sacramento Bee, speaking of the Palace Hotel, says:

A writer in the Bulletin objects to this name being given to Ralston and Sharon's big hotel in San Francisco because it is so common, inappropriate and meaningless. There are the London gin palaces, the palaces of royalty, the palace saloons, and other palaces, one of which used to be in Sacramento, and it may be there yet for all he knows. "Palace" will do well enough for places like these, but for one of the wonders of the world give us, first, our noble State, "The California;" or second, "St. Francis," our patron saint. When one speaks of St. Peters, a child knows that we mean St. Peter's Cathedral at Rome; St. Paul's, the next largest, a well-known cathedral in London; St. Isaac's, that other superb church in St. Petersburg. But why not call it "Ralston?" Here we have a regular California name, and when any one hears it, it is at once associated with the big hotel, with wealth, generosity, public spirit, mines, mining, banking, and in fact everything Californian of the best type. It is no second-hand name, and it is one of which every Californian is proud. It tells you at once of brains, enterprise, ideas, progress, energy and perseverance.

Call it the Sharon-Ralston-Michael-Reese-Hayward Caravanserie. Perhaps the banker doesn't want to have the hotel called the Ralston.

Flowery Speech.

The following is a literal report of a speech delivered in Bowling Green, Ky., by a candidate for the office of jailor:

"Fellow citizens: Where are my opponents? Why, gentlemen, they are nowhere. I feel myself as much above my opponents as a possum in a persimmon tree does above the ground he crawls on. I call on you in the name of the shaggy-headed lion which whipped the American eagle; I call on you in the name of the peacock of liberty, which flowed over the Rocky Mountains—to come to my rescue. Come early, and promote Dick to the office to which he perspires. When you shall have been dead, and the green briers shall have entwined themselves around your graves, then will your sons come to me and say, 'Dick, some years ago our fathers voted for you for the office of jailorship of Warren county;' then will I say, 'Roll on, thou silver moon, I will be with thee till the last day in the evening.'"

About Advertising.

A New York merchant, who has made a quarter of a million during the last three years in legitimate business, says:—To cure dull times—apply an advertisement to the afflicted part. A sign-board can't tell everything. It takes an advertisement to do that. All who advertise do not get rich, but precious few get rich without it. The world is full of advertising, yet everyone wants to see what is new. The world's memory is short. It will forget you if you do not jog it frequently. Early to bed and early to rise will be in vain if you don't advertise. He who by his biz would rise, must either bust or advertise.

An Humble Follower of "G. W."

A good little boy out West undertook to come the George Washington on his mother in this way: He cut off the cat's head with the traditional hatchet, and then hid the defunct feline in the meal barrel. When the old lady went for meal to make the 'hoe cake" for the frugal morning repast, she discovered the cat, and interviewed her son. He said, "I did it, mother, with my little hatchet, but I'll be swizzled if I can tell the whole truth about this little affair."

Is not a myth if Christmas candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. A Learned Showman.

An Irishman died lately, in London, whose career and attainments entitle him to a niche in the annals of literature. The deceased was about fifty years of age, and was as odd a figure as one could meet in a day's ride. He was small, but firmly knit, generally wore a white hat and a dress coat, and always had an old volume under his arm. He was a confirmed book-worm. Mezzofanti was hardly a more accomplished linguist. Mortimer was a graduate of the University of Dublin, and deeply versed in classic lore, but he added a polish to his erudition by his intimacy with at least a dozen modern tongues. He spoke French, German, Russian, Polish, Spanish, Italian, modern Greek, Turkish, Arabic, Irish and Danish, with fluency. In his youth he had been cabin boy in an American barque and subsequently became a medical student in Paris but had to leave it on account of his connection with the June insurrection of '48. He was a very strong man, and utilized his strength by taking an engagement as a Hercules in a circus in Australia. By turns, he gave lectures on Shakspeare through Germany, was a Greek professor at Hamburg, had a troupe of Spanish ballet dancers in Holland, and was a companion of Sir William Don, the baronet actor, in his wildest Continental frolics. In his time he had been tutor to Charles Lever's children at Florence. He came to the surface one day in the employment of Tom Thumb; another in the company of Murphy, the Irish giant, who was a distant cousin. He had been in London since the Franco-Prussian war, which ruined him in fortune. His learning was of little profit to him, for he died very poor in the ward of a hospital and is buried in a nameless grave.

New York Liberality.

Toole, the English comedian, had an experience in Washington regarding oysters, which is exceedingly amusing. Joe Parker, a well-known Washington wag, with a few friends was "showing him the sights," and in the course of their rambles they naturally drifted down to the river's side, where the oyster boats are moored. Toole, desirous to do the "handsome thing," invited his friends "to try 'an oyster, you know.'" Certainly, of course, they would, and they did. Toole, according to the informant, must have put about six dozen of the bivalves "out of sight," and his companions were not far behind in doing full justice to the invitation extended them. When the feast was ended Toole, turning to the colored man who opened the oysters for them, inquired, "What's the damage, waiter?" The darkey, who already had had the wink, replied, "Nothing, Sah." "God bless my soul!" exclaimed the comedian. "Oh," said Parker, "they never charge for oysters eaten at the wharf. They give them away here. It's one of the customs of the country." "God bless my soul," cried the actor in amazement, "it's a wonder the whole town isn't down here you know."

We are not informed whether there was a Supervisor Roberts among the crowd who made a fuss about paying the bill.

Couldn't be Silenced.

An Irshman addicted to telling strange stories, said he saw a man beheaded, with his hands tied behind him, who directly picked up his head and put it on his shoulders in the right place. "Ha, ha, ha!" said a bystander, "how could he pick up his head when his hands were tied behind him?" "And sure what a purty fool ye are!" said Pat, "and couldn't he pick it up with his teeth? A Stupefying Effect.

A strange incident is reported from Lyons. On the 17th of October two young people were married. Within two hours of the time at which the ceremony took place they became insensible, and have remained so ever since. The Lyonese doctors have exhausted their science in this case, and the luckless pair, though alive yet, are evidently sinking from mere starvation. There can be no question but that some narcotic of the most violent class has been given them—probably as a joke. A young man, apprenticed to a chemist, has been arrested on suspicion, but it is believed that several of the marriage guests bore a part in the affair, which was meant as a joke only.

We sell at manufacturers' prices, and having a large capital and business are enabled to undersell agents who are only middlemen. Agents have to pay high prices to cover their long credits, and usually make the enormous profits of from $100 to $500. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. We have just received from our factory a fine assortment that we offer at a small advance, either for cash or instalments, instead of renting. They are overstrung bass Agraffes, French action, etc., possessing every improvement recognized by people of cultivated musical taste, and the grand result is that for power, sweetness, brilliancy, and singing quality of tone, evenness throughout the entire scale, delicacy and elasticity of touch, strength, durability, beauty and finish, the ANTISELL PIANO stands unequalled.

California Theatre.

"Richelieu," with John McCullough as the King-Cardinal, was played again last night, and will be repeated this evening. To-morrow "Othello" will be produced, and Mr. McCullough will give the grandest impersonation of the character that can be witnessed on the English-speaking stage at the present day.

Opera House.

Billy Rice and Billy Arlington in "The Arrival of Bolivar;" Cotton, Rice and Arlington in "The Three Doves;" Billy Emerson in his wonderfully clever character song, "Muldoon, the Solid Man;" Leopold and Geraldine on the flying trapeze, and many other performances are given at this house.

"The Enchantress."

The people at Maguire's New Theatre are rehearsing night and day for the production of the grand musical spectacle of "The Enchantress," which will receive its first representation on the 24th instant. Miss Ada Hope has been engaged for Stella, Walter Campbell for Pacheco, J. K. Mortimore for Duke d'Aquillo and Harry Courtaine for Dr. Mathanasius. Among the great scenes may be mentioned the deck of the pirate ship "Helios," "The Abode of the Enchantress," "The Vestibule of the Regent's Palace," and the grand transformation scene entitled "The March of Aurora."

Spanish Performance.

On Monday evening of next week the Spanish dramatic company, comprising Senora Holla, Senora Alio, and Senors Molla, Barbero and Estrada, will give a performance at Maguire's New Theatre. It will commence with an original comedy in three acts by the young Mexican poet, Don Ignacio Herrera de Leon, entitled "Entre Amor y Celos Locura." After this Senora Mollo will sing the music of the Spanish dance entitled "La Habaneras del Jucio Final." The popular afterpiece, "Maruja," will conclude the evening's entertainment.

Fred. Whymper's Benefit.

The full programme to be performed at Maguire's New Theatre on Saturday evening when Fred Whymper will take a benefit, is published on our first page. It is a very attractive one. First, we are to have Miss Blanche Galton and Thomas Whiffen in the new operetta of "Terrible Hymen," which will be performed on this occasion for the first time in California. Then will come a musical olio in which Alfred Kelleher, Miss Blanche Galton, N. Cohen, the Brothers Kohler, C. Makin, the Misses McCabe, Alban Corfield, Josh Davis, Julius Heinrichs and Louis Schmidt, and Oscar Weil, will take part. The performance will terminate with the musical comedietta of "Jenny Lind" in which the piquante Miss Sydney Cowell and the ever-popular George Giddens will play the leading characters. In addition to these attractions three original paintings will be disposed of by lot among the audience, and a prize of ten dollars will be given to the author of the best conundrum. Apart from the popularity of the beneficiary such attractions should crowd the theatre to overflowing.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

After a great variety of acts, songs and dances, the screaming farce of "Here She Goes and There She Goes" will be performed by Frank Mortimore, Miss Katie Zoe, Harry Devoy, Johnny Tuers and Charles Nickerson. A fairy extravaganza is in preparation for the holidays.

Platt's Hall.

To-night Hepworth Dixon, the English lecturer, will talk to the people of San Francisco about "The Tower of London."

Wilson's Amphitheatre.

Rockwell & Hurlburt's free exhibitions of horses trained by their system draw immense crowds every afternoon and evening. The "star" Mazeppa is one of the best trained horses in the world, and delights the spectators by the variety of actions he performs at the word of command. He will show his teeth, put back his ears, wag his ear (this would astonish Lord Dundreary), lift up the foot his trainer mentions, and in fact appears to understand all that is said to him. The applications for admission to the classes are very numerous.

Chiarini's Circus.

This grand combination of equestrian, gymnastic and equine talent will commence a season of entertainments at Wilson's Amphitheatre on New Montgomery street on Monday next. The troupe as at present constituted comprises twenty-five star performers, thirty trained horses and ponies, the performing guanaco and monkeys, and the Fusi-Ya-Ma Rocky Mountain Wonder Troupe of Japanese Court jugglers and gymnasts. On our first page will be found an interesting summary of Signor Chiarini's engagements during his two years' tour, estimates of the expense attending the transportation of his mammoth company and other particulars. We confidently predict for Signor Chiarini a season even surpassing preceding ones in this city.

Woodward's Gardens.

The Algerian Arab Troupe under direction of the famous Ali Pooldol the "Tower of Strength" will appear Saturday and Sunday in conjunction with the variety troupe and the usual Orchestral Concert.

COSMOPOLITAN BAL MASQUE.—The second of these balls is announced for Christmas Eve (Dec. 24th), at Horticultural Hall. All the best features of the last one will be retained, the Clodoch dances, the special French "choral" quadrilles, etc. In addition, 40 young ladies will give a grand "Marche des Amazones Californiennes" dressed in glittering plated armour, and led by a lady of surpassing beauty. There will also be French comic quadrilles by ladies only, a superior band, and all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of both masquers and spectators. Tickets will be the same price as before.

VOICES OF THE DEAD.

A few snow-patches on the mountain-side
A few white foam-flakes from the ebbing tide,
A few remembered words of malice spent,
The record of some dead man's ill intent—
They cannot hurt us, all their sting is gone,
Their hour of cold and bitterness is done:
Yet deepest snows and fiercest lashing seas
Bring not such cold or bitter thoughts as these.

A few soiled lillies dropped by childish hands,
A few dried orange blossoms from distant lands,
A few remembered smiles of some lost friend.
Few words of love some dear, dead fingers penned.
They are not beautiful for love to see,
And death's pale presence seems in them to be;
Yet never living blooms, most fresh and gay,
Fill us with thoughts of love so sweet as they.

—F. W. Bourdillon in the London Spectator.

A California Girl.

A correspondent of the Sacramento Union writing from Sutter Creek, November 15th, gives this account of one of the period: The Atlantic papers sometimes tell us of a farmer's daughter who raked hay with a horse or drove a mowing machine, but I think that California can boast of as noble a girl as any of them. A French girl, eighteen years of age, has hauled cordwood, two trips a day, five miles, averaging a cord and three-quarters to a load, over a rocky and mountainous road, with four horses nearly every day the past summer. She is usually the first one on the road in the morning and frequently the last one at night. She sits high upon her spring seat, with her whip and four lines in her hand and her foot on the brake, managing her team with as much grace and ease as any man. Her voice and appearance are entirely feminine. She is of medium size. She is always accompanied by her father, who lifts the heavy sticks, but can neither drive a team nor speak much English. Her well-fitting, dark calico dress, her calf-skin laced boots, her black, broad-brimmed palm-leaf hat, and her long buckskin gloves, all seem to be well selected and fitted to her business. Her brown hair hangs in two neat braids back over her shoulders. She is usually more or less dusty, but it can be seen that it is only the dust of that day. When she passes down the street she turns her eyes neither to the right nor to the left, and seldom speaks to anyone unless she is spoken to or has business with them.

A Righteous Judge.

There is a man in Chicago who admires whistling as much as we do. He is a negro minstrel, and the other night he was singing a song, when a man in the audience began whistling an accompaniment. Now, this minstrel had been rotten-egged, and had bouquets of carrots thrown at him, but he had never lost his equanimity. The whistling was the straw too much, and giving a wild whoop he dashed into the audience, pounced upon the whistler, and commenced caressing his nose with his fist. Both were arrested, and the whistler made a charge of assault and battery. The judge heard the charge, then listened to the explanation, and turning to the whistler said: "Look here, my friend, if you don't clear out of here mighty quick I'll send you to the Arsenal for ten days." Then turning to the minstrel he held out his hand and took that of the corked gentleman and shook it warmly, saying, "Why didn't you give it to him warmer? Any man that comes before me for killing a whistler will be discharged instantly."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 48 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since 3-cj

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a modle of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

A Smart Chinaman.

The Sacramento Bee says: A long white box marked as freight from Corinne and consigned to Ah Chung, Sacramento, attracted considerable attention at the depot the other morning. The box was adorned with epitaphs in Chinese, and eulogies to departed spirits in the classic Thibetion hieroglyphics, indicating that within that lay the segregated anatomy of dead Chinamen who have almost reached that point

When dead and turned to clay,
May stop a hole to keep the wind away.

The receipt of this box of bones revived a legend of the depot to the effect that the Company once refused to pass such mingled remains, and so informed the Celestial consignee at that place. "All light, you keep 'em, then," was the laconic reply of the wily heathen, and the horror-stricken clerks had to "pass 'em." When a sufficiently stupendous pile of bones has been congregated here they will be shipped to San Francisco and thence to China, necessitating an item under the head of "Through Freight of 'Corpses,' one car." Sic transit gloria Chinee.

A Bad Accent.

A German and a Frenchman, walking together, were attracted by a pig, whose cries resembled the word oui. "Listen," said the German, "the pig is a countryman of yours; he speaks French." "Ah! mon cher, but he speaks with a villainous German accent."

A Righteous Country.

A man had better have a millstone tied to his neck and be cast into the sea than to promise to marry a Texas girl and then refuse. The whole country turns out to hunt him, and he is generally left to grow up with the trees.

Pardonable Grief.

When a Chicago woman answered the door-bell and was informed that her husband had been drowned, she sank down and whispered: "And the bill for $80 worth of false hair is to come up at four o'clock—ooh-hoo-ooh!"

A Mere Incumbrance.

An Iowa man has applied for a divorce on the ground that his wife is an invalid. They began life in a vine-embosomed cottage. It was at the wash-tub that she caught a severe cold. He drives a charcoal wagon, and expects to be happy in heaven.

Much to be Thankful For.

Beecher thanks the Lord for the spiritual advancement, during the tribulations of the past year. Moulton says he will be doggoned if he can see it. Tilton has not been heard from.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A meritorious article may be cheap as well, and our maxim has been and always will be, to sell a first-rate article at the lowest PRICE POSSIBLE. Foreign Theatricals.

Mr. and Mrs. Bandmann have been acting at the Prince of Wales Theatre, Birmingham, with success.

Mr. Charles Mathews has been appearing in a round of characters at Belfast, Ireland, and in other provincial cities of Great Britain.

Mrs. John Wood and Miss Rose Le Clercq are to play the "wives" in a revival of "The Merry Wives of Windsor," at the Gaiety Theatre, London.

Mr. Barry Sullivan is still playing his farewell engagements in Ireland, prior to leaving for America. He is supported by Miss Rose Coghlan.

Miss Kate Stanley, with her English Opera Bouffe Company, has made a very successful tour throughout England, and will appear in an important part at a London theatre on her return. This young lady will be remembered as the Stalacta of a former "Black Crook."

Among the chief pantomimes at the London Theatres, Christmas, will be "Little Red Riding Hood" and the "Babes in the Wood" at Covent Garden; "Aladdin" at Drury Lane; "Little Boy Blue" at the Marylebone; the "Sleeping Beauty" at the Albion; "Cinderella" at the Crystal Palace; and "Robinson Crusoe" at the Standard. The Holborn and Princess also give pantomimes.

A Manager's Troubles.

The Chicago papers have given considerable space to the theatrical row which resulted in the withdrawal of Fred Williams and S. H. Murdoch from Hooley's Theatre, and to comments thereon. The press is altogether on the side of the gentlemen above named. The Times says:

In parting with Mr. Murdoch he (Mr. Hooly) parts with the ablest general comedian he ever had, or ever will have. In losing Mr. Williams he loses one of the best stage managers in the country. But he still retains an envious, jangling pack of people, who will see to it that life is made miserable to him the instant he hires anybody who chances to prove more of a public favorite than themselves. Encouraged by their triumph in this instance, they will plot, fume, pout and whine hereafter as in the past, until they again oust their betters from the company.

Fechter.

Charles Fechter was one of an audience assembled in a St. Louis theatre last week, and the lady correspondent of a St. Louis paper thus refers to the event:

The political and aristocratic lights in the house paled before one luminary, who, during the evening, sauntered in and stood a few minutes, reserved and dignified, wrapped in a short military sort of cloak. Who, that was a stranger to that heavy, dull face and solid form, would think that he or she was gazing on the greatest artist of modern times—wonderful Charles Fechter—who can throw off those every-day trappings and move about the stage more gracefully than the sweetest man among all the theatrical lady-killers, whose dull eyes can fairly blaze with passion, and whose slightest gesture can express more than any other actor's whole repertoire of action.

Mrs. F. W. Lander.

The Philadelphia All Day City Item says: That unhappy old lady, Mrs. F. W. Lander, is failing everywhere. She played last week in Augusta, Georgia, and did not succeed in drawing half houses. One of the country papers of the South pronounces her Cleopatra "simply sublime." Would not "sublimely ridiculous" be more appropriate? The "hard road to travel" of the unhappy Madame Lander is: Atlanta, Georgia, on December 7th and 8th; Chatanooga, Tenn., on the 9th; Nashville, on the 10th, 11th and 12th; Louisville, for a week commencing on the 14th, and Indianapolis one week from the 21st.

Santa Claus

Is not a myth if Christmas candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. In fact, George Haas & Co., No. 20 Kearny street, has facsimiles of Santa Claus (in Candy) that are really good enough to eat. His holiday stock of home-made candies and bon-bon boxes cannot be excelled anywhere, as a visit to his store will show. K

Religious Intelligence.

San Mateo has at present three pretty churches—Roman Catholic, Episcopalian and Congregationalist. The Episcopalian is one of the most beautiful in the United States. The religious element is strong in this charming town. The last issue of the Times contains the following gratifying intelligence:

San Mateo is about to be placed in the front rank of California towns. In a week more we are to have a Chinese Joss House erected. The lot next to the blacksmith shop has been leased and the lumber is already on the ground. We wonder whether the preaching of the teachings of Confucius will have the effect to make the heathen Chinee come down in his present high charges for supplying us with clean linen. We hope so, for we are not particularly anxious to form the acquaintance of a Judge in bankruptcy by means of a wash bill, which at present seems to be the inevitable result.

ANTISELL PIANO CO.

Capital Stock, $500,000

If You Want a Piano, Buy at Headquarters, and don't be fooled into buying advertised worthless trash. Buy an ANTISELL PIANOFORTE, and you have the best Piano made, and indorsed by hundreds of our leading artists and musicians throughout California. We sell at manufacturers' prices, and having a large capital and business are enabled to undersell agents who are only middlemen. Agents have to pay high prices to cover their long credits, and usually make the enormous profits of from $100 to $500. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. We have just received from our factory a fine assortment that we offer at a small advance, either for cash or instalments, instead of renting. They are overstrung bass Agraffes, French action, etc., possessing every improvement recognized by people of cultivated musical taste, and the grand result is that for power, sweetness, brilliancy, and singing quality of tone, evenness throughout the entire scale, delicacy and elasticity of touch, strength, durability, beauty and finish, the ANTISELL PIANO stands unequalled.

N. B.—We sold our miscellaneous stock at auction, which consisted of Steinway & Son, Chickering, and Decker Brothers, as it don't pay to keep those makes, we find the demand so limited.

Opera House.

A full and fashionable house was present at this temple of Momus last evening, and every act was received with roars of laughter. A more enjoyable programme than that presented at the Opera House cannot be found anywhere. The company is particularly happy in its comic elements, and Leopold and Geraldine's act has just enough of the thrilling in it to give a strong contrast. The usual matinee to-morrow.

California Theatre.

John McCullough will appear in his great character of Othello, and will give the grandest impersonation of the jealous Moor that can be seen on the American or English stage. "Othello" will be played for this night only, and we predict that an immense house will be present to witness its production. "Richelieu" will be performed at the matinee to-morrow, and "Jack Cade" will be produced in the evening Monday. "Venice Preserved."

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

In addition to usual first part and interludes of songs and dances, "The Ash Barrel," "Justice for an Hour," Professor Fowler Outdone," and "Here She Goes and Their She Goes," will constitute the bill to-night. "The Prince of the Blue Isles," a very pretty fairy extravaganza will be produced on Christmas Eve.

"The Enchantress."

The people at Maguire's New Theatre are rehearsing night and day for the production of the grand musical spectacle of "The Enchantress," which will receive its first representation on the 24th instant. Miss Ada Hope has been engaged for Stella, Walter Campbell for Pacheco, J. K. Mortimore for Duke d'Aquillo and Harry Courtaine for Dr. Mathanasius. Among the great scenes may be mentioned the deck of the pirate ship "Helios," "The Abode of the Enchantress," "The Vestibule of the Regent's Palace," and the grand transformation scene entitled "The March of Aurora."

Fred. Whymper's Benefit.

The full programme to be performed at Maguire's New Theatre on Saturday evening when Fred Whymper will take a benefit, is published on our first page. It is a very attractive one. First, we are to have Miss Blanche Galton and Thomas Whiffen in the new operetta of "Terrible Hymen," which will be performed on this occasion for the first time in California. Then will come a musical olio in which Alfred Kelleher, Miss Blanche Galton, N. Cohen, the Brothers Kohler, C. Makin, the Misses McCabe, Alban Corfield, Josh Davis, Julius Heinrichs and Louis Schmidt, and Oscar Weil, will take part. The performance will terminate with the musical comedietta of "Jenny Lind" in which the piquante Miss Sydney Cowell and the ever-popular George Giddens will play the leading characters. In addition to these attractions three original paintings will be disposed of by lot among the audience, and a prize of ten dollars will be given to the author of the best conundrum. Apart from the popularity of the beneficiary such attractions should crowd the theatre to overflowing.

Platt's Hall.

Hepworth Dixon will give character readings on Monday evening next, from "New America." In such competent hands these readings must prove interesting and entertaining in the highest degree.

Wilson's Amphitheatre.

Professors Rockwell and Hurlburt will give their last exhibition with their finely trained horse "Mazeppa" on Saturday evening at eight o'clock, for ladies and children, when 25 cents admission will be charged to keep out the rabble. Several "ungovernable" horses will be broke on the occasion. They exhibit their wonderful mastery over untractable horses next week at Oakland.

Chiarini's Circus.

This grand combination of equestrian, gymnastic and equine talent will commence a season of entertainments at Wilson's Amphitheatre on New Montgomery street on Monday next. The troupe as at present constituted comprises twenty-five star performers, thirty trained horses and ponies, the performing guanaco and monkeys, and the Fusi-Ya-Ma Rocky Mountain Wonder Troupe of Japanese Court jugglers and gymnasts. On our first page will be found an interesting summary of Signor Chiarini's engagements during his two years' tour, estimates of the expense attending the transportation of his mammoth company and other particulars. We confidently predict for Signor Chiarini a season even surpassing preceding ones in this city.

Woodward's Gardens.

The Algerian Arab Troupe under direction of the famous Ali Fooldol the "Tower of Strength" will appear Saturday and Sunday in conjunction with the variety troupe and the usual Orchestral Concert.

City Gardens.

The Spanish acrobats and gymnasts, five in number, will appear in their original and attractive performances here on Sunday. All their feats are executed twenty feet from the ground. In addition an instrumental concert will be given by Alper's Band, and a ball in both pavilions day and evening, all for twenty-five cents.

COSMOPOLITAN BAL MASQUE.—The second of these balls is announced for Christmas Eve (Dec. 24th), at Horticultural Hall. All the best features of the last one will be retained, the Clodoch dances, the special French "choral" quadrilles, etc. In addition, 40 young ladies will give a grand "Marche des Amazones Californiennes" dressed in glittering plated armour, and led by a lady of surpassing beauty. There will also be French comic quadrilles by ladies only, a superior band, and all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of both masquers and spectators. Tickets will be the same price as before.

Holiday Confectionery.

A fine assortment of holiday candies and new styles of Christmas tree trimmings, fancy boxes, costume bon-bons, cornucopias, sugar fruits and fancy articles just received at J. Vogeley & Brothers, late of the Mechanics' Fair of 1874, 26 Second street, near Grand Hotel.

DYSPEPSIA, CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, and a thousand ills that life is heir to, cured by Drs. Fonseca & O'Neill. See advertisement and references in another column.

HERE AND THERE.

The maiden of the hostel
Stands at the set of sun;
The soldiers halt full gayly,
She has but eyes for one.
He drains the cup she brings him,
His bearded lips are wet;
"A kiss, sweetheart!" he whispers,
"No! No!" says Colinette.

Out from her green-leaved lattice
She leans and looks below,
As farther, ever farther,
Away the soldiers go.
His last words were reproachful
And in her sad ears yet—
"Farewell may be forever!"
"Ay me!" says Colinette.

The cruel war is over,
Once more with her is he;
"You've learnt to love since last we met,"
He says; but naught says she.
"You'll wed the happy Somebody,
And me you'll quite forget!
Would I were he, my darling!"
"You are!" says Colinette.

Fashion's Vagaries.

The latest style of felt hat is called the Albion. It turns up on both sides, lies close to the head, and is worn low upon the forehead. It is trimmed with a long ostrich plume.

Elaborately-beaded slides fasten the heavy sashes in vogue, while bands and festoons made of velvet, or to harmonize with the dress material, and embroidered with jet, are used for the revers as side trimmings, or to define different portions of the garment.

Costumes of beaded lace, in white and black, are among the winter novelties for evening wear. Those in black are very effective over colored dresses of the bright, becoming evening shades.

Chatelaines instead of the former pendants, have exquisite watches in oxydized silver, tortoise shell, onyx or jet, attached, and are made of solid silver, beautifully wrought.

Velvet polonaises and jackets are very stylishly trimmed with gray or silver fox fur, and with them are worn hats of gray "velvet" felt, trimmed with black velvet and natural ostrich feather, or bonnets of gray satin and black velvet.

There is a great deal of luxury in underclothing for those who have money to spend. Pale, pink silk hose, fine as lace, are used with strapped shoes of silk or satin, made of the material of the dress or its trimmings. Corsets are made of white satin, richly embroidered with white silk, and underskirts of palest pink or blue flannel, are also embroidered with white silk and bordered with double ruffles of Valenciennes lace.

Felt hats are superseded by velvet ones for dress occasions, though the creamy felt hat, handsomely trimmed, is very stylish for evening wear. In all cases where felt is used for the theatre, the color and style of the trimming should harmonize nicely with the rest of the costume, and thus the tout ensemble is what it should be—perfection.

GOTES.—These is nannigotes and billigotes, and the young one is a kid. Gotes is good to give milk, and they will pull a four weeler if its made to their mesure. Wen a gote has been tot to ware a saddle and be rode by a monky it thinks hisself better than the others, and stomps its feet like it wasent satisfide not to be hevvier on the groun.

Wen we was movin out the other house to this un Billy had took a big lookin glass to the truck and leaned it against the weel wile he handed up sum thing els, and wile nobody was a lookin a big gote he came up and saw hisself in the glass, and that was more than he would stan, so he backed off and took a run and a jump with his hed down. The glas was broke all to pieces, but the gote was cot between the spokes of the weel an hel fas. Wen it was took out it run round to the other side of the track and lookt a cros the fiels, and shook its hed like sayin you got away this time, but you wudent if it wasent for the waggon bein in the way, and you better not let me catch you in these parts agin mister.

Gotes has beerds, but if I was a gote Ide shave cos I think beerds and no mustatch looks jes sick. They chews cuds like cows wich isent a nice thing to do, they may say wot they like. The gote skin my mother kepes for cleanin the silver with is shammy but if I was her Ide have the real if it cud be got.

THE SWOLLER.—This is a bird wich needs a deal of exercise to keep it helthy, but it is funny to think it all ways takes it at meal times, wich is like it wud be if I was to box with Billy across the table at dinner, and I know that wuddent be helthy for us if my father was to dinner that day. The swoller has a forked tale like a fish but no scales. Wen it comes on cole in the winter the swollers git to gather and roll up in balls and lies at the bottom of the brooks under the ice till spring; but uncle Ned he says no, that's only fit for ole womens; but I dont think its as fit for them as the swollers cause they haint no fethers to kepe out the wet.

The business of swollers is mosely to at ten the funerals of flyin insecks. It is essimated by competent orthorities that a average swoller eats five hundred millions of insecks before it dies, and the book wich I coppid this from says that shoes how bounty full nature is in providin for the support of life.

A swoller likes to skim along the surfice of the water; but my mother she likes to skim along the surfice of the milk. Billy says its all very well to tok about skimmin milk, but she dont, she skins it. He says swollers is the sea guls of a fish pond. If he's a goin in for nattel history I'me for jogrify, that's how it is.

Ive see it some were that one swoller dont make a summer, but my father he says that summer makes one swoller. I spose he means drink, but he don't wait for summer, I can tell you.

THE HYENA.—I don't like this beast a bit, nor the way it gits its livin if wot they say is true.

One day ole doktor Bolus was to our house, and he an uncle Ned was a tokkin about Injy, were they both lived, uncle Ned a sojering, and the doktor was a surgin like he is here. Wen they spoke of hyenas the doktor said that one night he was in the cemmetary in Injy, standin by a new made grave with two friends, and they herd feet steps and hid thereselves to see who it was. The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

VIRGINIA CITY.—W. J. Florence commenced an engagement at Piper's Opera House on Monday evening. He appeared as Captain Cuttle in "Dombey and Son," and in "The Irish Lion." This bill was repeated on the following night. On Wednesday, "No Thoroughfare" was presented, and this also was played two nights. Mr. Florence drew crowded houses, the public showing their appreciation of the enterprise displayed by Manager Piper in securing every attraction regardless of cost. There is some talk of building a new theatre. It will be hard to find a manager who can compete with Piper.

SACRAMENTO.—The Amateur Circle gave a dramatic and musical entertainment at Turner's Hall on Wednesday of this week.

SAN JOSE.—Hepworth Dixon delivered his lecture on "The German Empire" on Wednesday, to an exceedingly select audience. He has declined under the circumstances to deliver the second one, "The Tower of London." Charles Vivian and his comedy company will perform during New Year's week. We hope the San Jose people will turn out from their firesides on this occasion. The Patriot suggests opening a subscription list to secure John McCullough for one night in "The Gladiator" at the Opera House. That is a good idea.

LIVERMORE.—The Vivian Combination, consisting of Charles Vivian, William Simms, J. B. Robinson, Bonnie Runnels, Jennie Reiffarth, Imogene Holbroook and Lipsis and wife, showed here Dec. 18.

STOCKTON.—The Vivian Combination will open here December 21st, and play through Christmas week.

SAN MATEO.—On Tuesday next a number of professionals and amateurs from San Francisco will give an entertainment for the benefit of the Congregational Church. All creeds will combine in trying to make it a success.

SILVER CITY.—The Wheeler Comedy Company appeared at Armory Hall on the 16th and 17th.

EMPIRE.—The Wheeler Troupe were here last night, and will perform again to-night.

PORTLAND.—Madame Duret and company appeared at the Oro Fino Theatre on the 12th, in a scene from "Lucretia Borgia" and a comedy.

SALT LAKE.—Mlle. Lottie, Frank and Katie, and Rickards, the character vocalist, terminated their engagement at the theatre on the 15th, when they took a benefit.

CHEYENNE.—McDaniel's Theatre is doing a good business with a good variety company. Mlle. De Granville, the lady with the iron jaw, appeared at the Opera House on the 14th, 15th and 16th.

Is not a myth if Christmas candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. His holiday stock of home-made candies and bon-bon boxes cannot be excelled anywhere, as a visit to his store will show. K

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

The Paris correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph writes. "And now for Offenbach's novelty. First, the libretto. It is by M. Albert Millaud, a writer distinguished for wit, even in the witty press of Paris. For "Madame Archiduc" he has composed a plot, not quite original, but very amusing. In a certain, or rather uncertain, Archduchy, a body of conspirators meet at a village inn, where the head waiter has just been married to the rosiere of the district. Their object is to upset the Archduke, and to put his rival on the throne Surprised by a party of dragoons, they persuade Marietta and her husband to pass themselves off as the pretender and his Countess. They are duly arrested and taken before the Archduke, who falls in love with Marietta and becomes so very mad as to abdicate in her favor. She immediately sets her husband free and names all the captive conspirators for her Cabinet. They the former revolutionists, became conservative, of a pantomimic type, while the Archduke and his late Ministers conspire with all their might. The condition of Marietta is discovered in good time, the Archduke regains his throne, and a happy compromise unites both parties of conspirators in a single Cabinet. As there is nothing to choose between their politics—so long as they receive the official salary—the sovereign gives his ear to one party the first three days of the week, and to the other the remaining three, keeping for his sole use and statesmanship the Sunday.

Much interest has been excited in the literary world by the announcement of a new drama by M. Victorien Sardou, "La Haine," which will be performed at the Gaite Theatre. M. Sardou is one of the ablest playwrights in France. Every piece he writes attracts much notice. It is stated that "La Haine" will be among the most characteristic plays, and it will certainly give rise to warm discussions. The author, as is understood, has just concluded an arrangement with a London manager, so that the piece will be played simultaneously in French and English.

Mr. J. H. Barnes, who came to this country to support Miss Neilson, is meeting with favor wherever he goes. A Toronto journal says of him: "Mr. Barnes, who took the part of Romeo, is an actor of great ability and power, and his rendition of that character was in perfect keeping with the superb acting of Miss Neilson;" while a Cincinnati journal says: "The Romeo of the evening was Mr. J. H. Barnes. He is a handsome young Englishman who accompanies Miss Neilson. He dresses the part with care, is gentlemanly in action, and reads with a vigor that shows praiseworthy ambition. While absorbed in the central star, the audience found time to call the young actor before the curtain after the killing of Tybalt, and to applaud him several times." Miss Neilson and Mr. Barnes opened in St. Louis December 14th.

Rossi, the great Italian actor, has been engaged by Mr. Grau, and will appear in this country next season.

Mr. Evlyn Bellew, a son of the late J. M. Bellew, is about to make his appearance in England as a reader.

The American dwarf, Admiral Dot, died lately in Paris.

We have just received from our factory a fine assortment that we offer at a small advance, either for cash or instalments, instead of renting. They are overstrung bass Agraffes, French action, etc., possessing every improvement recognized by people of cultivated musical taste, and the grand result is that for power, sweetness, brilliancy, and singing quality of tone, evenness throughout the entire scale, delicacy and elasticity of touch, strength, durability, beauty and finish, the ANTISELL PIANO stands unequalled.

Amusements, Etc.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—The full programme to be performed at Maguire's New Theatre this evening, when Fred. Whymper will take a benefit, is published on our first page It is a very attractive one. First, we are to have Miss Blanche Galton and Thomas Whiffen in the new operetta of "Terrible Hymen," which will be performed on this occasion for the first time in California. Then will come a musical olio in which Alfred Kelleher, Miss Blanche Galton, N. Cohen, the Brothers Kohler, C. Makin, the Misses McCabe, Alban Corfield, Josie Davis, Julius Heinrichs and Louis Schmidt, and Oscar Weil, will take part. The performance will terminate with the musical comedietta of "Jenny Lind" in which the piquante Miss Sydney Cowell and the ever-popular George Giddens will play the leading characters In addition to these attractions three original paintings will be disposed of by lot among the audience, and a prize of ten dollars will be given to the author of the best conundrum. Apart from the popularity of the beneficiary such attractions should crowd the theatre to overflowing.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—There was a capital house last night, when John McCullough appeared in the character of Othello, in which no actor on the English speaking stage at the present day can approach him, and in which no one, save Salvini, can be said to surpass him in power of expression; and this comes of temperament rather than of any superiority in his conception of the part. Mr McCullough last night held the audience enchained. Never before has he so sunk his individuality in that of the character he represented. It was indeed the Moor of Venice who passed through those terrible scenes. In the tender passages, the same improvement in voice was observable to which we have before drawn attention. In the impassioned scene Mr. McCullough was grand, superb. The Iago of Barton Hill was a highly finished and thoroughly intellectual performance. He did not let the villainy of the character be so transparent as to render Othello quite so much a fool in the eyes of those who witnessed his agonies, as many actors do. He had a winning way with him calculated to deceive, and was intensely, but not ostentatiously in earnest in carrying out his well-conceived plans. As Desdemona, Miss Ellie Wilton left nothing to be desired; she looked very pretty and interesting, dressed splendidly, and read her lines unaffectedly and with deep feeling. Miss Bella Pateman in yielding the part of Desdemona to Miss Wilton lost nothing, but gained much in the estimation of the public. Leading ladies are not often willing to give up leading roles to juvenile actresses, least of all (unfortunately) for the true, honest artistic purpose of having the part more faithfully represented. As we said before, Miss Pateman lost nothing; more than this, she achieved a veritable triumph in the role of Emilia, and perfectly electrified the audience by the power she displayed in the famous speech in the fourth act. T. W. Keene did some taking acting in the character of Cassio, and Nelson Decker, who always acts naturally, made a good Roderigo. The rest of the characters were well played, and the piece was finely put on the stage. At the matinee to-day, "Richelieu" will be performed, and to-night "Jack Cade" will be presented with John McCullough in the title role. The business of the week has been very good, and Mr. McCullough has received a series of "ovations."

OPERA HOUSE.—Every night during the present week the theatre has been crowded to overflowing, and so well is the attraction kept up that the patronage is sure not to fall off. Among the best features of the bill which will be presented at the matinee to-day, this evening and to-morrow evening are Billy Emerson's song in the First Part about the cream-colored horse, and his splendid bit of character acting in the interlude entitled "Muldoon, the Solid Man;" Billy Rice and Billy Arlington's acting in "The Arrival of Bolivar;" the burlesque trio entitled "The Three Doves;" Charley Rhoades' banjo solos, and the thrilling feats on the trapeze by Leopold and Geraldine.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—Among the new acts for the Saturday and Sunday evening performances at this house, may be mentioned "I Want my Picture Taken," by Frank Mortimore, Johnny Kelly and Johnny Tuers, "Obeying Orders," by Frank Mortimore, Charley Nickerson, and Harry Devoy, and "Hotel Runners," which terminates the entertainment.

SPANISH PERFORMANCE.—On Tuesday evening of next week the Spanish dramatic company, comprising Senora Holla, Senora Alio, and Senors Molla, Barbero and Estrada, will give a performance at Maguire's New Theatre. It will commence with an original comedy in three acts by the young Mexican poet, Don Ignacio Herrera de Leon, entitled "Entre Amor y Celos Locura." After this Senora Mollo will sing the music of the Spanish dance entitled "La Habaneras del Juicio Final." The popular afterpiece, "Maruja," will conclude the evening's entertainment.

SIG. CHIARINI'S ROYAL ITALIAN CIRCUS.—This grand combination of equestrian, gymnastic and equine talent will commence a season of entertainments at Wilson's Amphitheatre on New Montgomery street on Monday next. The troupe as at present constituted comprises twenty-five star performers, thirty trained horses and ponies, the performing guanaco and monkeys, and the Fusi-Ya-Ma Rocky Mountain Wonder Troupe of Japanese Court jugglers and gymnasts. On our first page will be found the full programme of the first performance.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS. — NOVELTIES.—The Algerian Arab Troupe under direction of the famous Ali Fooldol, the "Tower of Strength," will appear Saturday and Sunday in conjunction with the variety troupe and the usual Orchestral Concert.

CITY GARDENS.—The Spanish acrobats and gymnasts, five in number, will appear in their original and attractive performances here on Sunday. All their feats are executed twenty feet from the ground. In addition, an instrumental concert will be given by Alpers' Band, and a ball in both pavilions day and evening, all for twenty-five cents.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

PLATT'S HALL.—Hepworth Dixon will give character readings on Monday evening next, from "New America." In such competent hands these readings must prove interesting and entertaining in the highest degree.

COSMOPOLITAN BAL MASQUE.—The second of these balls is announced for Christmas Eve (Dec. 24th), at Horticultural Hall. All the best features of the last one will be retained, the Cloloch dances, the special French "choral" quadrilles, etc. In addition, 40 young ladies will give a grand "Marche des Amazones Californiennes" dressed in glittering plated armour, and led by a lady of surpassing beauty. There will also be French comic quadrilles by ladies only, a superior band, and all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of both masquers and spectators. Tickets will be the same price as before.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining-rooms. Guido Mangenberg, the proprietor, gets up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

NOTES.—On Monday of next week at the California Theatre, Otway's tragedy of "Venice Preserved" will be produced, with John McCullough as Pierre, and Barton Hill as Jaffier. It will be repeated on the following evening. On Wednesday, "Virginius" will, by general request, receive another representation. On Thursday Mr. McCullough will appear in the role of Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice." On Monday, "Hamlet" will be produced in a style never before attempted in this city, and John McCullough in his admirable impersonation of the hero.

Charles Vivian and his agent, A. F. Bailey, were in town with the troupe on Thursday, preparatory to starting for Stockton, where they perform next week. Mr. Bailey says the people of Eureka, Humboldt Co., though they enjoyed the entertainments and patronized them well, said they preferred something more solid, and tried to prevail on Vivian to put on "Hamlet," "King Lear" or "Macbeth." He compromised by producing "Ingomar," which he told them was about as solid a play as a comedy company was capable of producing.

The people at Maguire's New Theatre have been rehearsing night and day for the production of the grand musical spectacle of "The Enchantress," which will receive its first representation on the 24th inst. Miss Ada Hope has been engaged for Stella, Walter Campbell for Pacheco, J. K. Mortimore for Duke d'Aquillo and Harry Courtaine for Dr. Mathanasius. Among the great scenes may be mentioned the deck of the pirate ship "Helios," "The Abode of the Enchantress," "The vestibule of the Regent's Palace," and the grand transformation scene entitled "The March of Aurora." Among the brilliant specialty varieties introduced will be, a grand Amazon march, led by Miss Sydney Cowell; the Lu-Lu feat, which was the sensation of London for an entire season at the Alhambra; a comic can-can by a troupe of French dancers; Roman and Grecian Statues by Messrs. Austin and Johnson, models of manly beauty, and a variety of dances by the ballet.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, Strakosch will give three opera nights at the Academy of Music during Christmas week.....At Wallack's "The Shaughraun" is in the full tide of success.....At the Park Theatre, "The Gilded Age" has run over a hundred nights, and is still drawing crowded houses.....At the Lyceum, Miss Emily Soldene's English Opera Bouffe Company were playing "Chilperic." Mrs. Rousby, the handsome English actress, follows the Soldene Troupe, opening in "Twixt Axe and Crown".....At Booth's, on the 14th, Paul Feval's new sensation play entitled "The Hero of the Hour" was produced in fine style. The historical circumstances on which this new drama by Paul Feval and G. F. Rowe are founded, is the conspiracy to depose the Regent Phillippe D'Orleans. Louis the Fourteenth, in his last days, caused his children by Mme. Montespan (the Duc of Maine and the Count of Toulouse) to be legitimized, and sharers of the succession, in case of the Dauphin's death. By his last testament, the Regency was vested in a council of his illegitimate sons and others, with his nephew Orleans as President; this testament, the day after his decease, was annulled by the parliament, and Orleans unanimously elected Regent. The Duchesse of Maine, granddaughter of Conde, ambitious to assert her power, organized a conspiracy with the Duke de Celamare, the Spanish ambassador, to overthrow this act of the French parliament and place Philippe the Fifth of Spain at the head of affairs. Among the conspirators, Armand, Duc de Richelieu, figured prominently, but on the eve of its execution the plot was discovered, and the principals arrested and imprisoned. The Duc de Richelieu, the handsomest man of his day, was at this time as celebrated for his bravery as for his restlessness and unbridled profligacy. When incarcerated in the Bastile for dueling, the women of Paris gathered daily round the old fortress to catch a glimpse of their darling, and he boasted that the most beautiful and high-born dames were among the victims of his resistless fascinations. The details of the conspiracy and the Duke's adventures are so closely interwoven as to present with its scenic illustrations a picture of Paris and Parisian life in the year 1719. Henri Stuart, an actor of the French school, was engaged for the dual role of Richelieu and Raynard, his bastard brother, and Misses Lillie Eldridge and Maude Granger were included in the cast.....The San Francisco Minstrels revived the old-time negro performance of "Jim Crow," and Billy Birch made a hit in it.....At the Fifth Avenue Theatre the latest novelty was an adaptation from the Spanish, by Mr. Daly, entitled "Yorick".....At the Grand Opera House "The Black Crook" was up for a run through the holidays.....At Union Square Theatre, Miss Rose Eytinge had made her appearance in "Love's Sacrifice," and James W. Collier made his first appearance at this theatre.....At the Bowery Theatre, a new drama by J. J. McCloskey and Miss Maud Gray, in "The Statue of the Period," were the attractions.....The Olympic was doing well with new sketches by Sol Smith Russell, John F. Poole and Gus Williams. Signor Bortelli, "the man without bones," was the latest addition to the company.....At Tony Pastor's, the pantomime of "Robert Macaire" was among the attractions.... At the Theatre Comique, William Noonan and Alice Bateman, statue clog dancers, were the new arrivals and the burlesque of "The King of the Carrots" was revived .....At the Globe Theatre, Walter Bray, Miss Jennie Worrell, Ned Fox and many others were engaged, and John Woodard's "Trip to the Moon" had made a decided hit.....Frederick Maccabe was drawing large audiences at Robinson Hall.

The New York Courier, speaking of the bard, polished and cold Mr. Davenport, says: Mr. E. L. Davenport is playing a most successful engagement at Ford's Opera House, Baltimore, which has become the scene of a great Shakspearian revival, of which that eminent artist is the feature. The Press of that city speak of him as the only Shakspearian actor now on the stage and of his performances as unequalled by any living actor. We understand that the management of the Brooklyn Theatre have made arrangements for his re-appearance at that establishment at an early date.

The Indianapolis News, in a critique upon Olive Logan's performance in her comedy entitled "Surf," says: "Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like Olive Logan, and the lilies of the field would look exceedingly commonplace in her presence. The robe she wears when the curtain goes down on the last act is a magnificent show in itself."

Mr. D. W. Waller, late of Booth's Theatre, is stage manager of the new Globe Theatre, Boston.

Lawrence Barrett opens in Cleveland for one week, on the 30th.

"Arrah Na Pogue" will shortly be produced at Wood's Museum.

"Alladdin" will be the Christmas spectacle at Wood's Museum.

John Brougham opened at the Arch, Philadelphia, on the 14th.

Lawrence Barrett will appear at Booth's Theatre after Christmas.

Good gracious! After playing in the smallest theatres in the smallest towns in the United States for the past two years, Mr. Barrett will feel strange in such a large theatre as Booth's.

We find the following in a recent New York Mercury: "Jarrett & Palmer, through the agency of W. J. Florence, who is now in San Francisco, have secured from King Kalakaua an acceptance of their invitation to visit Booth's Theatre on his arrival in New York. He will be 'The Hero of the Hour.'"

A Lexington correspondent tells a story of a clergyman of that place having visited the Opera House there under the impression that a lecture was to be given. On asking a neighbor at what hour the lecture would begin, he learned that the Louisville Theatre Troupe, headed by Mrs. Macauley, was to perform. He beat a hasty retreat without having defiled his reverend eyes with the wicked show. A number of his parishioners in the audience were much astonished at his presence. They chose to sin themselves, but did not allow the privilege to their pastor.

Charles Fechter and Lizzie Price closed a week at Houston, Texas, Nov. 29; DeBar's, St. Louis, Dec. 7.

Miss Ella Chapman sailed for London 5th to join the Lydia Thompson Troupe.

Alf Burnett and Helen Nash arrived in New York Nov. 23, after four months in Europe.

J. W. McAndrews, the "Watermelon man," is playing in Buffalo.

Adelaide Philipps proposes to retire from the stage at the close of the present season.

Miss Charlotte Cushman has adopted a rather novel plan for aiding "The Sheltering Arms," a charity in which she is interested. For twenty-five cents she will send by mail her "autograph," the receipts to be appropriated to the institution named.

A London paper says: "It will seem somewhat strange to English play-goers that Mr. C. LeClercq, the whilom dancer and clown of the Haymarket, should be playing Cardinal Capucius with Miss Cushman at Booth's Theatre, New York. But so it is, and Miss Louise Henderson, a pretty extra lady from the Court Theatre, is Anne Boleyn."

The Gourlay Family, with their Scotch idiom entertainments, find themselves unappreciated in this country, and intend returning soon to England.

Shield's company closed at Moberly, Mo., 3d, thence South, with an idea of doing Texas. A paper in Pittsfield, Ill., tells a story regarding Alice Shiels, leading lady of the troupe, and J. W. Burton, the leading man. It is said that the pair wish to marry, but that Mrs. Shiels stands in the way, and locks up the young lady when at home from the theatre. On one occasion they tried to get married on the sly, but the old lady blocked them off.

The suit of Benjamin Gardner, a colored man, against John Ellsler, manager of the Cleveland Academy, has been settled in favor of the defendant. On the 11th of February, 1873, Mr. Gardner bought a ticket admitting to the dress-circle or parquet, but was prevented from taking a seat by the ushers, and was requested to leave that part of the house, under agreement that his money be returned Gardner left, but brought suit under the Civil Rights Act against Manager Ellsler. Judge Griswold, of the Superior Court, in his charge to the jury, stated in effect that a theatre was a private establishment, and that a manager had a right to exclude whomsoever he pleased from it. "The Civil Rights Act has no application whatever in this case. This plaintiff has a right to bring a suit for breach of contract for admission to the theatre, as if he were a white person. But every man has the right to use his own property as he sees fit, so that he does not injure the person or property of others. He has no right to injure their persons or character or property. So long as he does not do them wrongs, or commit nuisance, he may conduct his own business in just such manner and on just such rules as he sees fit. This right appertains as well to white as black. It is conceded that Mr. Ellsler conducts the Academy of Music for his own private gain, and if he sees fit in the management of his business to provide or establish a rule that no person of color shall be allowed to enter the 'dress-circle,' and he enforces this rule, it is no ground for any action against him by such person. Mr. Gardner, the plaintiff, might establish a theatre, and if he saw fit, he could establish a rule that no white person should be permitted to enter the dress-circle or any other portion of the house." The jury returned a verdict for the defendant.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers, New Orleans, 21st, at Varieties, and will travel with the stock of that theatre for six weeks.

Edwin Adams and Troupe, Williamsport, 25th.

Edwin Booth returned to the stage 14th, at McVicker's, Chicago, thence to Walnut, Philadelphia, 28th.

Niblo's Garden closed temporarily on the 2d, to reopen with a pantomime on the 21st. It is rumored that on the expiration of Mr. Thorne's lease in February next, the theatre will be devoted to spectacle under energetic management.

The Philadelphia Item of the 10th, speaking of the Lingard Combination at the Chestnut-Street Theatre, says:—Last evening a version of "Diane de Lys," made, we believe, by Mr. Thomas Whiffen, and called "Diane; or, the Prey of the Gods," was produced. It drew a larger audience than had assembled on Monday or Tuesday evenings.

The Philadelphia papers are too particular altogether. The Item says:

Miss Alice Dunning cannot play emotional parts. Her rendition of Diane was noisy and mechanical.

We insist that Miss Alice Dunning can play emotional parts in "society dramas."

How to Dress Well.

Over two-thirds of the best dressed gentlemen in this city (those who dress in style we mean) would say, if asked the question where they had their clothes made, that they went to John Bull's, No. 109 Third street, and would also advise you and your friends to go there if you want a perfect-fitting suit made in the latest style, from either imported or domestic goods, at the lowest price compatible with a good garment. A meritorious article may be cheap as well, and our maxim has been and always will be, to sell a first rate article at the lowest PRICE POSSIBLE. Unfortunate Boucicault.

Mr. Boucicault's name is so constantly before the public as the author of the most successful dramas of the time, that pains have been taken to ascertain as accurately as possible the number of plays he has written and the number of times each has been performed. Mr. Boucicault is declared to have written over four hundred plays. The names of the most successful are as follows, and to each is appended the number of times it has been performed. "The Colleen Bawn," 3100 times; "Arrah-na-Pogue," 2400; "London Assurance," 2900; "Rip Van Winkle," 1400; "Old Heads and Young Hearts," 1259; "The Octoroon," 1800; "Formosa," 1100; "Jessie Brown," 820; "Don Cæsar De Bazan," 1700; "The Corsican Brothers," 2200; "Used Up," 1350; "The Willow Copse," 1110; "The Streets of New York," 2860; "Led Astray," 498. These are the leading ones. Others have had a run of from 100 to 1000 nights each. The total number of all the performances must have been nearly 50,000. Assuming that the recepts to each performance averaged $500, the money paid by the public to witness these works would amount to $25,000,000. The profits of "London Assurance," when first produced at Covent Garden Theatre, as appears from the record of the management, were $120,000; the profits of the Colleen Bawn," were $200,000 in one year; the profits of "Arrah-na-Pogue," $180,000. The gross receipts of "Led Astray," last year at the Union Square Theatre, New York, amounted to $154,000, of which $80,000 were profit. On these four pieces the theatres cleared upwards of $600,006.

Hm!

The Solano Republican publishes the following remarks, which we must say we agree with perfectly:

Last week we published an original poem entitled "My Girl," which we regard as a perfect gem of poesy. The San Francisco FIGARO, which is edited by one whom the whole editorial fraternity regard as a gentleman and a scholar, reproduces it with these remarks:

The papers in the interior towns of California don't publish much original poetry. Whenever we come across anything good we are always pleased to republish it. The verses which follow, written for the Solano Republican and printed without the author's name, are above the average.

The Dixon Tribune, on the other hand, speaks of it in this wise:

The Republican's poet is out in a ten-stanza poem on "My Gal."

Breeding does make a great difference, certainly.

A Theatre-Builder.

W. J. Florence, before he left San Francisco, said he thought he would shortly return and build a theatre here. The Lyon County Times has the following:

W. J. Florence, the present star at the Opera House, thinks of building a new theatre at Virginia City. It would be a profitable investment.

How many theatres is Mr. Florence going to build? The Times also says:

FIGARO thinks Manager Piper gives his patrons a good deal for money. We agree with him.

Contempt of Court.

The Louisville Courier Journal says: A California lawyer has been fined $100 calling a judge a fool. It is no wonder that California lawyers have so little love for truth when they are charged so much for speaking it.

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest, cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Cothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Cothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

French calf boots made to order for $8; box toed gaiters made to order for $6; oxford tie shoes made to order for $6; boys' boots made to order for $3; and large assortment of boots and shoes, all of Burkhardt's own make, at equally low sales, at 540 Washington street. M

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

A delicous table delicacy. They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are as superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless saus age made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. Made fresh every morning at Bunker's Stall, 74 and 75 California Market, California street entrance. Try them. 9-s

The Green Room.

Making Bad Worse.

A man and his wife, who had been married ten years, disagreed and determined to separate. The terms of separation were to be decided by the Justice of the arondisement in which they lived. They were Parisians.

"Have you any children?" said the Judge.

"Yes, Monsieur."

"How many?"

"Three; two boys and a girl, and it is with them lies our difficulty. Madame wishes to have two of them; so do I."

Have you agreed to abide by my decision?"

"We have," said both of them.

"Very well, my friends; I condemn you to have another child, so that you may each have two. When you have obtained that you may return to me."

The matter was then adjourned for the time being. Two years afterwards the worthy magistrate, who in the meanwhile had heard nothing of the husband or wife, met the former.

'Ah, well,' said he, 'how about the separation?'

"Still impossible, Monsieur. Instead of four children we have now five."

Divide Fairly.

The Reno Crescent has the following: With every mouth that comes into this world there are two hands; and even with a pointed stick for a plow there is no part of the inhabited world in which the soil will not yield a living to the cultivator and his family. How then is it, that with all our labor saving machinery and all our division of labor, which should but add to its productive power, there are hands, willing to work, which cannot satisfy the mouth. Evidently something is wrong. What is it? Let us answer Yankee fashion. Supposing that a dinner were spread for one hundred, but at which, instead of each taking his place, eating what he wanted and leaving the rest, each one should grab for all in sight, and gather up the food in piles, regardless of how much he could eat; would not some be apt to go hungry? What would we think of a guest who would pre-empt half a dozen plates, and let five other men, with as good invitations as he, stand hungry?

A Lawyer' Defence.

Among the traditions of Westminster Hall is one a certain Sergeant Davy, who flourished some centuries back, in a darker age than the present. He was accused, once upon a time, by his brethren of the coif, of having degraded their order by taking from a client a fee in copper. On being solemnly arraigned for his offence in the Common Hall, it appears, from the unwritten reports of the Court of Common Pleas, that he defended himself by the following plea of confession and avoidance: "I fully admit that I took a fee from him in copper; and not only one, but several; and not only fees in copper, but fees in silver. But I pledge my honor as a sergeant that I never took a single fee from him in copper until I had got all his silver; and you don't call that a degradation of our order?"

A Sensitive Soul.

We have just heard of a man who, while satisfied to live as an inmate of the almshouse, has a sensitive nature that revolts at the thought of being buried at the public expense. To prevent such ignominy he has actually gone to work. He makes skewers for the butchers, and his success has been such that he has purchased a burial lot and a tombstone, and is now probably saving up for a nice, comfortable coffin.

Cool.

The Denver News records this incident: A man was about dying in that city, and an acquaintance sent the following letter to his wife, who was in Chicago: "Your husband is dying. Come quick." She coolly replied: "Can't go now. If he dies, hand over to the Masons; he's one of them." The man died. The woman has not been heard from since.

Good Gracious!

Rev. Talmage says he shall not stop until every theatre in America is levelled to the ground. Where's that fellow who said perpetual motion could never be invented?

Won't be Shocked.

The Call says:

Bradlaugh, who is a very profane man in religion, but a sound man in politics, like Tom Paine, proposes to visit San Francisco.

He'll feel quite at home here, and won't feel offended as Canon Kingsley did when addressed thusly by an inhabitant, "I'm—— if I'm not——glad to see you by——You are a ——————, and I always said you were————I did." This won't be unpleasant to Bradlaugh if he can make a little money. He failed miserably in the Eastern States, and isn't likely to do very well in bringing his profanity to a market already overstocked with the article.

CO-OPERATION

....OF....

Men, Capital and Enterprise.

SECURE YOUR CHRISTMAS AND NEW-YEAR GIFTS.

NEWARK,

Alameda County.

$300 Per Share and No Assessments.

The Town of Newark, now being laid out in Alameda County, will consist of 4,000 acres, 2,500 acres of which will be divided into 80-acre plats, subdivided into one-acre lots, and 5,000 Town Lots, each 52 feet by 105 feet, besides others for donations to religious and public uses, a public Park of 50 acres, warehouses, hotels, dwelling houses, etc., for sale. To provide funds for this enterprise, and to carry out the project at once, there will be offered for sale 2,500 shares at $300 each, which will entitle each shareholder to a one-acre plat and two town lots, and a pro rata interest in all improvements projected by the Directors. The payments will be $100 in January, $100 in March, and $100 in May, 1875, and when two payments have been made, the remainder will be put up at auction to the public, and all premiums will be divided among the shareholders, and it is believed will amount to sufficient to cover the last payment. It is thought by this co-operation that every share will double in value in six months, as the land is put in at $125 per acre, which is a very low price for so large a piece of land so near San Francisco.

Persons of small means will note that they can here get a country homestead complete for $1,000, and an interest in a live country location, with easy, cheap communication with San Francisco. Estimates show that bungalow houses can be erected, containing parlor, two bedrooms, closets, kitchen, etc., at a cost not to exceed $1,000 each, and as a sale of the one-acre plat or the two town lots will probably cover the cost of the land, it is easily seen how any person can have a cheap country home, or pleasant Summer residence, at a great outlay. The climate is equal to anything in America, and its benefits cannot but recommend it to invalids and pleasure-seekers. The distance to the Warm Sulphur Springs is only six miles. The soil is unsurpassed in fertility, its products not to be excelled, and water is abundant for every purpose.

No similar enterprize can compete with this either in cheapness or location, and being entirely on the co-operative plan, fair alike to all, must benefit this community and all outsiders.

For certificates of climate, productions, etc., maps of the property, and any information relative to this enterprise, apply at the office of the Association.

We have just received from our factory a fine assortment that we offer at a small advance, either for cash or instalments, instead of renting. They are of surpassing bass Agraffes, French action, etc., possessing every improvement recognized by people of cultivated musical taste, and the grand result is that for power, sweetness, brilliancy, and singing quality of tone, evenness throughout the entire scale, delicacy and elasticity of touch, strength, durability, beauty and finish, the ANTISELL PIANO stands unequalled.

Opera House.

A new bill will be performed to-night. The first part will end with the descriptive finale entitled "The Graduates" by Emerson, Kemble, and company. Billy Emerson has made a great hit in "Muldoon, the Solid Man;" it is one of the best of the many good things he has done." "The Three Doves" by Billy Rice, Ben Cotton and Billy Arlington, are as popular as ever, Leopold and Geraldine appear in their thrilling feats on the trapeze and Billy Rice winds up the evening's fun in Scenes at the Cosmopolitan Hotel.

California Theatre.

To-night Otway's famous play entitled "Venice Preserved" will be presented for the first time on this side of the Rocky Mountains. John McCullough will play Pierre, Barton Hill Jaffier, John Wilson the Duke of Venice, Henry Edwards, Priuli, Robert Pateman as Renault, S. W. Leach as Friar, E. N Thayer Spinosa, Nelson Decker Bedamar, H. Coad as Captain of the Guard, H. Mestayer as Elliot, and Miss Bella Pateman as Belvidera. "Virginius" will be revived on Wednesday, on Thursday, "The Merchant of Venice" will be played, and on Friday and Saturday "The Gladiator."

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

The screaming act of "The Hotel Runners," with Frank Mortimore, John Kelly and Charley Nickerson in the cast; "The Two Tragedians," by Charley Nickerson and Johnny Tuers, and a variety of other acts will be performed to-night.

Platt's Hall.

Hepworth Dixon will to-night follow up his lectures on the old world by readings from his book New America. This entertainment will be of a higher description than those which have preceeded it.

Mercantile Library Hall.

Risley's beautiful panorama entitled "The Mirror of England" will reopen this evening, and once more the public will be delighted with the lovely landscapes of Telbin, Hughe and Phillips. An evening can be very pleasantly spent at Mercantile Library Hall.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

The programme of the opening night of Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus at Wilson's Amphitheatre is a very varied and brilliant one. It is published in full on our first page. Among the features may be mentioned the grand entree and evolutions entitled "The Queen's Lancers," by four ladies and four gentlemen, under the command of Signor Chiarini, on his famous horse Garibaldi; Kikuda Kunita in juggling feats; the two learned horses, Prince and Duke; Grecian sports on three barebacked steeds by Theodore Cuba; a principal equestrian act by Mons. Herbert, "The Triumph of L'Africaine;" the thrilling act by the dashing Senorita Belen Cuba and Madame Annereau; Romeo Sebastian, the Anglo-American somersault equestrian, and the "Corsican Postboy," by Master Tommy Leon. The California clown Dave Long, is engaged for the season. There will be an immence house at the Amphitheatre to-night.

SPANISH PERFORMANCE.—On Tuesday evening of next week the Spanish dramatic company, comprising Senora Holla, Senora Alio and Senors Molla, Barbero and Estrada, will give a performance at Maguire's New Theatre. It will commence with an original comedy in three acts by the young Mexican poet, Don Ignacio Herrera de Leon, entitled "Entre Amor y Celos Locura." After this Senora Mollo will sing the music of the Spanish dance entitled "La Habaneras del Juicio Final." The popular afterpiece, "Maruja," will conclude the evening's entertainment.

COSMOPOLITAN BAL MASQUE.—The second of these balls is announced for Christmas Eve (Dec 24th), at Horticultural Hall. All the best features of the last one will be retained, the Clodoch dances, the special French "choral" quadrilles, etc. In addition, 40 young ladies will give a grand "Marche des Amazones Californiennes" dressed in glittering plated armour, and led by a lady of surpassing beauty. There will also be French comic quadrilles by ladies only, a superior band, and all arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of both masquers and spectators. Tickets will be the same price as before.

Notes.

Fred. Whymper's benefit at Maguire's New Theatre on Saturday night was not a very profitable one, but the entertainment was excellent. Miss Blanche Galton and Thomas Whiffen performed the pretty operetta of "Terrible Hymen" in good style. In the olio one of the most pleasing features was the singing of the Misses McCabe in the duet, "I Pescatore." They were most enthusiastically encored. In "Jenny Lind," Miss Sydney Cowell, George Giddens and Harry Thompson did some excellent acting. The conundrums sent in to compete for the prize were pretty bad. We didn't know such bad ones could be made.

SO GOES THE WORLD.

Our varied days pass on and on,
Our hopes fade unfulfilled away,
And things which seem the life of life
Are taken from us day by day;
And yet through all the busy streets,
The crowd of pleasure seekers throng;
The puppets play, the showman calls,
And gossips chat the whole day long,
And so the world goes on.

Our little dramas come to naught,
Our lives may fall; our darling plan
May crumble into nothingness;
Our firmest castle fall to sand;
And yet the children sing and dance,
The money-makers laugh and shout,
The stars, unmindful, still shine bright,
Unconscious that our light is out,
And so the world goes on.

The house grows sad that once was gay,
The dear ones seek their Blessed Home,
And we may watch and wait in vain
To hear their well-known footsteps come.
And yet the sunlight checks the floor,
And makes the summer shadows long;
The rosebuds at the casement bloom,
The bird pours forth his cheerful song,
And so the world goes on.

And God goes on, and with our woe
Weave golden threads of joy and peace;
Guarding with His heart of hearts
Our days of pain, our days of ease.
He marks them all—the seed, the sheaves,
The danger's smiles, the mourner's tear—
And keeps them safe, His children all,
Through all the great eternal years,
And so, thank God, the world goes on.

The Bread and Butter Fly.

Johnny, the juvenile essayist, thus discourses: This inseck is mocely call only the butter fly, cause the other is too long to use regeler, but Sundays we say the whole thing. Billy he says butter fly ain't it all, but it's flutter by; but Billy is all ways a sayin somethin wich he thinks is clever but wich I calls rot.

Once me and my uncle Ned and my sister was in the garden and ther was a butter fly, and my sister said she thot she was cunnin, and said wy was it like girls, meanin they likes flowers, or is pretty, or some such bosh; but uncle Ned he said cause it was big fun to ketch 'em in your hat, but wen they was cot they was no use. Then my sister she skipt the other riddles, and said she must button her boot.

Butter flys is first tadpoles, and then they is crisalises, wich has a handle on one side, like water jugs. They bust the crisalis and comes out like out of a ban box, and it ain't no wonder, they looks brite and fine for before they has time to git dirty they die of ole age. Bishop Butler he says the butter fly a bustin out of crisalis shose men has immortle soles, but my father he says wot is shode by their dyin' right away after? Maybe a man must be a bishop to reson by an ology.

Mother says if I put salt on a butter flys tale I can cetch 'em, but she can't fool me with a ole joke like that, for the pint of it it they don't have no tails, but you can birds, and that is all I no about the bread and butter fly.

A Child's Preference.

The Independent says: An English teacher enjoining upon the members of a training class their duty of giving to children bright and happy thoughts of religion, used this illustration of the danger of the opposite error:

He said a little girl was once asking her sister about heaven.

"Do they play in heaven?" she inquired.

"No, they do not play there."

"What do they do?"

"They sing and are good."

"Are there no toys there?"

"No dolls, nor balls, nor Noah's arks?"

"Oh, no, !"

"Then I shall take my dolly and go to hell," said the little one.

The speaker said he rather liked Luther's idea of heaven, and referred to his letter to his son, in which he told of the boys and girls who play about the golden streets and have ponies and horses to ride upon.

Hard Times.

The Sacramento Union says: At the depot yesterday afternoon a Chinaman appeared, having in charge a Chinawoman, who was weeping bitterly. She evidently disliked to go on the cars, but did not resist. Our reporter, who has almost as much sympathy for lovely females in distress as he is afflicted with a longing for items, straightway hunted up one of the Hin brothers, the intelligent Celestial agents for the Railroad Company, and inquired what the trouble was. He replied: "Oh, not new. You sabbe one Chinaman on 1 street; he have tlee wifee; bimeby hard times come, he no likee so much, and he sell one of it for $550. Man pay the money and he takee woman to the mountains, and she too muchee cly cause she no likee go. Sabbe?"

Civilization in Boston.

The Courier says: We should be glad to see gentlemen pay more attention to dress when they attend the theatre or opera. We would not have our managers enforce the rule prevailing in the London places of amusement,—that which forbids gentlemen to enter the eligible portion of the auditorium unless they appear in full evening dress. But there ought to be a custom which would obviate the necessity of any rule. Opera in undress is hardly opera at all, and in New York it is rare to see a gentleman inside the Academy of Music unless clad in the garments which society prescribes for evening wear. Gentlemen who accompany ladies certainly ought to don an irreproachable costume.

True Love.

From Florida comes the story of Della Jones, a full-blooded negress, forty years of age. She fell desperately in love with a young white man, and realizing the fact that he could never be anything to her, she turned her property into cash ($7,250,) left it to him by will, and then went off and drowned herself.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Santa Claus

Is not a myth if Christmas candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. In fact, George Haas & Co., No. 29 Kearny street, has fac similes of Santa Claus (in Candy) that are really good enough to eat. His holiday stock of home-made candies and bon-bon boxes cannot be excelled anywhere, as a visit to his store will show. x

How to Dress Well.

Over two-thirds of the best dressed gentlemen in this city (those who dress in style we mean) would say, if asked the question where they had their clothes made, that they went to John Bull's, No. 109 Third street, and would also advise you and your friends to go there if you want a perfect-fitting suit made in the latest style, from either imported or domestic goods, at the lowest price compatible with a good garment. s.

Holiday Confectionery.

Los Brillantes,
And, judging by the daily increasing demand for them, they will in time outsell any other brands of cigars. Competition, of course, will do all it can to retard and stop their sale, and therefore we would earnestly request the generous public to see for itself and first give them a fair trial, ere condemning them. A meritorious article may be cheap as well, and our maxim has been and always will be, to sell a first-rate article at the lowest PRICE POSSIBLE. Those cigars as well as our celebrated RUSSIAN CIGARETTES are sold in all the principal cigar stores in this city and adjoining towns, or the factory, 409 WASHINGTON STREET, CORNER BATTERY.

Look for above trade mark, when you buy and beware of imitations.

Rough on Chaplin.

The Philadelphia All-Day City Item of the 12th, speaking of the performance at the Walnut-street Theatre, says:

Last evening one of the largest and most brilliant audiences of the season assembled to witness Mme. Janauschek's performance of "Deborah," in Mosenthal's fine play of that name, first known in this country under the name of "Leah the Forsaken," when it was adapted by Mr. Augustin Daly for Miss Kate Bateman. Miss Lucille Western has also performed the part, and both Miss Bateman and Miss Western have achieved considerable success as the unfortunate Jewess. But Mme. Janauschek surpasses them all. We have spoken of her impersonation so often that it is hardly necessary to go into detail. We need only say that it was fine last evening as ever, being the conception of a thorough artiste. The Joseph of Mr. George Chaplin was moderately good. Mr. Chaplin's days as "leading man" are approaching an end. Being a gentleman of forty, whose tendency to corpulency has passed the Rubicon and assumed a questionable and most aldermanly rotundancy, Mr. Chaplin is hardly able to assume a light, juvenile air without causing a smile on the part of a heartless audience. Mr. Chaplin's manner is artificial; his love-making belongs to the sickly sentimental kind. He realizes a combination and a form indeed. He will soon be able to play Falstaff.

Chaplin is a good fellow and an intelligent actor, but he is too fat. His acting is fat, and heavy; his voice is fat. It is a pity, but we suppose it cannot be helped.

Scene in the Y. M. C. A.

"Young man, do you believe in a future state?" In course I docs, and what's more I intends to enter it as soon as Betsy gets her wedding clothes ready." "You mistake me; do you believe in a future state of rewards and punishments?" "Most assuredly; if I should cut mugs with a red-headed woman I should expect my hat indented by the first broomstick she could lay her hands on." "Go to, young man, you are incorrigible. Go to." "Go two! If it wasn't the law agin bigamy, darned if I wouldn't go a dozen. But who supposed, deacon, that a man of your years would give such advice to a person just starting in life?" This took the deacon down.

A Terrible Swindle.

This is the time of year to subscribe for a religious paper. They are all offering premiums of chromos to subscribers. The chromos are said, by the papers, to be worth from five to ten dollars each. Whoever sells the chromos to the proprietors of the religious papers swindle them terribly We could buy as good chromos for ten cents a piece, and wouldn't think we'd made much of a bargain then.

Himself and Three Others.

A Missouri aspirant to matrimony advertises that he will give three mules to any maiden who will wed him; which gives rise to the question, what respectable married woman would want such a four-in-hand?

An Oriental Business.

The Japan Gazette of November 10th, published in Yokohama says:

Our passenger list last evening per Vancouver included the name of Sig. Giuseppe Chiarini, proprietor of the Royal Italian Circus, who departs for California, in advance of his troupe, to make arrangements for a season in San Francisco; which we trust will be as prosperous as that which has just been brought to a close in Yokohama. The ladies and gentlemen of his talented company, with the beautiful stud of trained horses, ponies, &c., &c., have taken passage for California in the American Barkentine Victor, which sailed this morning. She is a handy vessel, and it is anticipated that she will make a quick passage. Mr. Charles Dermer, the indefatigable business manager, is in charge of the party. The foreign community of Yokohama is comparatively a small one, and, professionally speaking, quickly "played out." A few nights run is all that can be expected by anything in the shape of a "show" at all approaching par, and a series of performances extending over two or three weeks is to be looked upon as something quite beyond the usual. Signor Chiarini's Troupe put in close on three months with us, and as both proprietor and manager (especially the latter) have a well-cultivated eye for business, it is to be presumed that their stay has been a profitable one. Unfortunately, the weather was inauspicious—particularly so—and postponements were more than once unavoidable, but, taking it altogether, we fancy the Signor can have no reason to complain of the results of his visit, and must have netted a sufficiently satisfactory sum. Though small, the community is fastidious, and will not tolerate anything second-class in this particular line. Both proprietor and manager therefore take their leave of the far East with the satisfactory assurance that the really good entertainment they provided has been to the fully appreciated and acknowledged. The people of California, who are presumably qualified to judge the excellence or otherwise of such an entertainment as is about to be presented to them, will, we are persuaded, unanimously accord it the same verdict which has been passed by the people of Yokohama,—that it is the best of its kind which, so far, has been presented.

Toil and Grief.

"The only thoroughly blighted being," says the St. Louis Journal, "is the man who has been deceived in a meerschaum. When he has expended his money in purchasing the costly comfort, when he has consumed tobacco enough to unsettle the nerves of a rhinoceros and the stubborn pipe still refuses to color, demonstrating to him the fact that he has been sold, then does the hollowness of this world and all that therein is become fully and disgustingly apparent."

The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. SECURE YOUR CHRISTMAS AND NEW-YEAR GIFTS.

NEWARK,

Alameda County.

$300 Per Share and No Assessments.

The Town of Newark, now being laid out in Alameda County, will consist of 4,000 acres. 2,500 acres of which will be divided into 80-acre plats, subdivided into one-acre lots, and 5,000 Town Lots, each 52 feet by 105 feet, besides others for donations to religious and public uses, a public Park of 50 acres, warehouses, hotels, dwelling houses, etc., for sale. To provide funds for this enterprise, and to carry out the project at once, there will be offered for sale 2,500 shares at $300 each, which will entitle each shareholder to a one-acre plat and two town lots, and a pro rata interest in all improvements projected by the Directors. The payments will be $100 in January, $100 in March, and $100 in May, 1875, and when two payments have been made, the remainder will be put up at auction to the public, and all premiums will be divided among the shareholders, and it is believed will amount to sufficient to cover the last payment. It is thought by this co-operation that every share will double in value in six months, as the land is put in at $125 per acre, which is a very low price for so large a piece of land so near San Francisco.

Persons of small means will note that they can here get a country homestead complete for $1,000, and an interest in a live country location, with easy, cheap communication with San Francisco. Estimates show that bungalow houses can be erected, containing parlor, two bedrooms, closets, kitchen, etc., at a cost not to exceed $1,000 each, and as a sale of the one-acre plat or the two town lots will probably cover the cost of the land, it is easily seen how any person can have a cheap country home, or pleasant summer residence, at no great outlay. The climate is equal to anything in America, and its benefits cannot but recommend it to invalids and pleasure-seekers. The distance to the Warm Sulphur Springs is only six miles. The soil is unsurpassed in fertility, its products not to be excelled, and water is abundant for every purpose.

No similar enterprize can compete with this either in cheapness or location, and being entirely on the co-operative plan, fair alike to all, must benefit this community and all outsiders.

For certificates of climate, productions, etc., maps of the property, and any information relative to this enterprise, apply at the office of the Association.

Capital Stock, $500,000

If You Want a Piano, Buy at Headquarters, and don't be fooled into buying advertised worthless trash. Buy an ANTISELL PIANO-FORTE, and you have the best Piano made, and indorsed by hundreds of our leading artists and musicians throughout California. We sell at manufacturers' prices, and having a large capital and business are enabled to undersell agents who are only middlemen. Agents have to pay high prices to cover their long credits, and usually make the enormous profits of from $100 to $500. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. We have just received from our factory a fine assortment that we offer at a small advance, either for cash or instalments, instead of renting. They are overstrung bass Agraffes, French action, etc., possessing every improvement recognized by people of cultivated musical taste, and the grand result is that for power, sweetness, brilliancy, and singing quality of tone, evenness throughout the entire scale, delicacy and elasticity of touch, strength, durability, beauty and finish, the ANTISELL PIANO stands unequalled.

N. B.—We sold our miscellaneous stock at auction, which consisted of Steinway & Son, Chickering, and Decker Brothers, as it don't pay to keep those makes, we find the demand so limited.

California Theatre.

There was a splendid audience last night when Otway's play of "Venice Preserved" was produced, for the first time in California, with John McCullough as Pierre, Barton Hill as Jaffier, Miss Bella Pateman as Belvidera, Henry Edwards as Priuli and Robert Pateman as Renault. The action of the play is carried on by these five characters. The plot of the play is as follows: Pierre, a noble-minded Venetian, who sympathizes with the wrongs inflicted on the people by a corrupt senate joins in a conspiracy to overthrow tyrannical rule and set Venice free. Between Pierre and Jaffier, a Damon-and-Pythias-like affection exists, and Pierre in his love for me from tries to persuade himself that he has more strength of character than he really possesses. He introduces Jaffier to the conspirators. Jaffier swears all kinds of oaths never to betray anything, and then tells his wife, his Belvidera, with whom he is desperately in love, though they have been married over a year, and have a baby (the story dates back over a hundred years). This makes mischief. Belvidera's father, Priuli, is one of the Senators, and Jaffier is sworn to kill him with the rest. He is ashamed of himself, and delivers Belvidera over to the conspirators as a hostage for his good faith, giving also a dagger with which to kill her in the event of his breaking his oath. While Belvidera is in charge of the conspirators, the lecherous old Renault, the master mind of the band, enters her chamber and insults her. On this Jaffier withdraws Belvidera, and is persuaded by her to betray the plot to the Senate. He loathes himself for doing this, and grovels before his noble friend Pierre, whom he has given over to a shameful death, he pleads for pardon and is met with scorn. The part of Pierre is a good one, it shows Mr. McCullough to advantage and he played it well, but it is not a difficult part to play. Jaffier, on the other hand, is a part that must be played very cleverly in order that the audience may tolerate the presence in the stage of the weak, vacillating, perjured wretch who sacrifices the life of his bosom friend to save that of his father-in-law, who never lent him a cent in his life, and even went to the whole length of cursing his disobedient daughter in a manner which he should have been ashamed of. Miss Bella Pateman, as Belvidera, did some magnificent acting and was recalled in the middle of the last act, on the conclusion of the scene in which Belvidera becomes a raving maniac. Henry Edwards did some excellent declamation as Priuli, and Robert Pateman in the character role of Renault, came out very strong. Otway's "Venice Preserved" has some splendid lines in it, ones that would not seem out of place in a play of Shakspeare's; it is not a dull play, the characters are naturally drawn, though their language is stilted; it is lacking in action, but certainly not in interest. Boucicault has done his work capitally. The last act is very well arranged indeed, and the concluding act is wonderfully effective. This piece will be played to-night for the last time. It is worth seeing, and those who can appreciate good acting cannot fail to appreciate that of the artistes whose names we have mentioned. That the audience last night did so was proved by the fact that John McCullough, Barton Hill and Miss Bella Pateman were called out at the end of each act. Sometimes one, sometimes two, and sometimes all three appeared, according as the act gave each or all an opportunity to do some good acting.

Maguire's New Theatre.

This (Tuesday) evening the Spanish dramatic company, comprising Senora Holla, Senora Alio and Senors Molla, Barbero and Estrada, will give a performance at Maguire's New Theatre. It will commence with an original comedy in three acts by the young Mexican poet, Don Ignacio Herrera de Leon, entitled "Entre Amor y Celos Locura." After this Senora Molla will sing the music of the Spanish dance entitled "La Habaneras del Juicio Final." The popular afterpiece, "Maruja," will conclude the evening's entertainment.

Opera House.

As a matter of course there was a large audience last night to enjoy the performance of "Muldoon, the Solid Man," by Billy Emerson; "The Three Doves," by Billy Rice, Ben Cotton and Billy Arlington; "The Disciplinarian," by J. R. Kemble, Billy Rice and Ben Cotton; the wonderful feats of Leopold and Geraldine, and the many other attractions which may be found set forth in the programme on our first page. There will be a Christmas matinee at this house on Friday.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Johnny Tuers causes much laughter by his very amusing acting as Old Gunlard in the sketch entitled "I Want My Picture Taken." Frank Mortimore, Charley Nickerson and Harry Devoy appear in "Obeying Orders," and a great variety of acts, songs and lances may be enjoyed this evening at this popular place of amusement for the million.

The Great Bal Masque.

The preparations for the great Cosmopolitan Bal Masque for Christmas are now about completed. The various special dances, quadrilles, etc., have been duly rehearsed for the past two weeks, and the costumes prepared. The general arrangements of this ball will be in every respect made with a view to ensure the comfort and amusement of the visitors. The various costumers report more commissions for new and rich costumes than for any previous ball this season. The floor committee are well drilled. The band, under Schmidt & Schlott, will perform a magnificent programme, including all the new opera bouffe music. The wines and refreshments will be of the best quality, and the restaurant, under the direction of two famous French caterers, will be open the entire evening with a choice bill of fare at moderate prices. The ticket office at the Horticultural Hall will be open on Thursday morning, and tickets can be procured until the close of the ball. The doors open at 9 o'clock; grand march at 10.

Notes.

The Mikado arrived yesterday from Australia. With other passengers came the proprietor and editor of the Sydney Bulletin, who pays a visit to San Francisco partly for business and more for pleasure's sake. We are under obligations to him for an Auckland (New Zealand) Echo, from which we take the following items of news:

Mme. Anna Bishop has returned to Australia, bringing with her Signor Morley, a tenor of great repute. They are giving concerts in Sydney.

Mr and Mrs W. Hoskins (nee Florence Colville) have returned from America, and are performing at the Victoria Theatre Sydney. They purpose shortly revisiting New Zealand.

Mr and Mrs G. Darrell have also returned from California, and are performing at the Queen's Theatre, Sydney.

Miss May Howard visits Auckland shortly.

By the steamship Mikado Mr John Lovison, proprietor for many years of the Bulletin Acts in Sydney, is a passenger for America to secure lyric and dramatic talent for Australia. An address and testimonial was presented to him on board.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

An immense crowd filled Wilson's Palace Amphitheatre last evening at the opening of Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus season in that building. There must have been considerably over 3000 persons in the Amphitheatre. Every seat and every private box was taken, and hundreds were standing all through the performance in the passage ways and aisles. The opening overture, Rossini's "Italians in Algiers" by the orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. J. E. Green, was far superior to the music furnished at circuses, and was applauded. Signor Chiarini's circus is celebrated for the excellence of its orchestra. The grand entree, "The Queen's Lancers," by eight gentlemen and ladies mounted on splendid steeds, led in person by Signor Chiarini on his charger "Garibaldi," was a splendid exhibition of equine evolutions, and was warmly applauded; the Japanese juggler, Kikuda Kunitaro, next exhibited some clever feats of his art; the beautiful trained horses "Prince" and "Duke," were next presented by Signor Chiarini; they are perfect specimens of horseflesh, and their intelligence and docility evoked warm expressions of admiration. The grand principal act by Mme. Herbert Leon was gracefully performed, and Grecian Sports by the youthful athlete, Theodoro Cuba, terminated the first part of the entertainment. In the second part, M. Herbert executed a pad act in good style, and Dave Long, the clown, was particularly amusing. Quite a feature of the entertainment was the balancing act by Hanakari Sakaikichi, and his pupil, a new edition of little All Right. Equally well received was the act entitled "The Triumph of L'Africaine" performed by the dashing Senorita Belen Cuba and Mme. Annereau; Signor Farranti, the boneless man, went through his graceful performances; Theodoro Cuba performed his wonderful vaulting act over bars and gates, on the Australian steeplechaser York; the ever-popular Romeo Sebastian appeared in his wonderful feats on horseback; and the exciting hurdle act by Master Tommy Leon, entitled "The Corsican Post-Boy," terminated this excellent evening's entertainment. There will be a matinee to-morrow and an extra matinee on Christmas Day.

Woodward's Gardens.

There are always thousands of objects of interest on exhibition at these gardens. On Christmas day and Saturday and Sunday, Ab Eraschman's Algerian Arab Troupe will appear in a wonderful performance of pyramids and leaps, Harry Lee and James Gillem, trapeze and bar performers, and the variety company will also appear.

MY NATIVE LAND,

Though azure skies of beauty span
The plains of Italy,
And streams of molten silver roll
With music to the sea,
And hill and valley well reveal
A bounteous Maker's hand,
There's naught can win the love I bear
For thee, my native land.

Though gentle Spring may grace the shores
Of Spain with olive trees,
That yield their fragrance to the wings
Of every passing breeze,
And sunny groves of oranges
In graceful beauty stand,
It bears no parallel to thee,
My own, my native land.

I've stood within the crumbling ruins
Of venerated pile,
That raised its head in brighter days
So stately o'er the isle,
When right did nerve with giant might
The noble patriot's hand
To battle for the sacred cause
Of God and native land.

Now many a martyr's silent grave
Is marked along thy plain;
And many a loving heart is stilled,
And ne'er shall beat again;
And banished o'er the ocean's wave,
To some far, foreign strand,
Are those who would have nobly died
For thee, my native land,

But while there's life there's hope, and yet
Some gallant ships may bear
Those exiles back from freedom's shore
To witness freedom here—
To see the crown on Erin's brow,
The sceptre in her hand,
And serfdom swept for evermore
From thee, my native land.

May every breeze that speeds across
Thy hills and emerald plain
Proclaim that Freedom sweetly smiles
Upon our green again;
May every wave that whisp'ers low
Upon thy golden sand
Have voice to say thou'rt free, thou'rt free,
My loved, my native land.

First in Everything.

There are men who pride themselves on having the fastest horses, and others on always being first to take advantage of a rise in stocks; there are others whose ambition is centred in being at the head of their business and outstripping all competitors in their line of trade. Among the latter class we know of no more prominent example than is to be found in the proprietor of the I X L Auction Store. His motto seems to be, "After me, and then you shall be first."

It is now the season of Toys, and his immense store on the corner of Kearny and Sacramento streets is transformed into a Grand Holiday Bazaar. The clothing and other staple articles in his line of business are packed away below stairs, and the whole space is occupied with thousands of Toys, Dolls, Fancy Goods, articles of every imaginable line for presents, queer things from the Indies, China and Japan, Albums and Musical Albums, and Workboxes, Russian Leather Goods, Tables, Trays, Lacquered and Inlaid Wares, and more mechanical and new styles of beautiful toys from Europe and the East than can be inspected in a day's time.

In fact, the I X L Store is now an immense Toy Bazaar, filled with an endless variety of Toys and Holiday articles, such as can be found nowhere else in this city. The prices are fixed at the lowest possible rates, and it is wonderful how far a little money will go in buying a multitude of little things that will make the juvenile heart rejoice. Of course in the Holiday trade the I X L Auction store leads the rest in the business. Such are the results of tact, experience and energy when applied to business.

Something Like a Board of Education.

A poor highland student, who wished to become a minister, was bewailing to an English friend the other day, his ignorance of the Hebrew, without a knowledge of which language, it was impossible to pass the examination before the Presbytery. "Never you mind that," said his friend, "try them with Gaelic, that is Hebrew to me, and may possibly be so to them. Take your Gaelic Bible with you, and when they ask you to read Hebrew, read that." When the day of examination came, this little little plan succeeded to perfection. "That will do, said the moderator, "what say you, brethren?" To which they all answered that the young man had shown a competent knowledge of the original language of Holy Writ, and unanimously granted his license as a preacher.

An Enlightened Company.

A Lowell paper announces the approach of a "competiting" gas company. A corporation that can afford to wear an expensive adjective like that ought to turn out large quantities of gas with great facility.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 319, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Santa Claus

Is not a myth if Christmas candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. In fact, George Haas & Co., No. 29 Kearny street, has fac similes of Santa Claus (in Candy) that are really good enough to eat. His holiday stock of home-made candies and bon-bon boxes cannot be excelled anywhere, as a visit to his store will show. K

How to Dress Well.

Over two-thirds of the best dressed gentlemen in this city (those who dress in style we mean) would say, if asked the question where they had their clothes made, that they went to John Bull's, No. 109 Third street, and would also advise you and your friends to go there if you want a perfect-fitting suit made in the latest style, from either imported or domestic goods, at the lowest price compatible with a good garment. OUR AUSTRALIAN LETTER.

MELBOURNE, November 17, 1874.

DEAR FIGARO:—We lately received quite a new sensation from your part of the world. The mail steamer City of Melbourne, from San Francisco to Sydney, arrived at the latter place three days before her time. This country is especially favored with regard to communication with Great Britain and America. During last week we had the Torres Straits mail to Queensland, the California mail to Sydney, and the Suez mail to this city. We have also excellent cable communication with the old country, so that we are quite au fait as to all going on in other parts of the world. With this introductory overture, as the Clipper has it, I will commence the immediate business of my letter.

THEATRE ROYAL.

The Williamsons have been the biggest draw ever known in this country, and now they are cramming the houses nightly. Since my last they have appeared in Lotta's play of "Little Nell and the Marchioness," Miss Maggie Moore playing the dual parts. Her Marchioness was a splendid piece of acting, while her dancing and singing captivated everyone. She seemed to be the life and soul of the play. Seemed to be?—she was to all intents and purposes. Mr. Williamson appeared as Dick Swiveller, and in the delineation of this part showed comic talents of the highest order. Our stage manager, Mr. Dampier, too, created a most profound sensation by his artistic make-up and interpretation of Quilp. His make-up was hideous, and his acting really great. The ferocity of the part was so well carried out that Mr. Dampier was nightly received with groans and hisses, but had immense calls with the stars between the acts. For the race week, "Struck Oil" was served for the special delectation of our country cousins, who came to town for the carnival week in tens of thousands. Night after night money had to be turned away from the doors, and often notification was put out, "No standing room." Such is the support that sterling good artists meet with in this city. Last night Mr. Williamson had his bespeak, and long before the doors were opened there was a crowd sufficient to fill the immense theatre. Money was again refused. "The American Cousin" was the piece de resistance, and with the lively remembrance of Mr. Jefferson in the part of Asa Trenchard, it is not too much to say that Mr. Williamson's assumption of the character was in every way a great success. It was no servile copy of J. J., but a thorough, striking and original exposition of the eccentric American. Miss Moore appeared as Mary Meredith, but shines in other and more lively parts to greater advantage. I forgot to mention that on his sister's benefit Mr. James Moore appeared as a jig dancer with great success. The papers here consider him away ahead of Billy Emerson. He also appeared in the Fair scene during the run of "Little Nell." In "The American Cousin" the best played part was that of Lord Dundreary, by Mr. Richard Stewart (one of the lessees), who originally played the part in Melbourne with the immortal Joe Jefferson. Mr. Williamson is greatly respected off the stage, and expresses himself as greatly surprised at the many splendid public buildings we have, and gratefully alludes to the many kindnesses he has received since he landed here. His dear little wife, Maggie Moore, is almost idolized. She is indeed a rare little plum! They will play at the Royal up to Christmas, and will then visit some of the interior towns.

THE OPERA HOUSE.

"La Fille de Madame Angot," after a run of nearly sixty nights, has been withdrawn in favor of "Rob Roy," which Mr. Lyster has placed on the stage in a magnificent manner. The musical force of the theatre has been strengthened by the addition of several well-known dramatic artists, including W. J. Holloway and George Leopold. The songs, duets and glees in "Rob Roy" are splendidly given by the company, which includes Mr. Harry Tracy, Miss Jeannie Winston, Miss Fox, and Messrs. Kitts, Daniels and Wells. Mr. Lyster, ever on the alert for novelties, also intends to revive several of the old English operettas, including "Love Laughs at Locksmiths," "The Quaker," etc., etc. A movement is on foot to present the enterprising gentleman with a testimonial worthy his acceptance, in acknowledgment of the many efforts he has made in this country to introduce high-class music of all descriptions. The co-operation of the other colonies is to be asked, so as to make it a thorough Australasian affair. If it comes off, as I believe it will, there will not be a more worthy recipient than Mr. William Saurin Lyster.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.

The Carandini's, (Madam, Miss Fannie and Miss Lizzie,) Mrs. George Cotterell, Mr. Landergan, Mr. Walter Sherwin and Mr. George Cotterell, have formed an excellent company, and are giving a series of high-class concerts at this hall. Their success has been most gratifying. At the close of this month they intend to visit Wagga Wagga during the forthcoming races there, and then to pay a flying visit to several towns on our North Eastern and Beachworth lines. Mr. Sherwin particularly desires to be kindly remembered to his many Californian friends.

THE TEMPERANCE HALL

MISCELLANEOUS.

At Ballarat, the theatre abruptly closed on the dramatic season. Internal dissensions and bad business the cause. Lyster & Cagli's opera of Italians took the boards, did very bad biz, and have returned to Melbourne.

In Sandhurst amusements have been looking up.

The new theatre at Kerr Point has been a great success with an excellent dramatic company, headed by Mrs. J. B. Steele (Miss Adelaide Bowring), and Mr. W. G. Carey, Mr. and Mrs. George Case (Grace Egerton), have been giving their entertainments in this district, but have proved a complete failure. They are a "frost" wherever they go.

Chas. Lascelles, with the Sisters Novaro and Miss Lydia Howardi-cum, Mrs. Chas. Thatcher-cum, and Madame Vitelli, have been traveling round the country visiting in turns Horsham, Sawelle, Maryborough, St. Arnaud and Dunolly. Mr. Lascelles returns shortly to San Francisco.

Friend Lynch, who came over here with the Girard Brothers, is still lively. He has postponed his return to "Frisco," as he has a "spec" on with Sam Lazar, manager of the Adelaide Theatre.

Tilly Earl (Mrs. John Edouin), and her husband returned to Melbourne from London in the steamer Northumberland, which arrived here yesterday, after a quick passage of fifty-two days.

The Great Blondin has been very unfortunate since his arrival here. The weather has several times interrupted his performances, and last week culminated in blowing down the greater part of his mammoth arena. To-day he is to show again, and the weather promises a brilliant sky.

Miss May Howard is again in Sydney, after a paying tour to Queensland. She is shortly to play again in the capital of New South Wales.

The Sutton-Rockafeller Troupe, with Harry Kelly, are still in New Zealand, doing well. CALL BOY.

Attempted Assassination.

This morning, between 10 and 11 o'clock, as General M. G. Cobb, a well known attorney of this city, was on Washington street, below Montgomery, he was shot in the small of the back by Mrs. Catherine Smythe of Crescent City. The reason the lady gave for this action was, that Gen. Cobb has lost a land case in which he was employed as her attorney. A jury in this city not long ago decided that the killing of a lawyer by a woman was a fair transaction; hence, Mrs. Smythe does not feel much alarmed about the safety of her neck, even in the event of the death of General Cobb, which it is hoped by all who knew him, skilful treatment will avert.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

NEWARK,

Alameda County.

$300 Per Share and No Assessments.

The Town of Newark, now being laid out in Alameda County, will consist of 4,000 acres, 2,500 acres of which will be divided into 80-acre plats, subdivided into one-acre lots, and 5,000 Town Lots, each 52 feet by 105 feet, besides others for donations to religious and public uses, a public Park of 50 acres, warehouses, hotels, dwelling houses, etc., for sale. To provide funds for this enterprise, and to carry out the project at once, there will be offered for sale 2,500 shares at $300 each, which will entitle each shareholder to a one-acre plat and two town lots, and a pro rata interest in all improvements projected by the Directors. The payments will be $100 in January, $100 in March, and $100 in May, 1875, and when two payments have been made, the remainder will be put up at auction to the public, and all premiums will be divided among the shareholders, and it is believed will amount to sufficient to cover the last payment. It is thought by this co-operation that every share will double in value in six months, as the land is put in at $125 per acre, which is a very low price for so large a piece of land so near San Francisco.

Persons of small means will note that they can here get a country homestead complete for $1,000, and an interest in a live country location, with easy, cheap communication with San Francisco. Estimates show that bungalow houses can be erected, containing parlor, two bedrooms, closets, kitchen, etc., at a cost not to exceed $1,000 each, and as a sale of the one-acre plat or the two town lots will probably cover the cost of the land, it is easily seen how any person can have a cheap country home, or pleasant Summer residence, at no great outlay. The climate is equal to anything in America, and its benefits cannot but recommend it to invalids and pleasure-seekers. The distance to the Warm Sulphur Springs is only six miles. The soil is unsurpassed in fertility, its products not to be excelled, and water is abundant for every purpose.

No similar enterprize can compete with this either in cheapness or location, and being entirely on the co-operative plan, fair alike to all, must benefit this community and all settlers.

For certificates of climate, productions, etc., maps of the property, and any information relative to this enterprise, apply at the office of the Association.

Opera House.

Emerson's Minstrels continue to hold their own bravely at this house. There is no place where so much fun can be got for so little money as at the Opera House. "Love in a Basket," by Billy Arlington, J. F. Oberist, E. Linden and J. R. Kemble, Charley Rhoades' banjo solos, Billy Emerson's admirable sketch entitled "Muldoon the Solid Man," Leopold and Geraldine on the flying trapeze, and a great variety of other entertainments are offered. There will be an extra matinee on Christmas Day.

Maguire's New Theatre.

This theatre will reopen to-morrow night for the holiday season. Balfe's beautiful opera of "The Enchantress" will be produced, arranged as a holiday entertainment, with novelties in the way of ballet, pantomime, comic dances and variety business introduced. The full cast of the play and synopsis of scenery and incidents is published on our first page. No expense has been spared, and M. Straus, the scenic artist, has surpassed himself in the grand transformation scene, which forms an entire act in itself. There will be an extra matinee on Christmas Day.

California Theatre.

"Venice Preserved" was repeated last night, and met with as much favor as on the night of its production. If Boucicault would adapt the first four acts as successfully as he has the fifth, the play might be made a very popular one. To-night, by general request, Mr. McCullough will appear in his great character of Virginius. To-morrow night "The Merchant of Venice" will be presented, with a great cast.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

The Palace Amphitheatre was crowded again last night, when the second performance was given by the magnificent troupe of artists and horses known by the above title. Every act was applauded. The Japanese portion of the troupe are particularly clever, both as jugglers and gymnasts. Belen Cuba is as great a favorite as ever, Romeo Sebastian by his graceful and daring feats on horseback calls forth thunders of applause. There will be a matinee to-day and an extra matinee on Christmas Day.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

"I Want my Picture Taken," "Obeying Orders," "The Two Tragedians" and "The Hotel Runners," are the names of the acts in which Johnny Tuers, Charley Nickerson, Johnny Tuers, Charley Nickerson, Johnny Kelly and others will make the patrons of this house laugh to-night. On Christmas Eve the fairy extravaganza entitled "The Prince of the Blue Isles" will be played.

The Great Bal Masque.

The preparations for the great Cosmopolitan Bal Masque for Christmas are now about completed. The various special dances, quadrilles, etc., have been duly rehearsed for the past two weeks, and the costumes prepared. The general arrangements of this ball will be in every respect made with a view to ensure the comfort and amusement of the visitors. The various costumers report more commissions for new and rich costumes than for any previous ball this season. The door committee are well drilled. The band, under Schmidt & Schlott, will perform a magnificent programme, including all the new opera bouffe music. The wines and refreshments will be of the best quality, and the restaurant, under the direction of two famous French caterers, will be open the entire evening with a choice bill of fare at moderate prices. The ticket office at the Horticultural Hall will be open on Thursday morning, and tickets can be procured until the close of the ball. The doors open at 9 o'clock; grand march at 10.

Woodward's Gardens.

There are always thousands of objects of interest on exhibition at these gardens. On Christmas day and Saturday and Sunday, Ab Brashoman's Algerian Arab Troupe will appear in a wonderful performance of pyramids and leaps. Harry Lee and James Gillem, trapeze and bar performers, and the variety company will also appear.

Notes.

The dramatic critic of the Courier de San Francisco, speaking of Miss Ellie Wilton's performance of Desdemona, says: "Miss Wilton during the week played the single role of Desdemona, and she is indeed the woman of the poet's dream. Charm, sweetness, and an indescribable something in the sympathetic glances of her eyes,—Miss Wilton has all this, and we believe it would be difficult to find one who could better realize the ideal of the poet."

Mulder-Fabbri, the talented musician, composer and conductor of opera, died yesterday in this city of Bright's disease of the kidneys. He was born in Amsterdam; was fifty-two years of age. His whole life was devoted to the study of music. At the early age of 12, he was already a composer, and conducted a march of his own at the Berlin Theatre Royal. While pursuing his studies in Paris, he composed several works. Mulder Fabbri spent much of his life on the continent of South America, and filled many engagements there with his wife Inez Fabbri. To him San Francisco owes several seasons of opera, and the manner in which he catered to the German population was generally satisfactory. His loss will be much regretted by his many friends and pupils.

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest, cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Cothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Cothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

How to Dress Well.

Over two-thirds of the best dressed gentlemen in this city (those who dress in style we mean) would say, if asked the question where they had their clothes made, that they went to John Bull's, No. 10 Third street, and would also advise you and your friends to go there if you want a perfect-fitting suit made in the latest style, from either imported or domestic goods, at the lowest price compatible with a good garment. 5.

A LESSON.

I.

They climbed the hill to best enjoy the view,
Which in its tender beauty lay unfolden
Before the twain,—the hills of grayish-blue,
The glowing bay, now swiftly ebbing through
The Titan portals of the Gate called Golden,
To meet the great, great sea, which in the further sight
Commingled with the sky, just flecked with fleecy white.

II.

There was about all things a quiet tone,
Which they enjoyed with pure æsthetic pleasure,
And then,—a short "good-bye" and she was gone,
Leaving him with a sense of being so alone
Of which he first scarce realized the measure.
But ere she vanished, with a smile she turned,
And then he knew how much his heart had learned!

TOM VIVIAN.

A Sacrifice.

Devout mother (to young lady who is burning up love-letters on Sunday)—"What are you doing there, my dear? Are you burning incense?" "Young lady—"O, no, ma; I am only burning nonsense."

First in Everything.

There are men who pride themselves on having the fastest horses, and others on always being first to take advantage of a rise in stocks: there are others whose ambition is centred in being at the head of their business and outstripping all competitors in their line of trade. Among the latter class we know of no more prominent example than is to be found in the proprietor of the I X L Auction Store. His motto seems to be, "After me, and then you shall be first."

It is now the season of Toys, and his immense store on the corner of Kearny and Commercial streets is transformed into a Grand Holiday Bazaar. The clothing and other staple articles in his line of business are packed away below stairs, and the whole space is occupied with thousands of Toys, Dolls, Fancy Goods, articles of every imaginable line for presents, queer things from the Indies, China and Japan, Albums and Musical Albums, and Workboxes, Russian Leather Goods, Tables, Trays, Lacquered and Inlaid Wares, and more mechanical and new styles of beautiful toys from Europe and the East than can be inspected in a day's time.

In fact, the I X L Store is now an immense Toy Bazaar, filled with an endless variety of Toys and Holiday articles, such as can be found nowhere else in this city. The prices are fixed at the lowest possible rates, and it is wonderful how far a little money will go in buying a multitude of little things that will make the juvenile heart rejoice. Of course in the Holiday trade the I X L Auction store leads the rest in the business. Such are the results of tact, experience and energy when applied to business.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since 3-cj

Santa Claus

Is not a myth if Christmas candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. In fact, George Haas & Co., No. 20 Kearny street, has fac similes of Santa Claus (in Candy) that are really good enough to eat. His holiday stock of home-made candies and bon-bon boxes cannot be excelled anywhere, as a visit to his store will show. K

PIANO CO.
Capital Stock, $500,000
If You Want a Piano, Buy at Headquarters, and don't be fooled into buying advertised worthless trash. Buy an ANTISELL PIANO FORTE, and you have the best Piano made, and indorsed by hundreds of our leading artists and musicians throughout California. We sell at manufacturers' prices, and having a large capital and business are enabled to undersell agents who are only middlemen. Agents have to pay high prices to cover their long credits, and usually make the enormous profits of from $100 to $500. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. We have just received from our factory a fine assortment that we offer at a small advance either for cash or instalments, instead of renting. They are overstrung bass Agraffes, French action, etc., possessing every improvement recognized by people of cultivated musical taste, and the grand result is that for power, sweetness, brilliancy, and singing quality of tone, evenness throughout the entire scale, delicacy and elasticity of touch, strength, durability, beauty and finish, the ANTISELL PIANO stands unequalled.
N. B. We sold our miscellaneous stock at auction, which consisted of Steinway & Son, Chickering, and Decker Brothers, as it don't pay to keep those makes, we find the demand so limited.

Times are Changed.

Not very many years ago it was a misdemeanor to smoke in the street in Boston. Times seem to have changed considerably: The Boston correspondent of the Worcester Spy says that in the midst of the general depression in trade there are some causes for hope. "The tobacco business must be good, for the streets are fuller than ever of men, boys and cigars. They smoke all the time, and the non-smokers are their victims. You can't escape them. On all the business streets you find smokers on all sides of you; no matter which way the wind is, it blows tobacco smoke into your eyes and nose and mouth, if by chance you open the latter; you extinguish cigar ashes and slip on wet tobacco as you walk; but you console yourself by thinking of the immeasurable comfort to the smokers, and the prosperity of the tobacconists.

Prejudiced Men.

There was once a sea-captain who declared that, in all his experience, he never failed to meet with bad weather when he had on board his ship a man who parted his hair in the middle. "I don't know how it is," said the ancient mariner; "but the elements can't seem to tolerate that habit." An equally unreasonable old landsman once said of the tribe who carry walking-sticks: "Everybody is fitted for something useful. Now, a young man who can't do anything else can carry a cane."

An Artistic Retort.

While T. D. Jones was in Columbus, modeling his bust of Chase, a young man of the Sparkler order of architects approached him one night at a social gathering with the followlng inquiry, "Er-er-say! er-er so you're the man-er that makes mud heads, ain't you?" "Yes," said old Tom, blandly; "do you want a new one?"

Interesting to Laura Fair.

An exchange says:

Wolves may like to know that a menagerie in Paris advertises for ten of them—five males and their wives.

The amiable Laura D. Fair may be able to spare that number of "wolves in the fold."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since 3-cj

Santa Claus

Is not a myth if Christmas candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. In fact, George Haas & Co., No. 20 Kearny street, has fac similes of Santa Claus (in Candy) that are really good enough to eat. His holiday stock of home-made candies and bon-bon boxes cannot be excelled anywhere, as a visit to his store will show. K

How to Dress Well.

Over two-thirds of the best dressed gentlemen in this city (those who dress in style we mean) would say, if asked the question where they had their clothes made, that they went to John Bull's, No. 109 Third street, and would also advise you and your friends to go there if you want a perfect-fitting suit made in the latest style, from either imported or domestic goods, at the lowest price compatible with a good garment. S.

Holiday Confectionery.

A fine assortment of holiday candies and new styles of Christmas tree trimmings, fancy boxes, costume bon-bons, cornucopias, sugar fruits and fancy articles just received at J. Vogeley & Brothers, late of the Mechanics' Fair of 1874, 26 Second street, near Grand Hotel.

Charlotte Cushman

Will not appear this season, but the disappointment is more than repaid by the beautiful display of Christmas Goods at Mayers' Bazaar, corner Montgomery and Pine streets. L

For the Holidays.

A splendid assortment of fine Watches, Jewelry, Silverware, etc., at very low prices, at H. A. Colcrder's, N[illegible] corner Mission and Second streets. Every article warranted. Y

PEACE IS DECLARED in all families who buy their furniture and bedding of J. A. Shaber & Co., 707 Market street near Third, because they get better goods for the same price than any other dealers.

Medical Wonder.

The great cure for rheumatic and other pains, colds, sprains, etc. For sale everywhere. L

Fresh and Sweet.

The Right to Hiss.

The New York Tribune says: While a Brooklyn preacher is pitching into theatres, we observe that the builders of the new Globe play-house in Boston have, to some extent, imitated the pew system. One hundred seats have been sold outright in a kind of fee simple, to be held by the buyers, their heirs and assigns forever. The price paid was $1,000 per seat. Unlike pew-holders, these owners of seats will have no voice in the management of the establishment; though we should be delighted to learn that one of the privileges of the little estate is a right to hiss, whenever the doings behind the curtain really demand hissing. The average American auditor will bear and forbear forever. He knows a thing to be bad, but he will not take the trouble to express his opinion. He is defrauded of his money; and all he does is to stay away in future. But we do not want him to stay away. We want him to go. We want pit, box, gallery, pulpit, and the whole stack of settees full, and the show worthy of so much profitable patronage. It would be of good import, if all who purchase tickets would remember that they are buying the opportunity of amusement or of instruction; and if they get neither, that they are just as much swindled as if the man in the ticket office had stolen their pocket-books. Dear, patient public! How long suffering it is, without even the poor excuse of long ears.

The New Crusade.

The Boston Courier says: The flurry occasioned by the violent and unreasoning attacks upon the stage, made by the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, having subsided, unprejudiced people will now probably inquire whether anything has been accomplished by the crusade beyond the giving of a cheap and temporary notoriety to the preacher who led it. The stage stands precisely where it did before in the estimation of all right thinking people, who have pretty generally come to the conclusion that preaching down theatrical amusements is to the sensational clergyman what writing up gambling dens is to the sensation reporter—a sort of a "whoodchuck hole which can always be resorted to when the family is out of meat."

A Warning.

When a man has the toothache and goes to the dentist's, he should not take his wife along if he intends to inhale laughing-gas. A citizen of Detroit was foolish enough to have his wife accompany him, and when the gas took effect he exclaimed: "She's a regular stunner, Jim, and I'm to call there to-morrow night!" The words were few, but they worked a great change in the wife's feelings, and the husband does not go out any more evenings unless she goes along.

Not Bad for a Parson.

A certain young clergyman, modest almost to bashfulness, was once asked by a country apothecary of a contrary character, in a public assembly, and in a tone sufficient to catch the attention of the whole company, "How it happened that the patriarchs lived to such an old age?" To which he immediately replied, "Perhaps they took no physic."

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-T

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

A delicous table delicacy. They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are as superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. Made fresh every morning at Bunker's Stall, 74 and 75 California Market, California street entrance. Try them. 9-B

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a modle of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. X

The Winter Styles.

All the latest Winter styles of hat have been received and are now on view at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street. The variety is very large, and the prices charged at this well-known establishment are very reasonable. R

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

....OF....

SECURE YOUR CHRISTMAS AND NEW-YEAR GIFTS.

NEWARK,

Alameda County.

$300 Per Share and No Assessments.

The Town of Newark, now being laid out in Alameda County, will consist of 4,000 acres, 2,500 acres of which will be divided into 80-acre plats, subdivided into one-acre lots, and 5,000 Town Lots, each 52 feet by 105 feet, besides others for donations to religious and public uses, a public Park of 50 acres, warehouses, hotels, dwelling houses, etc., for sale. To provide funds for this enterprise, and to carry out the project at once, there will be offered for sale 2,500 shares at $300 each, which will entitle each shareholder to a one-acre plat and two town lots, and a pro rata interest in all improvements projected by the Directors. The payments will be $100 in January, $100 in March, and $100 in May, 1875, and when two payments have been made, the remainder will be put up at auction to the public, and all premiums will be divided among the shareholders, and it is believed will amount to sufficient to cover the last payment. It is thought by this co-operation that every share will double in value in six months, as the land is put in at $125 per acre, which is a very low price for so large a piece of land so near San Francisco.

Persons of small means will note that they can here get a country homestead complete for $1,000, and an interest in a live country location, with easy, cheap communication with San Francisco. Estimates show that bungalow houses can be erected, containing parlor, two bedrooms, closets, kitchen, etc., at a cost not to exceed $1,000 each, and as a sale of the one-acre plat or the two town lots will probably cover the cost of the land, it is easily seen how any person can have a cheap country home, or pleasant Summer residence, at no great outlay. The climate is equal to anything in America, and its benefits cannot but recommend it to invalids and pleasure-seekers. The distance to the Warm Sulphur Springs is only six miles. The soil is unsurpassed in fertility, its products not to be excelled, and water is abundant for every purpose.

No similar enterprise can compete with this either in cheapness or location, and being entirely on the co-operative plan, fair alike to all, must benefit this community and all outsiders.

For certificates of climate, productions, etc., maps of the property, and any information relative to this enterprise, apply at the office of the Association.

Maguire's New Theatre.

After weeks of preparation, during which rehearsals have been held night and day, and Mr. Straus, the scenic artist, has been taxing both his imagination and his strength in order to produce something in the way of scenic effect not heretofore attempted in this city, Maguire's New Theatre will be thrown open to-night, and the beautiful opera of "The Enchantress" will be presented for the delectation of the holiday folks. Every taste will be gratified in this magnificent Christmas piece; the music and singing will please the lovers of melody; the scenic display will dazzle and delight the eyes of young and old, and the immense amount of variety business introduced will keep the entertainment from flagging for a single instant. A full synopsis of the incidents of the opera, music, songs, scenery and special acts will be found on our first page. There will be an extra matinee on Christmas Day, and the usual matinee on Saturday.

California Theatre.

"Virginius" was presented last night, and everyone was delighted with Mr. McCullough's talented and rigorous impersonation of the title role. To-night "The Merchant of Venice" will be performed with John McCullough as Shylock, Miss Bella Pateman as Portia, Barton Hill as Gratiano, Henry Edwards as Antonio, T. W. Keene as Bassanio, Miss Carrie Wyatt as Jessica, Robert Pateman as Launcelot Gobbo, and Miss Ellie Wilton as Nerissa. It is some time since this play has been presented in San Francisco, and it wil certainly draw a good house. On Friday and Saturday evenings Mr. McCullough will appear in his great character of Spartacus in "The Gladiator." At the matinee "Much Ado About Nothing" will be presented, for this occasion only.

Opera House.

After a brilliant first part, Billy Emerson, Charley Rhoades, Billy Arlington, Ben Cotton, Billy Rice and others appear in a most entertaining melange of and specialties. The best proof of the popularity which Billy Emerson's latest specialty, "Muldoon, the Solid Man," has met with, is this—that everyone is humming it on the street, and an invitation to take a smile is now generally worded thus: "Oh come with me, and I'll trate you docent." There will be a Christmas matinee on Friday, and the regular matinee on Saturday.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

Signor Chiarini has captured the city. The variety and excellence of the performance given by his great combination of equestrian, gymnastic and Japanese performances, suits the public exactly as the crowds which flock to every performance sufficiently prove. The matinee yesterday was enjoyed by a host of children and their parents, and many are looking forward to the extra Christmas matinee. While the present rush continues it will be as well to reserve seats. Matinee also on Saturday.

Cal. Thespian Society.

The California Thespian Society, assisted by Harry Thompson, Mons. Schmidt and Mlle. Therese, will give an entertainment at Horticultural Hall on Sunday evening, December 27th. The performance will commence with the farce of "Look Out for the Baby," in which J. M. Summers, Harry D. Thompson, Miss McCabe, Miss Noko McCabe and Mrs. Frank Rea will appear. After this, Mons. Schmidt and Mlle Therese will appear in a pas de deux, and a ball will wind up the evening's entertainment.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

This popular variety theatre in addition to its usual first part and olio business, will to-night produce its holiday piece, an original fairy extravaganza, written for this theatre by J. C. Arnold, entitled "Prince of the Blue Isles, or The Demon of the Rock." It abounds in the usual fairy dances, Amazonian marches, popular music, songs and choruses, new and very pretty scenery has been painted for it, and the characters will be very handsomely costumed.

Mirror of England.

This artistic and beautiful panorama of the river Thames and London, the largest and best panorama ever exhibited in this city, is showing for its last nights at Mercantile Library Hall, prior to its embarkation for Australia. Its last exhibitions will be on Saturday afternoon and evening.

The Great Bal Masque.

The second grand Cosmopolitan Bal Masque will come off this Christmas Eve. The various special dances, quadrilles, etc., have been duly rehearsed for the past two weeks, and the costumes prepared. The general arrangements of this ball will be in every respect made with a view to ensure the comfort and amusement of the visitors. The various costumers report more commissions for new and rich costumes than for any previous ball this season. The floor committee are well drilled. The band, under Schmidt & Schlott, will perform a magnificent programme, including all the new opera bouffe music. The wines and refreshments will be of the best quality, and the restaurant, under the direction of two famous French caterers, will be open the entire evening, with a choice bill of fare at moderate prices. The ticket office at the Horticultural Hall will be open on Thursday morning, and tickets can be procured until the close of the ball. The doors open at 9 o'clock; grand march at 10.

Woodward's Gardens.

There are always thousands of objects of interest on exhibition at these gardens. On Christmas day and Saturday and Sunday, Ab Bradshman's Algerian Arab Troupe will appear in a wonderful performance of pyramids and leaps, Harry Lee and James Gillem, trapeze and bar performers, and the variety company will also appear.

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest, cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Cothing, is Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Cothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

The King has left us, but Zacharias, the Jeweler has not, nor does he intend to do so, while he has such a fine stock of jewelry on hand. You know where the place is, Kearny street, near Sacramento. K

"THEY SAY."

They say—ah! well, suppose they do,
But can they prove this story true?
Suspicions may arise from nought
But malice, envy, want of thought;
Why count yourself among the "they,"
Who whisper what they dare not say?

They say—but why the tale rehearse,
And help to make the matter worse?
No good can possibly accrue
From telling what may be untrue;
And is it not a nobler plan
To speak of all the best you can?

They say—well, if it should be so,
Why need you tell the tale of woe?
Will it the bitter wrong redress,
Or make one pang of sorrow less?
Will it the erring one restore
Henceforth to "go and sin no more?"

They say—Oh! pause and look within;
See how the heart inclines to sin;
Watch, lest in dark temptation's hour,
Thou, too, shouldst sink beneath its power;
Pity the frail, weep o'er their fall,
But speak of good, or not at all.

First in Everything.

There are men who pride themselves on having the fastest horses, and others on always being first to take advantage of a rise in stocks; there are others whose ambition is centred in being at the head of their business and outstripping all competitors in their line of trade. Among the latter class we know of no more prominent example than is to be found in the proprietor of the I X L Auction Store. His motto seems to be, "After me, and then you shall be first."

It is now the season of Toys, and his immense store on the corner of Kearny and Commercial streets is transformed into a Grand Holiday Bazaar. The clothing and other staple articles in his line of business are packed away below stairs, and the whole space is occupied with thousands of Toys, Dolls, Fancy Goods, articles of every imaginable line for presents, queer things from the Indies, China and Japan, Albums and Musical Albums, and Workboxes, Russian Leather Goods, Tables, Trays, Lacquered and Inlaid Wares, and more mechanical and new styles of beautiful toys from Europe and the East than can be inspected in a day's time.

In fact, the I X L Store is now an immense Toy Bazaar, filled with an endless variety of Toys and Holiday articles, such as can be found nowhere else in this city. The prices are fixed at the lowest possible rates, and it is wonderful how far a little money will go in buying a multitude of little things that will make the juvenile heart rejoice. Of course in the Holiday trade the I X L Auction store leads the rest in the business. Such are the results of tact, experience and energy when applied to business.

We have just received from our factory a fine assortment that we offer at a small advance, either for cash or instalments, instead of renting. They are overstrung bass Agraffes, French action, etc., possessing every improvement recognized by people of cultivated musical taste, and the grand result is that for power, sweetness, brilliancy, and singing quality of tone, evenness throughout the entire scale, delicacy and elasticity of touch, strength, durability, beauty and finish, the ANTISELL PIANO stands unequalled.

Los Brillantes,

And, judging by the daily increasing demand for them, they will in time outsell any other brands of cigars. Competition, of course, will do all it can to retard and stop their sale, and therefore we would earnestly request the generous public to see for itself and first give them a fair trial, ere condemning them. A meritorious article may be cheap as well, and our maxim has been and always will be, to sell a first-rate article at the lowest PRICE POSSIBLE. Those cigars as well as our celebrated RUSSIAN CIGARITOS are sold in all the principal cigar stores in this city and adjoining towns, or the factory, 409 WASHINGTON STREET, CORNER BATTERY.

Look for above trade mark, when you buy and beware of imitations.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, the next novelty was to be the production of Gilbert's new comedy entitled "Sweetheart."....At the new Park Theatre, "The Gilded Age" will run up to January 1875. At Booth's Theatre, Henri Stuart, he Anglo-French artist is still the star. He is thus described: He is a French Jew, of rather heavy build, with blonde hair and complexion, and singularly fine teeth. He speaks English with a "break," and he is said to be otherwise in style moulded after he great Fechter. "The Hero of the Hour" is to be set with splendid scenery, on which Matt Morgan—who appears to be the rage just now in scenic decoration—has been busily engaged for some time. No one, it is said, has as yet been able to find out what the play is about. George Fawcett was asked the other day, and said that he "really didn't know. The fact is, the play from being a little intricate n the beginning has been superfinely mixed by manifold writing up of two or three of the roles.... At Union Square Theatre, Hart Jackson's dramatization of "The Two Orphans" was produced on the 21st.....Bryant's Minstrels will present a holiday programme. Bob Hart's "Slippery Day" still countinues their best act.....At the Lyceum, "Chilperic" by the Soldene English Opera Company continued the attraction. January 4th will be the occasion os the debut of Mrs. Rosby in "Twix t Axe and Crown." A New York paper says: "Judging from the muddled and contradictory statements which have already appeared in the leading British journals, the critics are about equally divided as to her personal, physical or dramatic merits. There has been as much, or more, said of her face and bust than of her claims as an actress. The influence of a handsome woman on the stern theatrical reviewers of Britain, suggests that their reports should be received cum grano salis, being simply the effect of impressions derived from viewing female loveliness in the glamour of the footlights. The adroit managers of the Lyceum comprehend the absolute sovereignty of such a woman on the hard, matter-of-fact critics, and have not lost the opportunity of spreading far and wide the beauty of their coming star. This lady debuted at the Queen's Theatre, London, in 1869, in the "Fool's Revenge" (Rigoletto), in which she created a very favorable impression. She subsequently made a hit as Joan of Arc, and followed with a successful portrayal of Rosalind, and became a popular favorite on the British stage....."The Black Crook" is still running at the Grand Opera House. There is a rumor that this theatre will, on the close of "The Black Crook" season be devoted to other than dramatic purposes. Perhaps it is going to be made into a church for Talmage.....At Wood's Museum "Arrah na Pogue" was produced on the 21st, and "Aladdin" was underlined for the holidays.....Miss Louise Sylvester was the star at the Bowery.....At he Metropolitan, the following were the new additions to the company: Barney Reynolds, Dutch comique; Lizzie Skelton, skipping-rope dancer; Kennedy and Manning, song and dance; Minnie Hassan, vocalist; Little May, song and dance, and Happy Dave McCormack, Ethiopian comedian.....Miss Jennie Worrell continued one of the attractions at the Theatre Comique.....,The San Francisco Minstrels hold their own without any great change of programme ....."Nat," with Fatty Stewart as the star performer, drew well at Tony Pastor's.....The Globe Theatre was doing very well with John Woodward's pieces.

The Vokes Family netted $150,000 by their last American tour.

Mrs. James A. Oates and company opened in Cincinnati on the 21st.

Mr. Fechter opened in Cincinnati 21st.

Joe Emmet will be in Cincinnati for two weeks from the 21st.

Elwin Adams played in Auburn, N. Y., on the 17th; Utica 21st.

Mr. John T. Raymond commences his traveling tour at Hartford, Conn., on January 11th.

Katherine Rogers Randolph was in Detroit on the 21st.

J. B. Booth and troupe, with Agnes Booth, Williamsport, Pa., 15th, Wilkesbarre, 24th.

Mrs. Mary McCann, a widow, living in Palisade avenue, Jersey City Heights, jumped from a Chambers-street ferryboat on the night of the 10th on account of having three children and being out of work. She was employed in the ballet at Niblo's Theatre until the close of the "Black Crook" there, but after that could get nothing to do. She had eaten nothing for two days. An officer saved her life.

Miss Carlotta Leclercq, the favorite actress, has postponed her engagement at Booth's, consequently her agent, Arthur Leclercq, 19 West Twenty-fourth street, New York, advertises that her early dates are unfilled.

Mme. Janauschek proposes that the present shall be her last season in America, having acquired sufficient means to retire from the stage and return to the land of her birth.

Stephen Fiske, husband of Mrs. John Wood, and manager of the St. James Theatre, London, arrived in New York on the 8th.

Olive Logan varies her dramatic season by lecturing on "Girls" at Lexington, Ky., 23d; Paris, 28th.

James Steele Mackaye, Poughkepsie, 18th.

G. B. Waldron was at the Pittsburgh Opera House on the 11th. He appeared in "Macbeth" on the occasion of Miss Clara Morris' benefit. He will open at the Lyceum, New York, on January 4th, being engaged to support Mrs. Rousby.

It is reported that Lawrence Barrett will soon go to Australia.

Trinculo, in the Arcadian says: "Clara Morris and Rose Eytinge are sitting on the two wings of the Thespian temple, very high up above the mob of beauties who are struggling below for their laurels."

Barry Sullivan will begin a long engagement at Booth's Theatre New York, next August, and it is reported that ... Bateman will bring out Mr. Irving (whose Hamlet is just now the talk of London) at the same time.

Clara Morris will appear at Booth's Theatre, New York, during the coming spring, as Lady Macbeth, supported by Lawrence Barrett and George Vandenhoff on alternate nights.

Frank Mayo made a hit with "Davy Crockett" in St. Louis. For the first few nights the theatre (below the gallery) was nearly empty. The name of the play, says the critic of the Republican, "sounded backwoodsy and the posters looked coonskinny," and the high toned people thought they were not in possible when Mrs John Wood left us, but he makes an exception in favor of Pauline Lucca. He says: "To see her play the soubrette part in 'Fra Diavolo' was to see feminine humor bubbling over into action, and falling into song. Her very laugh was the quintessence of mischievous comedy.

The correspondent of the New York Clipper, in his notice of the performance of "School" at Hooley's Opera House, speaks as follows of E. J. Buckley, formerly of the California Theatre: As Lord Beaufoy, Mr. Buckley has had his first opportunity to catch the people, and it is but simple justice to say that he has done so. His manner, speech, dress and business were equally painstaking and pleasurable.

A New York paper says:

Angie Schott's Combination will take the road December 24th, for a tour through the principal Eastern cities.

Miss Angie Schott is very pretty and very talented. She should meet with success.

The New York papers now advertise The Reverend What-you-may-call-it DeWitt Talmage's Sunday sermons among the amusements. This is kind. The Clipper says: Talmage continues his performances at the Brooklyn Tabernacle, and he draws good houses. One cause of his success is that no other circus has been there of late, and he has the field to himself. Some people prefer Dan Rice, while others swear by Talmage. For our part we can see but little difference between the two, with the shade of difference in favor of the veteran jester of the sawdust arena. Hoop la!

The New York Clipper says: It is not often that it falls to our lot to chronicle so pleasing an instance of disinterested charity as that recently displayed by Mr. J. B. Durocher of the Richelieu Hotel, Montreal, Canada, towards the members of the Royal Opera House Company, who, through the unexpectedly sudden departure of the managers, were left without funds and indebted to several hotel-keepers for board. Mr. Durocher boarded the company at his house, gratuitously, and assuming the management of the theatre for the rest of the week enabled the professionals to discharge all their liabilities.

George M. Ciprico made his first appearance in his new starring play entitled "Edmund Kean" at the Holiday Theatre, Baltimore, on the 14th inst.

The Baltimore papers spoke very favorably of both the actor and the play. The Sun of the 15th said: "Ciprico, the young tragedian, created a very favorable impression last evening, at the Holiday Street Theatre, in his rendition of "Kean, the Actor," the audience being large."

The News said: "Ciprico made a most favorable impression on the crowded audience which assembled at the Holiday Street Theatre last evening, to witness his performance in the romantic play of "Edmund Kean." The piece is one of thrilling interest, holding the attention from beginning to end. It ran smoothly, and the cast throughout being excellent, it promises to have a fine run. Mark Price, Stanley, Denham, and others of the splendid stock company appear to great advantage, in parts suited to their peculiar talents. Ciprico's fame had preceded him, but he more than realized the most sanguine expectations which had been formed of his undoubted talents as an actor of the very first order."

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

$300 Per Share and No Assessments.

The Town of Newark, now being laid out in Alameda County, will consist of 4,000 acres. 2,500 acres of which will be divided into 80-acre plats, subdivided into one-acre lots, and 5,000 Town Lots, each 52 feet by 105 feet, besides others for donations to religious and public uses, a public Park of 50 acres, warehouses, hotels, dwelling houses, etc, for sale. To provide funds for this enterprise, and to carry out the project at once, there will be offered for sale 2,500 shares at $300 each, which will entitle each shareholder to a one-acre plat and two town lots, and a pro rata interest in all improvements projected by the Directors. The payments will be $100 in January, $100 in March, and $100 in May, 1875, and when two payments have been made, the remainder will be put up at auction to the public, and all premiums will be divided among the shareholders, and it is believed will amount to sufficient to cover the last payment. It is thought by this co-operation that every share will double in value in six months, as the land is put in at $125 per acre, which is a very low price for so large a piece of land so near San Francisco.

Persons of small means will note that they can here get a country homestead complete for $1,500, and an interest in a live country location, with easy, cheap communication with San Francisco. Estimates show that bungalow houses can be erected, containing parlor, two bedrooms, closets, kitchen, etc., at a cost not to exceed $1,000 each, and as a sale of the one-acre plat or the two town lots will probably cover the cost of the land, it is easily seen how any person can have a cheap country home, or pleasant Summer residence, at no great outlay. The climate is equal to anything in America, and its benefits cannot but recommend it to invalids and pleasure-seekers. The distance to the Warm Sulphur Springs is only six miles. The soil is unsurpassed in fertility, its products not to be excelled, and water is abundant for every purpose.

No similar enterprize can compete with this either in cheapness or location, and being entirely on the co-operative plan, fair alike to all, must benefit this community and all outsiders.

For certificates of climate, productions, etc., maps of the property, and any information relative to this enterprise, apply at the office of the Association.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—On Thursday evening "The Merchant of Venice" was produced, with John McCullough as Shylock. He dressed the part magnificently and gained much applause, particularly in the scene where he bemoans the loss of his daughter and his ducats. Barton Hill, as Gratiano, did some splendid acting, his taunting the Jew in the court scene was particularly well done. Miss Bella Pateman made an excellent Portia, and delivered the great speech of the part in a style which evoked thunders of applause. Miss Ellie Wilton was a very pert and pleasing Nerissa. The comic scene between Launcelot Gobbo and Old Gobbo was admirably played by Robert Pateman and W. Barry, both a erling comedians, who have taken the trouble to study their art. Henry Edwards acted and read the role of Antonio very effectively, and T. W. Keene was at his best in Bassanio. Miss Carrie Wyatt was most pleasantly piquante as Jessica, and quite won the sympathies of the audience and their forgiveness for running away from her old curmudgeon of a father, taking with her money which she had earned by keeping house for him. On Friday Mr. McCullough appeared in his impersonation of Spartacus in "The Gladiator," and was, as all know, magnificently supported by Barton Hill as Phasarius, Henry Edwards as Jovius, Miss Bella Pateman as Senona, Miss Ellie Wilton as Julia, T. W. Keene as Marcus Lucinius Crassus, and others whose names appear on our first page in the cast of the play, which will be repeated this evening. The bill for the matinee is "Much Ado About Nothing," with Mr. McCullough as Benedick and Miss Pateman as Beatrice.

OPERA HOUSE.—Light entertainments and pure fun are never more popular than during the holiday season. There are thousands of people in the city from the country at present, and all these are determined, whatever other amusements they miss, not to go away before they have enjoyed an evening at Emerson's Minstrels. Billy Emerson's character song of "Muldoon, the Solid Man," has created a veritable furore; "The Three Doves," by Billy Rice, Ben Cotton and Billy Arlington, is as popular an act as ever; Leopold and Geraldine delight and amaze the spectators by their wonderfully graceful and daring acts on the flying trapeze, and altogether the programme is so good that it would seem almost impossible to improve it. Hundreds were turned away at both the matinee and evening performance on Christmas Day, and there will be a rush at the matinee to-day and again in the evening.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—As a holiday piece "The Enchantress" as presented at this theatre should prove a decided success. On the first night of its production (Christmas Eve), it played until 12 o'clock, but judicious pruning of dialogue and rearrangemens of scenes has shortened it considerably, and one may now witness it and catch a car to take one home. Miss Ada Hope by her beautiful face, graceful figure, easy action on the stage and sweet voice established her right to follow a profession in which she is as yet but a novice. She dressed the part of Stella magnificently. Walter Campbell's fine voice was heard to good advantage in the role of Pacheco and George Giddens and Miss Sydney Lowell who supplied the comis element of the piece were applauded and encored throughout the entire performance, the audience seeming never to have enough of them. The choruses were finely sung by some of the best vocalists in San Francisco. The Amazon march has seldom been so effectualy produced. Miss Amy Bennett, the premiere danseuse, who appeared in the ballet and in the march, is an artist in her line, and is in addition quite and pretty. A very pleasing feature of the performance was the impersonation of Roman Statues by Messrs. Austin and Johnson. A grotesque dance by Sherwood and Smith was well executed, and caused roars of laughter. The Sheridan Brothers received much applause for their clog dance, and the Lu Lu sensation sent a shudder of fear through the audience. It appears a frightfully dangerous act, but close mathematical calculation reduces the risk to a minimum. The transformation scene by Straus is one of the most beautiful ever presented in this city It epresents the march of Aurora, and the number of figures in it adds to its attractiveness. Maguire' Theatre was thronged to suffocation at the matinee and again last night. "The Enchantress" bids fair to have a long and prosperous run. Splendid scenery, beautiful dresses, pretty girls, strong acting, are desirable elements in a holiday piece, and all these "The Enchantress" possesses in an eminent degree.

THE CALIFORNIA THESPIAN SOCIETY.—The California Thespian Society, assisted by Harry Thompson, Mons. Schmidt and Mlle. Therese, will give an entertainment at Horticultural Hall on Sunday evening, December 27th. The performance will commence with the farce of "Look Out for the Baby," in which J. M. Summers, Harry D. Thompson, Miss McCabe, Miss Noko McCabe and Mrs. Frank Rea will appear. After this, Mons. Schmidt and M'lle Therese will appear in a pas de deux, and a ball will wind up the evening's entertainment.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—The original holiday fairy extravaganza "The Prince of the Blue Isles; or, the Demons of the Rock," written by J. G. Arnold, was produced at this theatre on Christmas Eve. The piece is a very happy combination of the romantic and the practical, with plenty of fun, popular songs and choruses sandwiched in its scenes. The characters are well sustained, the costumes are very handsome and the scenery and mountings really very fine for so small a stage. The grand march and tableaux are executed with military precision, and the Incantation Wand Dance is a very clever novelty that was encored again and again. Of course there are no grand stage effects in the piece, but Manager Buckley in producing it has placed the resources of the theatre to the best advant... and it is a very creditable exhibition of his managerial experience, adaptability and tact.

MERCANTILE LIBRARY HALL.—This artistic and most beautiful panorama of the river Thames and London, the largest and best panorama ever exhibited in this city, is showing for its last nights at Mercantile Library Hall, prior to its embarkation for Australia. Its last exhibitions will be on Saturday afternoon and evening.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—NOVELTIES. There are always thousands of objects of interest on exhibition at these gardens. To-day and to-

SIG. CHIARINI'S ROYAL ITALIAN CIRCUS.—At both matinee and evening performance on Christmas Day Wilson's spacious amphitheatre was crowded, and the entertainment given by the rare combination of talent formed by Signor Chiarini was thoroughly enjoyed. There is so much variety and the programme is so well arranged that it will be long ere the public weary of "horse opera" as presented by the great Italian impressario. Belen Cuba, Theodoro Cuba, Romeo Sebastian, Monsieur Herbert and the Japanese artistes are all stars of the first magnitude. There will be a matinee performance to-day and the entertainment this evening. The children are enjoying a rich holiday treat.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining-rooms. Guido Mangenberg, the proprietor, gets up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from any thing else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain railroad.

NOTES.—Miss Vittorina Petrarchi, a pupil of Prof. D. Speranza, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit at Pacific Hall this evening. It is tendered by her friends and the pupils of the Italian Musical Institute. A very good programme will be performed.

On Monday evening, at the California Theatre, "Hamlet" will be presented in a style never before attempted in this city. Mr. McCullough's heart has been in the work, and he has spared no money in the preparations for this grand revival. New scenery has been painted, new dresses and accessories have been obtained from New York, and as to the impersonation of the hero by Mr. McCullough, we have already expressed our opinion of that—it has few equals on either the American or English stage. Truly the legitimate drama has found a home in San Francisco.

There was a brilliant assemblage at Horticultural Hall on Christmas Eve, when Sam Genese gave his second bal masque. There was any amount of fun. There were fair women and brave men; the music was good, the supper excellent, everything was well arranged, and nothing happened to mar the harmony which generally prevailed. Dancing was kept up until nearly 5 o'clock.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

VIRGINIA CITY.—Miss Adele Leighton commenced an engagement at Piper's Opera House on Monday in "Frou Frou." The play was repeated on Tuesday. On Wednesday "The Sphinx" was produced, and probably ran to the end of the week.

SANTA ROSA.—Professor W. Mix delivered lectures on "Astronomy," "The Mosaic Theory of Creation," and "The Cause of Earthquakes" at Ridgeway Hall on Saturday and Sunday of last and Monday of the present week.

WATSONVILLE.—Madame Spomberger of the Santa Cruz Musical Academy will give a concert next week assisted by the amateur talent of Santa Cruz and Watsonville.

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

The London Hornet says: "The French think it ridiculous for the author of a piece to be called before the curtain at the end of a new play. They can understand authors, singers and dancers reappearing before the curtain to smile and bow to an applauding audience; but they cannot comprehend how a man with sufficient brains to write a play or compose an opera should lend himself to the practice in obedience to the plaudits of a paid clique. But, for all this, the fashion is very much on the increase. Formerly no author ever came forward to bow his acknowledgments on the stage; now, however, the incident is of frequent occurrence."

The Governmental directors of the leading theatres in Germany have determined to put a stop to the absurd system of recalls, and of throwing bouquets and wreaths on the stage during the progress of an opera, or even of the deepest tragedy. The custom has been copied from the Italian opera houses, and the practice in Vienna and Berlin has been imitated to such an extravagant extent that the most serious situations are converted into burlesque. Fancy the statue in "Don Giovanni" being summoned before the curtain, and the Ghost in "Hamlet" obeying a call with "martial stalk."

The London World says: "There is no truth in the rumor that Mr. Toole is about to return from America to assume the management of the Queen's Theatre in conjunction with Mr. Boucicault. We should think not. J. L. is not the sort of man to become a Toole of Boucicault's."

Mr. Santley has accepted a long engagement with the Carl Rosa Opera Troupe.

The London correspondent of the N. Y. Mercury gives the following summary of news up to Nov. 28th: The Opera Comique reopened 21st, under Amy Sheridan, with "Ixion." The piece has very little merit, and was not received with anything like enthusiasm. The dresses are superb.....Irving's Hamlet has created quite a furore, and travesties seem to be cropping up everywhere. There is one now at the Globe, but the performance is bad. Geo Bulmore is to burlesque "Hamlet" at the Princess's on the 30th....."Madame Angot" has been again revived at the Globe, and has replaced the "Island of Bachelors." Business at this theatre is anything but good.....The Criterion reopens to-night with Lecocq's "Le Pres de St. Gervais." I think that another failure will be experienced here. This theatre is subterranean, and is artificially supplied with air. It is a charming-looking house, but people don't care to go down flight after flight of stairs to get at the stalls. Mr. Hingston, the business manager, is obliged to retire from his duties for a time. .....Business at the Haymarket is falling off rapidly.....The St. James did a brisk trade when it commenced its performance of "The Black Prince," but the state of affairs is not so prosperous now. It is a very poor entertainment.....Promenade concerts at Covent Garden commence for the season to-night.....The "Geneva Cross" is a failure at the Adelphi.....The "Prayer in a Storm" is to be revived, and at Christmas a pantomime is to be given to supplement the performance. With three theatres on his hands and neither making very large profits, Mr. Chatterton must have plenty of responsibility.

IF ANY MAN CAN
JOHN BOLLMAN
Can, and Does, Sell, in spite of a legion of long-tailed Celestials and their white friends, FIVE HAVANA CIGARS FOR FIVE CENTS APIECE, or THIRTY DOLLARS PER THOUSAND. They are called
Los Brilliantes,
And, judging by the daily increasing demand for them, they will in time excel any other brands of cigars. Competition, of course, will do all it can to retard and stop their sale, and therefore we would earnestly request the generous public to see for itself and first give them a fair trial, ere condemning them. A meritorious article may be cheap as well and our maxim has been and always will be, to sell a first rate article at the lowest PRICE POSSIBLE. Those cigars as well as our celebrated ROSARY CIGARITOS are sold in all the principal cigar stores in this city and adjoining towns, or the factory, 409 WASHINGTON STREET, CORNER BATTERY.

Look for above trade mark, when you buy and beware of imitations.
N. B. For a smoker, as a holiday gift, you could hardly select anything more suitable and acceptable than our CIGARS and RUSSIAN CIGARITOS, especially our LA MONCOVITAN manufactured of Turkish tobacco worth $5 per pound. The finest Cigaritos in Market, sold at the factory for $30 per thousand. d4

Dramatic Notes.

We take the following from the New York Spirit of the Times: Mr. Barney Williams and his charming wife have been offered ten thousand dollars for a four weeks' engagement by an enterprising manager. In consideration of their immense success in recent engagements, there is nothing extravagant in the proposition. Mr. Barney Williams is one of the best delineators of Irish character who has stepped upon the stage since the days of Tyrone Power.

Little Nell, one of the cleverest and most charming young actresses of the Lotta school, has succeeded in retrieving the ill-fortune of the St. Charles Theatre, New Orleans, by playing a brilliant engagement to crowded houses for the past two weeks. She has proved the best drawing card at that theatre during the present season. Lotta had better look out for her laurels.

"When St. Pathrick dhrove all the crapin' things out of Ireland, he left one sarpint behind him," seems to tickle Boucicault's fancy immensely, for he uses the expression whenever he finds a chance. It appears in "Andy Blake," and again in "Arrah Na Pogue," and now the old sixpence turns up once more in "The Shaughraun." The conundrum now is, where did he get it from?

John Raymond says that he is getting very tired of his Col. Sellers being compared as equal in elaboration to "Rip Van Winkle" and "Solon Shingle." The first comparison has already been made 19,816 times, the second 22,937 times, and the similes have lost their charm. The handsome Chandos Fulton, who has kept the tally for amusement, vouches for these figures.

Mr. Charles Wheatleigh, a capital actor by the way, has purchased the right of "The Shaughraun" for Australia, and takes himself hence ere long. It strikes us, however, that he is too much of a gentleman to play the role of the vagabond Conn with the same intuitive inteligence of its creator at Wallack's.

Jolly Nash, who has made such a hit in America, sailed for home in the Abyssinia on the 16th, but will return in August, 1875, to fill a six months' engagement with Manager Josh Hart of the Comique, during which time he will go to San Francisco after filling a month's engagement in New York and Boston.

Miss Marie Gordon, the talented and beautiful wife of Col. Mulberrey Sellers—we beg pardon; Mr. John T. Raymond—has arrived in New York after a long and interesting tour of Europe. We believe that it is her intention to act no more. If so, our stage loses one of its brightest ornaments.

Attention, Col. Sellers! Another Richmond in the field! One Le Roy has been playing his own dramatization of "The Gilded Age" at the Oro Fino Theatre, Portland, Oregon. Where's Mark Twain? where's Ingersoll? Where's Unworthy, to stop this thing? It is a piece of robbery that ought to be stopped at once.

Mr. Boucicault was complaining of his health a few days since, when Lester Wallack (may his shadow grow no more in bulk) is said to have observed to him, "Die not, O mine ass, for the spring is coming, and with it clover." Imagine this with just a touch of the brogue!

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young la... of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The time has left us, but Zacharias, the Jeweler, has not, nor does he intend to do so, while he has such a fine stock of jewelry on hand. You know where the place is, Kearny street, near Sacramento. K

The Mason & Hamlin Organs are acknowledged to be the most powerful, at the same time giving

A TERRIBLE FUSS.

The wiseacres who "always said Spiritualism was a humbug" are crowing loudly over the exposure of the woman in Philadelphia who pretended to be a materialized spirit. They "knew it was an imposition all along." Robert Dale Owen didn't find it out for some time; when he was convinced, he owned he had been deceived. There have been dozens of these materialization humbugs exposed, but until Professors Crookes and Wallace come out with cards stating that the electrometer lied to them about Katie King and her medium, Florence Cook, we shall not denounce as superstitious fools and idiots all who investigate these matters. The Spiritualists have no articles of faith. They don't say that all those who don't believe in spiritual manifestations will go to hell. Each person who believes in the possibility of spirits out of the body communicating with spirits still in the body, says: "I have seen and heard enough to convince me; you can believe what you please." Spiritualists believe in individual sovereignty. They are not slaves of a creed. They seek after knowledge, and don't, because they are humbugged once, twice or a dozen times, give up the search. Every Spiritualist who believes in the resurrection of the body will rejoice at the exposure of this sham illustration of it which has recently taken place in Philadelphia, and will admire the patience and skill exercised by the gentleman who brought it about. In the meantime, until the London Katie King is proved to have been a fraud and Professors Wallace and Crookes fools or knaves, we hold to the opinion that there may be something in this materialization business, after all. The trouble with us is that we don't know it all just at present, and believe that discoveries are yet to be made.

The Sunday Law in New York.

The New York Spirit of the Times says: In the case of Adolph Neuendorff, proprietor of the Stadt Theatre, for an injunction against the Police Commissioners restraining them from interfering with his giving performances at his theatre on Sunday evening, alluded to last week, a decision was rendered adversely to him by Judge Daly on Saturday last. The sole ground upon which the injunction was refused was that Sunday performances tended to a breach of the peace. Nothing could be more absurd than such a conclusion. The converse is true. We presume that the petition recently signed by a handful of old fogies prominent in stock-gambling, two or three local managers, and several actors, itching to ape the manners of their patrons, had much weight with the judge. The popular voice is in favor of Sunday amusements, and it is a sad commentary upon our practice of free government when the people cannot indulge in harmless and amusing entertainments, which neither disturb the peace nor trespass upon any law conducive to good morals. One manager assembled his audience after the rendition of the adverse decision, and, keeping them entertained by vocal and instrumental music until twelve o'clock, rang up his curtain at one minute past midnight and gave his performance, in order, as he said, to demonstrate that what was improper at five minutes to twelve was not improper six minutes later. There are many features to this subject which deserve more serious discussion, and which we shall have occasion to revert to at another time. We cannot refain, however, from expressing our amazement at Mr. Lester Wallack's course in signing a petition which stigmatizes theatrical performances as a breach of the peace. This actor has followed the stage all his life, and to turn upon it now in the days of his prosperous independence and set such a slander upon it, is a course of which we thought him incapable. Does Mr. Wallack mean to say that a performance in his theatre on Sunday night is worse than a performance on any other? If there is anything disreputable in a theatrical performance on Sunday, is it more reputable on Monday? And is Wallack the man who should hasten, with pockets well lined with the profits of a score of years of active operations in theatrical enterprises, to stab the stage with a calumny like this? He hangs out a sign over the entrance to his theatre, saying: "It is a breach of the peace to present "The Rivals" on Sunday night, but come around to-morrow night and the peace will not be broken." Such illogical reasoning is impotent. It is more; it is a scurvy trick to serve a profession from which he has drawn his existence for years. Wallack, above all others, should be the last man to admit that there was anything in or pertaining to theatrical performances which would militate against the peace or good morals. He should be the last to admit that he has followed a profession for a lifetime, the exercise of which on any particular day would place him in the categrry of tavern-brawlers and disreputable and turbulent disturbers of the peace.

PEACE IS DECLARED in all families who buy their furniture and bedding of J. A. Shaber & Co., 707 Market street, near Third, because they get bette goods for the same price than any other dealers.

Something Elegant.

The largest and most magnificent assortment of Pitman's Iron-Clad Cat.

Max Adeler tells the following story: Now that the opening of the session of Congress is close at hand, I feel that there is a need that the attention of that body shall be directed to the importance of placing a prohibitory duty upon stovepipe. I allude to the subject because of the conduct of my next-door neighbor, Pitman, in reference to his cat. The animal is considered to have a phenomenal screech. On calm nights, when it has been practicing in the upper register, its high C has been distinctly heard eight miles up the river, and twice it has called out the fire department. It may readily be supposed that this vociferation has not had a soothing effect upon me. In fact, I have projected nearly all the loose material in the house over the fence at him, at odd times, and it used to interest me in the morning, after a bombardment, to see Pitman come out and collect my tea-cups, and boots, and cologne bottles, and carry them into his house as calmly as if they had been rained down by some beneficent fairy who hovered around for the express purpose of blessing Pitman. Finally I borrowed a gun, with the intent to annihilate that cat utterly; and I fired at it on five successive moonlight nights, with no other effect than to induce it to run higher up the scale and to utter howls which might have been heard fifteen hundred miles in a high wind. On the next night I went on guard with a club, on my side of the fence, and waited until Pitman's cat mounted the rail top and began his customary sport. He was in the midst of some variations when I swooped down on him and knocked him into my yard. I thought the blow sounded very queerly, and when I seized the animal I found that he was iron-clad. Pitman had bored four holes in a section of stovepipe and inserted the cat's feet in them, while the animal's body remained inside, and the pipe projected six or seven inches beyond its head, so that when it howled its voice sounded like a trombone. The beast is dead now; but I retain its armor, and I am going to use it before the Congressional Committee on Ways and means to have the duty on stove pipe put up to an awful figure.

Bijah's Music—Poetical Justice.

As Bijah kicked the stove door shut and threw the chairs around, he sang:

On Friday morning he did go
Into the meadow and did mow
A round or two, then he did feel
A pisen serpent at his heel.

His Honor came in as the clock was on the stroke of 8, and as he rubbed his hands before the fire, he said it always made him lonesome to hear Bijah sing, or listen to the notes of the big coffee mill. "However," said he, "there's worse singers than Bijah—there's the peacock, for instance."

As soon as the warrants could be signed and the officers sworn to tell the whole truth and nothing but the truth, a little old woman, named Johanna Lamb, was brought in.

"Johanna Lamb was very drunk, and rolling in the snow; and when I set her on her feet a step she couldn't go," said the officer, as he was called up to make his statement.

"That's bad for thee, Johanna Lamb, what have you got to say? I sent you up three months ago for acting in this way," said His Honor. Then Johanna opened her mouth and replied: "I'm old, yer Honor—old and poor—I havn't no place to go; and so I take my whisky sling, and don't care what I do."

His Honor remarked that he was always sorry when he met a person who had got too old to behave themselves, and added: "I think I'll make it ninety days; the jug's the place for thee; but still your friends can take you out by the payment of a V." And that made mutton of that Lamb, and she was led away.—Detroit Free Press.

NEWARK,

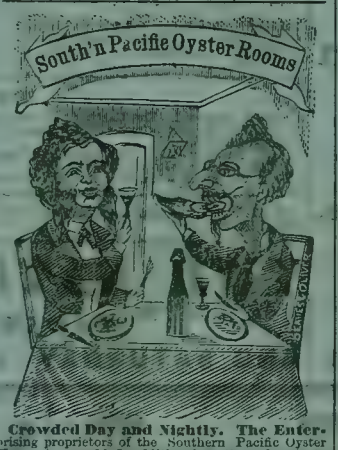
Alameda County.

$300 Per Share and No Assessments.

The Town of Newark, now being laid out in Alameda County, will consist of 4,000 acres, 2,500 acres of which will be divided into 80-acre plats, subdivided into one-acre lots, and 5,000 Town Lots, each 52 feet by 105 feet, besides others for donations to religious and public uses, a public Park of 50 acres, warehouses, hotels, dwelling houses, etc., for sale. To provide funds for this enterprise, and to carry out the project at once, there will be offered for sale 2,500 shares at $300 each, which will entitle each shareholder to a one-acre plat and two town lots, and a pro rata interest in all improvements projected by the Directors. The payments will be $100 in January, $100 in March, and $100 in May, 1875, and when two payments have been made, the remainder will be put up at auction to the public, and all premiums will be divided among the shareholders, and it is believed will amount to sufficient to cover the last payment. It is thought by this co-operation that every share will double in value in six months, as the land is put in at $125 per acre, which is a very low price for so large a piece of land so near San Francisco.

Persons of small means will note that they can here get a country homestead complete for $1,000, and an interest in a live country location, with easy, cheap communication with San Francisco. Estimates show that bungalow houses can be erected, containing parlor, two bedrooms, closets, kitchen, etc., at a cost not to exceed $1,000 each, and as a sale of the one-acre plat or the two town lots will probably cover the cost of the land, it is easily seen how any person can have a cheap country home, or pleasant Summer residence, at no great outlay. The climate is equal to anything in America, and its benefits cannot but recommend it to invalids and pleasure-seekers. The distance to the Warm Sulphur Springs is only six miles. The soil is unsurpassed in fertility, its products not to be excelled, and water is abundant for every purpose.

No similar enterprize can compete with this either in cheapness or location, and being entirely on the co-operative plan, fair alike to all, must benefit this community and all outsiders.



For certificates of climate, productions, etc., maps of the property, and any information relative to this enterprise, apply at the office of the Association.

Opera House.

The first part at this house, to-night, will terminate with "The Graduates" by Billy Emerson, J. R. Kemble and Ben Cotton. After this "Deaf in a Horn" will be played by Billy Rice and Charley Rhodes, Billy Emerson will appear in his wonderfully successful character sketch entitled "Muldoon the Solid Man," the popular act of "The Three Doves" by Billy Arlington, Billy Rice and Ben Cotton, will be retained on the bill, and "Troubles in a Law Office" will terminate the evening's entertainment.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The spectacular play of "The Enchantress" with its wealth of variety business, pantomime performances, beautiful vocal and instrumental music and attractive ballet has proved an immense hit at this house, and will keep the New Theatre crowded every night until after the holidays. In the opera Miss Ada Hope deserves great credit both for singing and acting, Walter Campbell sings the role of Pacheco admirably, and D. Belasco does some good strong old-fashioned melodramatic acting as Galeas. Frank Rea as the Falstaffian Pambopincho, is very amusing. As to George Giddens and Miss Sydney Cowell, they are a whole entertainment in themselves, and are encored again and again. Their "Patrick's Day Parade" may rank as a companion picture to Billy Emerson's "Muldoon the Solid Man."

California Theatre.

To-night the third of the great Shaksperian revivals at this theatre will take place. "Hamlet" will be produced with new scenery, costumes, stage appointments, and a perfect cast. Mr. McCullough's Hamlet, when we last saw it, was an admirable performance. Since then he has still further elaborated it, and we confidently anticipate that the impersonation will be one that will delight all intelligent students of Shakspeare.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

To-night there will be a change in the programme at this popular place of amusement. Among the new features may be mentioned an equestrian act entitled "The Four Seasons" in which Madame Annereau will represent Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter, Theodoro Cuba in his greatest of equestrian acts, the wonderful swinging bamboo act by Hamakari Sakaikichi, performances on the horizontal bar by Messrs. Clifton and Gaston, a grand principal act on bareback horse by Senorita Belen Cuba, and the laughable equestrian spectacle entitled "The Battle of the Dons." There will be a matinee on New Year's Day, in addition to the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

The fairy extravaganza entitled "The Prince of the Blue Isles" has been produced in excellent style at this house and presents a melange of sentiment, fun, good music, variety business, pretty girls, and beautiful scenes, that make it a popular hit. It will be played every night until further notice.

Woodward's Gardens.

Another novelty has been engaged, Mons. Joseph, the Man of Iron Nerve, who fires a 600 Pound Cannon from his shoulders, appear with the Variety Troupe, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since 3-cj

Medical Wonder.

A QUEER LITTLE WOMAN.

BY JOSEPHINE POLLARD.

A queer little woman I met one day,
With a round little nose and two great blue eyes,
And she grappled my neck in so fierce a way
I was nearly choked to death with surprise.

"Where did you come from? What is your name?"
I asked, as a shower of kisses fell.
"Does any one own you, my little dame?"
"I'm all yours, Auntie; but don't you tell."

We kiss each other with fond embrace
Upon the landing or on the stair;
Whatever the time, or wherever the place,
The opportunity's then and there.

'Tis just for a minute; and then, perchance,
Another may happen to pass that way
Who claims a kiss or a loving glance
And wins her heart with but slight delay.

And, nestling close to her charioteer,
Her coral lips like a fluted shell,
She whispers, softly, and yet I hear:
"I'm all yours, Papa; but don't you tell."

You queer little woman! How can I trust
A love so fickle and false as this?
Do you think that a heart so cruelly thrust
Can meet you to-morrow with a smile and kiss?

Ah! yes, indeed, for I would not lose
My hold on the heart I am proud to share;
So love me a little to-day, if you choose,
And grant me more when you've more to spare.

A Cheated Coroner.

Max Adeler seems to imply that Danbury is blessed with as business-like a Coroner as the one San Francisco had a short time ago. He says: I have referred in my book to that Coroner of ours who seized on an Egyptian mummy that was brought into town, summoned a jury, held an inquest on the mummy, and brought in a verdict of "Death from causes unknown," and charged the county with the usual fee, with compound interest from the time of Moses. Well, that Coroner is still in office, and he is still enthusiastic about his profession. Last Sunday night he attended church. The minister preached a very solemn discourse upon Noah's flood, and after it was over I met the coroner in the aisle and said to him:

"Very impressive discourse, Mr. Wheeler, wasn't it?"

"Beautiful, sir! beautiful, sir!" replied Wheeler. "And yet it seemed to be kinder mournful, too."

"Indeed! Why, it didn't strike me in that way. It was solemn, of course, but its tendency certainly should be to fill the heart of every truly good man with cheerfuldess and hope."

"Oh, I know all that," said Wheeler, "but didn't he say there were several million people drowned in that flood?"

"I believe he did."

"Well then, I say that when I think of all that mortality, and remember that I wasn't coroner then, and ain't likely to be when there's another such a freshet, it makes me sick. There ain't nothing cheerful about such reflections. I feel as if I hadn't been treated right; as if I had been robbed."

I would like to know how Wheeler feels when he reads the story of the destruction of Sennacherib.

Santa Claus

Is not a myth if New Year's candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. In fact, George Haas & Co., No. 20 Kearny street, has fac similes of Santa Claus (in Candy) that are really good enough to eat. His holiday stock of home-made candies and bon-bon boxes cannot be excelled anywhere, as a visit to his store will show. K

Little Johnny on the Moth.

This is the jocky wich spiles my father's bes close by eatin, and then roases hisself in the cannle. Wen he is in the close he is that little and meek you wouldn't be a frade to leave the baby with him, but he tuunles woollen like he was a raleway enjinear; and my father he says the worse of it is he never gives you a estimate of wot the improvement is goin to cos you. But wen he gets his wings, and wy he wants of 'em wen he has got 'em, is wot floors me! I think it would be a preshus good job if he would cremate hisself before he was a draper. Wen ole gaffer Peterses dotter, wich is Missus Doppy, was to our house, her baby was lef in the drawin room wile the wimmin fokes was up stairs a gigglin like they allways does at their selves, and it was evenin, and the winder was open for summer, and we heard the baby a yellin awfle! Wen they went into it Missus Doppy said it was its poor teeths, and my mother said take that pin out of its close, and my sister said wot had it been eatin, but Billy he lit the gas and they was a hole hanfle of moths hid in its hair, wich is red like its mother, for the moths thot its hed was a lamp with a globe on it. Then Missus Doppy set down and combed 'em out with her fingers, and said pretty things, how fond they was of childern, but I took notice they dident none of them git away alive.

Fore I git done Ile tell you a other story about a red heded baby wich will make you laf cos it is so funny, but not true like this.

There is a kine of moth call the dess hed moth, wich has a skull on its back, not a real skull, but jus mark that way. Jack Briley, the sailor, says it is a piret, and the skull is run up to sho no quorter to the other moths, but wen I tole him it wasent run up he said it was painted on their upper decks, wich was the same thing and better, too; cos the moth wich is merchant mens can't see it till they are close alongside. Moths is cover with a kine of powder wot mother dabs on to the baby wen he is wosh, and thats wy some fokes calls em millers, but were is their wite hats Ide lice to no.

L'Enfant Terrible.

A story is told of a prominent person now in the lecture field which is peculiarly interesting, and suggestive of unconscious wisdom. A gentleman was invited to the lecturer's house to tea. Immediately on being seated at the table the little girl astonished the family circle and the guests by the abrupt question:

"Where is your wife?"

Now, the gentleman, having been recently separated from the partner of his life, was taken so completely by surprise that he stammered forth the truth:

"I don't know."

"Don't know," replied l'enfant terrible, "why don't you know?"

Finding that the child persisted in her interrogatories despite the mild reproof of her parents, he concluded to make a clean breast of the matter and have it over at once. So he said, with a calmness which was the result of inward expletives: "Well, we don't live together; we think, as we can't agree, we'd better not."

"Can't agree! Then why don't you fight it out as pa and ma do?"

"Vengeance is mine," laughingly retorted the visitor, after pa and ma exchanged looks of holy horror, followed by the inevitable roar.

A Resolute Woman.

An energetic lady in Olwein, Iowa, laments her inability to vote. "Why, if I were a man," she said recently, "I'd go to the polls if I had to be laid on a feather bed, placed on a stone-boat, and hauled by a blind ox with one leg broken, but I'd vote! But what's the use of talking!"

How to Dress Well.

Over two-thirds of the best dressed gentlemen in this city (those who dress in style we mean) would say, if asked the question where they had their clothes made, that they went to John Bull's, No. 109 Third street, and would also advise you and your friends to go there if you want a perfect-fitting suit made in the latest style, from either imported or domestic goods, at the lowest price compatible with a good garment. If You Want a Piano, Buy at Headquarters, and don't be fooled into buying advertised worthless trash. Buy an ANTISELL PIANO-FORTE, and you have the best Piano made, and indorsed by hundreds of our leading artists and musicians throughout California. We sell at manufacturers' prices and having a large capital and business are enabled to undersell agents who are only middlemen. Agents have to pay high prices to cover their long credits, and usually make the enormous profits of from $100 to $300. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. We have just received from our factory a fine assortment that we offer at a small advance, either for cash or instalments, instead of renting. They are overstrung bass Agraffes, French action, etc., possessing every improvement recognized by people of cultivated musical taste, and the grand result is that for power, sweetness, brilliancy, and singing quality of tone, evenness throughout the entire scale, delicacy and elasticity of touch, strength, durability, beauty and finish, the ANTISELL PIANO stands unequalled.

N B—We sold our miscellaneous stock at auction, which consisted of Steinway & Son, Chickering, and Decker Brothers, as it didn't pay to keep those makes, we find the demand so limited.

Los Brillantes,

And, judging by the daily increasing demand for them, they will in time outsell any other brands of cigars. Competition, of course, will do all it can to retard and stop their sale, and therefore we would earnestly request the generous public to see for itself and first give them a fair trial, ere condemning them. A meritorious article may be cheap as well, and our maxim has been and always will be, to sell a first-rate article at the lowest PRICE POSSIBLE. These cigars as well as our celebrated RUSSIAN CIGARETTES are sold in all the principal cigar stores in the city and adjoining towns, or the factory, 409 WASHINGTON STREET, CORNER BATTERY.

Look for above trade mark, when you buy and beware of imitations.

TUESDAY.....DECEMBER 29

Death of Watts Phillips.

The English papers contain the announcement of the death of Mr. Watt Phillips, the dramatist, who expired on Wednesday, December 2d, after a long illness, which had for some time compelled him to lay aside his pen. He was born in London toward the close of 1829, and at an early age showed so much aptitude as an artist that Mr. George Cruikshank accepted him as his only pupil, and he pursued his artistic studies in Paris for several years. Ultimately the success of his first play, called "Joseph Cavigny," produced at the Adelphi, in London, in May, 1856, induced him to devote himself to authorship.

The great impression on the public made by his drama of "The Dead Heart" caused Mr. Benjamin Webster to secure his services specially for the Adelphi, but eventually other establishments in London were furnished by the now popular dramatist with some of their most attractive novelties. To the Olympic he contributed the drama of "Camilla's Husband;" to the Princess's, "Paul's Return" and "The Huguenot Captain," to the Haymarket the burlesque drama of "The Woman in Mauve," and to the Surrey the five-act play of "Theodora" and "Nobody's Child." The drama of "Lost in London," originally brought out at the Adelphi, and now being represented at the Princess's Theatre, London, has kept his name fresh in the memory of the playgoer. Mr. Watts Phillips was also known as a novelist and a frequent contributor to several periodicals.

A Complimentary Notice.

The Susanville Advocate gives a "singing cuss," who visited that place, the following first-rate puff: "There came a man from the Sierra Valley country to this place a few days since, who sent a special messenger out through this town, inviting all those who had music about their souls to meet him at the Court House, and he would give them such a treat as it was never the fortune of this people to hear before. His invitation extended only to those who were best trained in music, the untrained ear would be out of place there, for the bobolink, the canary, the thrush were all insignificant warblers compared with him who voluntarily and gratuitously offered his distinguished services on this occasion. So the vocalists of Susanville turned ou en masse, and were for several hours entertained by a man with the "big head" who is hardly capable of teaching the scale to school children, who couldn't tell the key in which the common pieces were written, and whose voice was like the bray of a muzzled jackass.

Do Something.

The man who does nothing doesn't amount to much. It makes little difference whether he be a millionaire or a pauper. He is only a stagnant pool, without energy enough to start a ripple. He diffuses a moral miasma over everything around him. Do something, don't stand on the corner gaping, with your hands in your pockets like an idiot. The world was made to work in, and if you fill your heart with good angels the bad spirits will keep out, because there is no room for them.

Pretty Mean.

H. W. Beecher having been sued by a dentist for the value of four sets of false teeth furnished to his wife and father over six years ago, pleaded the Statute of Limitations. A man who will get off paying such a debt in such a manner, ought to have toothache for the rest of his life.

The Young Man from the East.

"Im a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The Mason & Hamlin Organs are acknowledged to be the most powerful, at the same time giving forth the sweetest tone of any other. Kohler, Simple Enough.

Jennie June writes: "The Bayard Club," for both sexes, has been started in London, and taken for its motto, "Sans peur, et sans reproche." There is talk of starting such a club in New York, but the policy is a very doubtful one, and its success would be still more so. The women belonging to such a club must necessarily be self-reliant, independent, able to pay their own expenses, and occasionally those of a friend, or there would be no object in their belonging to a club at all. The men would go to see these women, leaving their wives at home as usual, to mind the baby, and there would be that disagreeable individual to pay, who so often rules the affairs of men—when their wives are away."

There is no reason why the Bayard Club, in London, should not succeed. The ladies who belong to it are, of course, in easy circumstances, and they have nursery maids to take care of their children. Women of culture, wealth and intellect need not spend all their time "minding the baby."

A Successful Experiment.

Liverpool has long been the greatest drunkard manufacturing city in the world, in proportion to population, and the British authorities have recently ordered the trial of a new remedy for the evil. The plan was suggested by Mr. Gladstone, and it was to publish the names of those who were seen in public drunk. Every Monday morning a list of the public drunkards is published in all the daily papers, giving the names and occupations of the transgressors in full. This conspicuous proclamation of their disgrace seems to have done more good than any other measure yet devised, for the weekly cases have fallen off one-third, and arrests for other crimes in the same proportion. It is a singular means, but if it will deter men from getting drunk, we do not know why it would not be an easy practical remedy.

A Fellow Feeling.

Beecher's friends mention, as a proof of devotion to him, that twelve members of Plymouth Church recently offered him $100,000 to prosecute and defend suits growing out of the great scandal, and that three times that amount could be raised if necessary.

We havn't the slightest doubt that this is true. The Plymouth Church people and their pastor are almost in the position of the members of a conspiracy to whom their leader said: "We must all hang together, or assuredly we shall hang separately." If Beecher be found "guilty," there are about five hundred more who may dread the same thing happening to them.

Tyrannical.

The Jews excluded bachelors from assemblies of the people, the Spartans from the theatres, the Romans from the witness stand, the early Christians from public functions, and the ancient Germans and Swiss from the privilege of disposing by will of all their property, which reverted to the State.

A Mean Deception.

An adroit thief who abstracted an ostentatiously displayed check for a thousand dollars from the gifts at a Chicago wedding the other day, only to find that the old man's balance in the bank was $4 50, thinks there is no chance for honest industry in that city.

Sarcastic.

The N. O. Republican says:—When a banker's daughter of San Francisco marries, the fond parents rent a wholesale and retail jeweler's store, buy the stock, and exhibit the whole establishment as presents.

A Sign of Improvement.

The Brooklyn Argus says:—Girls' hearts now-a-days get tough early, and the young man who breaks one feels as proud as if he were born to occupy a glass show-case in the Patent Office.

Is not a myth if New Year's candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. In fact, George Haas & Co., No. 20 Kearny street, has fac similes of Santa Claus (in Candy) that are really good enough to eat. His holiday stock of home-made candies and bon-bon boxes cannot be excelled anywhere, as a visit to his store will show. K

The row in New York between the sensational preachers and the actors, in the estimation of the Cincinnati Enquirer, is simply a row between two classes of people who live off the public, but in different ways. SECURE YOUR CHRISTMAS AND NEW-YEAR GIFTS.

NEWARK,

Alameda County.

$300 Per Share and No Assessments.

The Town of Newark, now being laid out in Alameda County, will consist of 4,000 acres, 2,500 acres of which will be divided into 80-acre plats, subdivided into one-acre lots, and 5,000 Town Lots, each 52 feet by 105 feet, besides others for donations to religious and public uses, a public Park of 50 acres, warehouses, hotels, dwelling houses, etc., for sale. To provide funds for this enterprise, and to carry out the project at once, there will be offered for sale 2,500 shares at $300 each, which will entitle each shareholder to a one-acre plat and two town lots, and a pro rata interest in all improvements projected by the Directors. The payments will be $100 in January, $100 in March, and $300 in May, 1875, and when two payments have been made, the remainder will be put up at auction to the public, and all premiums will be divided among the shareholders, and it is believed will amount to sufficient to cover the last payment. It is thought by this co-operation that every share will double in value in six months, as the land is put in at $125 per acre, which is a very low price for so large a piece of land so near San Francisco.

Persons of small means will note that they can here get a country homestead complete for $1,000, and an interest in a live country location, with easy, cheap communication with San Francisco. Estimates show that bungalow houses can be erected, containing parlor, two bedrooms, closets, kitchen, etc., at a cost not to exceed $1,000 each, and as a sale of the one-acre plat or the two town lots will probably cover the cost of the land, it is easily seen how any person can have a cheap country home, or pleasant Summer residence, at no great outlay. The climate is equal to anything in America, and its benefits cannot but recommend it to invalids and pleasure-seekers. The distance to the Warm Sulphur Springs is only six miles. The soil is unsurpassed in fertility, its products not to be excelled, and water is abundant for every purpose.

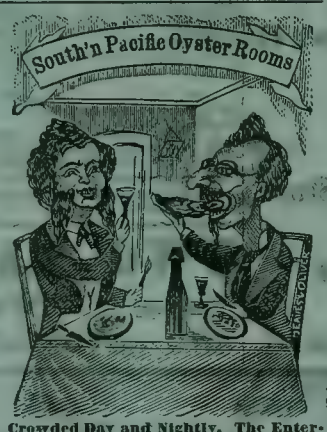
No similar enterprize can compete with this either in cheapness or location, and being entirely on the co-operative plan, fair alike to all, must benefit this community and all outsiders.



For certificates of climate, productions, etc., maps of the property, and any information relative to this enterprise, apply at the office of the Association.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"The Enchantress," as now played at this theatre, is so full of variety that the interest of the audience is not allowed to flag for an instant. The grand amazon march and ballet under the young, pretty and artistic Miss Amy Bennett, the fine singing of Walter Campbell, the dramatic basso par excellence, the beauty and decided talent of Miss Ada Hope, the classical statues by Messrs. Austin and Johnson, the splendid fun furnished by Miss Sydney Cowell and George Giddens, all these are the subject of general conversation, and the consequence is that "The Enchantress" has cast a spell over the people of San Francisco that will last all this year and still remain in 1875. There will be a matinee on New Year's Day.

California Theatre.

San Francisco did honor to itself last night by crowding this theatre. The management did their work magnificently; "Hamlet" was mounted as it never was before in this city, and played throughout in excellent style. The attention paid to the play by the audience, proved that it was largely composed of those who had studied the play, and came to take notes. They applauded in the right places. Every scene was new and appropriate, and each one received its meed of applause. John McCullough played Hamlet much as he did the last time, with the exceptions that he has toned down his reading of "What a rogue and peasant slave am I," etc., manages the interview with the Ghost more impressively, strengthens the scene in his mother's room, and introduces some new business in the final scene of the play. All these changes add additional beauty to what was before, a natural, earnest, scholarly impersonation. The only objection we can find to any reading is this: Mr. McCullough lays too much stress on the speech commencing "I have heard that guilty creatures sitting at a play." He delivers it in an excited manner instead of reflectingly and thoughtfully. The introduction "About my brains. Humph!" shows Hamlet to be studying, not declaiming. He has the plan all formed. Declamation may be left for the rhyming tag which closes the act. The cast was an excellent one. It may be seen in full on our first page. Miss Bella Pateman gave a very pleasing impersonation of Ophelia and did some excellent acting in the mad scene. Barton Hill was deeply impressive as the Ghost, and while he kept to the monotone in which ghosts are popularly supposed to speak, gave due emphasis to the lines. Henry Edwards performed the role of Claudius, King of Denmark, splendidly and delivered the beautiful speech about prayer most effectively. Mrs. Sophie Edwin has played the Queen so many times that she may by this time be said to have thoroughly mastered the part. She was particularly good last night. T. W. Keene as the high spirited Laertes did some good acting, W. M. Leman gave a thoroughly intelligent and dignified rendition of the character of Polonius, Nelson Decker was a pleasant, natural Horatio, but may be a little more free in his acting and yet not offend. The First Grave Digger and Second Grave Digger were acted with much artistic skill and natural humor by Robert Pateman and W. Barry, John Wilson did some good declamation in the character of the Player King, and Miss Carrie Wyatt was satisfactory as the Player Queen. Hamlet can be retained on the stage for only this week, the last of the engagement of John McCullough. There will be a matinee on New Year's Day.

Opera House.

The attendance at this temple of Momus continues [illegible] Emerson's sketch entitled "Muldoon the Solid Man," is one of the best bits of character acting ever seen on the stage. Billy Arlington in "Woman Suffrage" is wonderfully amusing, the act entitled "Turn Him Out," is full of fun and Ben Cotton's trouble with the parrot causes screams of laughter. Ernest Linden has reappeared and sings burlesque ballads, "The Three Doves" is having a successful run and "Troubles in a Law Office" ends one of the best bills of the season.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

The new programme presented last night proved very popular. Arlequin, the Mexican pony, presented by Signor Chiarini, is a marvel of grace, beauty and intelligence, and the dwarf pony Mosca, presented by M. A. Herbert, the clown, is a perfect incarnation of mischief and fun. Messrs. Alleco and Gonzales won applause for their act entitled "The Two Nondescripts," Theodoro Cuba electrified the spectators by his wonderful feats on horseback and Hamakari Sakaikichi created a decided sensation with his act entitled "The Swinging Bambo." Frank Clifton's unequalled bar act was warmly applauded and Senorita Belen Cuba appeared to great advantage in her bare back act and was very handsomely dressed. Garibaldi the Chilian horse was greeted as an old favorite and performed more tricks than ever. "The Battle of the Dons" with which the evening's entertainment terminated, is a very lively and exciting scene which was much enjoyed by all present. The programme is much stronger than that presented last week. There will be a matinee to-morrow and another on New Year's Day.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

After a new and original first part, and an interlude of songs, acts and dances, the musical extravaganza of "The Prince of the Blue Isles" is performed, and is nightly received with much applause. It is well mounted and well played and a large corps de ballet is introduced.

Woodward's Gardens.

Another novelty has been engaged, Mons. Joseph, the Man of Iron Nerve, who fires a 600 Pound Cannon from his shoulders, appear with the Variety Troupe, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Astonishing.

It is really astonishing, the low prices at which Zacharias, the jeweler, sells his goods. Any one passing along Kearny street, near Sacramento, will be attracted by the magnificent display. M

The Winter Styles.

All the latest Winter styles of hat have been received and are now on view at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street. The variety is very large, and the prices charged at this well-known establishment are very reasonable. E

DEATH OF THE FIRST-BORN.

Fold up the richly broidered dress,
Lay by the precious, tiny shoe,
The white-plumed hat, the flaxen tress,
The little crimson stocking, too,
A mother's heart with grief is thrilled,
For death the wearer's pulse has stilled.

The sky-blue eyes are curtained in
With lids that seem so strangely dead,
While o'er the breast, so free from sin,
The dimpled hands are gently spread.
The merry prattling voice is hushed,
And fondest earthly hopes are crushed.

Away has flown the nestling dove,
And lone, heart-smitten Rachel weeps,
The babe, whose fair face shines above,
Though in the tomb its body sleeps;
The rosewood crib is vacant now—
Alas! she must submit—but how?

Her lamp of Hope seems dimly lit,
No breath of dewy blossom fair
The windows of her heart admit;
No sparkling sunshine enters there—
Life now a broad Sahara seems—
No blessing in the future gleams.

Why thus lament in sadness lone?
Why let those tears of anguish fall?
Why grieve that one so young has flown?
Why back to life the loved one call?
A life at best with ill so fraught,
That three-score years are counted naught.

Look up, look up; the jasper walls
Are nearer now than e'er before;
With beckoning hand your loved one calls,
For peace stands waiting there; come o'er,
And gain the joy, and song and rest
Within the mansions of the blest.

If You Want a Piano, Buy at Headquarters, and don't be fooled into buying advertised worthless trash. Buy an ANTISELL PIANO-FORTE, and you have the best Piano made, and indorsed by hundreds of our leading artists and musicians throughout California. We sell at manufacturers' prices, and having a large capital and business are enabled to undersell agents who are only middlemen. Agents have to pay high prices to cover their long credits, and usually make the enormous profits of from $100 to $500. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. We have just received from our factory a fine assortment that we offer at a small advance, either for cash or instalments, instead of renting. They are overstrung bass Agraffes, French action, etc., possessing every improvement recognized by people of cultivated musical taste, and the grand result is that for power, sweetness, brilliancy, and singing quality of tone, evenness throughout the entire scale, delicacy and elasticity of touch, strength, durability, beauty and finish, the ANTISELL PIANO stands unequalled.
N. B. We sold our miscellaneous stock at auction, which consisted of Steinway & Son, Chickering, and Decker Brothers, as it don't pay to keep those makes, we find the demand so limited.

IF ANY MAN CAN
JOHN BOLLMAN
Can, and Does, Sell, in spite of a legion of long tailed Celestials and their white friends, PURE HAVANA CIGARS FOR FIVE CENTS APIECE, or THIRTY DOLLARS PER THOUSAND. They are called
Los Brillantes,
And, judging by the daily increasing demand for them, they will in time outsell any other brands of cigars. Competition, of course, will do all it can to retard and stop their sale, and therefore we would earnestly request the generous public to see for itself and first give them a fair trial, ere condemning them. A meritorious article may be cheap as well, and our maxim has been and always will be, to sell a first-rate article at the lowest PRICE POSSIBLE. These cigars as well as our celebrated RUSSIAN CIGARITOS are sold in all the principal cigar stores in this city and adjoining towns, or the factory, 409 WASHINGTON STREET, CORNER BATTERY.

Look for above trade mark, when you buy and beware of imitations.
N. B. For a smoker, as a holiday gift, you could hardly select anything more suitable and acceptable than our CIGARS and RUSSIAN CIGARITOS, especially our LA MOSCOVITAS manufactured of Turkish tobacco worth $5 per pound. The finest Cigaritos in Market, sold at the factory for $20 per thousand. d4

Their Waltzing Ways.

A Put-in-Bay correspondent of the Cincinnati Times, furnishes the following lively description of the styles in which girls from different States and localities waltz, as shown by the hops at that pleasant resort: "People may say that a waltz is a waltz, but it is a mistake, as much as to say that a dog is a dog, and there are waltzes and waltzes. With one person it is the poetry of motion; with another it is about as awkward a performance as putting yourself upon a level and going through the motion of running upstairs would be. A Kentucky girl is a natural waltzer, and she does it with a charming chic and abandon. An Ohio girl's waltzing is easy, graceful, and "melodious." If she happens to come from Cincinnati, and across the Rhine, she swings dreamily round and round in the endless "Dutch waltz." If she comes from Chicago, she throws her hair back, jumps up and cracks her heels together, and carries off her astonished partner as though a simoon had struck him, and knocks over all intervening obstacles in her mad career around the room. If she is from Indiana, she creeps closely and timidly up to her partner, as though she would like to get into his vest pocket, and melt away with ecstacy as the witching strains of the "Blue Danube" sweep through the hall. If she is from Missouri, she crooks her body in the middle like a door hinge, takes her partner by the shoulders, and makes him miserable in trying to hop around her without treading on her No 9 shoes. If she comes from Michigan, she astonishes her partner by now and then working in a touch of the double shuffle, or a bit of pigeon-wing, with the waltz step; and if she comes from Arkansas, she throws both arms around his neck, rolls up her eyes as she floats away, and is heard to murmur, "Oh, hug me, John."

Seance in "Detroit Free Press" Office.

"Did you hear dat?" whispered Johnson as there came a rap on the table. "De speerit ob Mr. Crockett am present. Would you like to spoke to him?" The reporter answered in the affirmative, and after a little thought he asked: "Is that really you, Dave?" There came two raps on the table, and Johnson nodded his head. "Is it true, Mr. Crockett, that you used to make one shirt last you three years?" Awful silence followed—silence that could have been cut into chunks with a knife and chopped up like hash. Mr. Johnson rolled his eyes up as if in agony, but he couldn't fetch a rap. "De speerit am offended," he whispered; "spoke suthin else." "Mr. Crockett," continued the reporter, "haven't you always felt a little ashamed that story of yours about capturing a panther by climbing a tree and spitting tobacco juice in his eyes?" There was one loud rap, signifying that the spirit thought the story was all right. "Mr. Crockett," said the reporter, "are you aware that there has been a great change in this world since you left it?" Two raps. "Yes, a wonderful change. There's hundreds of men nowadays who can tell two lies to your one, and they don't feel puffed up about it, either. How about that story of your shaking eleven bears out of one tree?" Silence again. Mr. Johnson rolled his eyes, breathed hard, and twisted his face into all sorts of shapes, but Dave's spirit wouldn't answer. "Yes, Mr. Crockett," continued the reporter, "if you were alive now and should be found loafing around Detroit with your old red shirt and moccasins on, you'd be hauled up for a vag in less than five minutes, and the Judge would make it sixty, sure." Continued silence prevailed.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

CARSON EXCITEMENTS.

Carson, although a quiet sagebrush town, has been agitated by three excitements lately—the murderer Murphy; and the probabilities of his being hung or not being hung, the coming meeting of the Nevada Legislature, and the rich developments of the North Cason Silver Mine have all agitated her population. All Carson is swearing by the North Carson; and the great bonanza of the Consolidated Virginia has affected them only to a degree of strengthening them in the belief that, in opening the North Carson mine, they have struck upon the continuation of the Comstock lode, so long looked for in that vicinity, and have found a mine as rich as any on that remarkable mineral ledge. They claim "that by actual survey the Comstock ledge, as developed in the great bonanza, runs North 58° East, which bearing brings its Southern extension, running through the American Flat range, directly in a line with the rich outcropping ranges of the North Carson mine. The developments on American Flat, the north part of which is nearly in line also, show that the direction of the Consolidated Virginia is continued and that the vein not only extends further than has been supposed, but that the direction is as above indicated. Continuing still further on, and the North Carson is directly in the line as established by the foregoing and the recent developments made at this point. The assays of the ore there struck, and its general quality, sustain this theory. It is also traceable further on down into the Sierras, as future developments will show. The theory of parallel formations will probably be found to be the correct one, and hence it is, that the sections about Lower Gold Hill are in ore, and not because the Comstock lode lies north and south. There are outcroppings also which indicate this, as also other parallels still further to the south. But that the great Comstock lode lies as indicated by the 1500-foot level of Consolidated Virginia, is proved, not only from the formation there, but by all the indications from there to the North Carson and these outcroppings beyond." The geological formations encountered in the tunnel and in the ledge struck are exactly the same. That the mine is one of exceedingly rich promise, the following published certificate from the principal assayer of the United States mint will testify to:

THE MINT OF THE UNITED STATES, AT CARSON, NEV.
ASSAYER'S OFFICE, October 9th, 1874.

L. D. Brown, Esq., President of the North Carson Mine—Sir:—I hereby certify that I have assayed your ore from the surface to a depth of one hundred and four (104) feet, and from the assays I pronounce it the best new mine of which I have any knowledge. My assays at the surface gave a result of about $15; average, at thirty feet, about from $40 to $60; and, from at least thirty samples of all kinds, I think the one hundred and four feet tunnel assays from $400 to $735 per ton, with a ledge well defined of over ten feet. I have made, in all, upwards of one hundred assays, many of them from very large samples, and I pronounce the results better than anything I have had personal knowledge of anywhere.

Respectfully, WIRT HOPKINS,
Assayer U. S. Mint.

The Carson people have gone to work in a sensible manner in opening this mine. Knowing they had a rich claim, they sold just stock enough (which they made unassessable, as a most pleasant condition of the sale), to pay the expenses of opening the mine, and hold the rest in hand awaiting developments. The Carsonites are probably over sanguine in claiming to have a mine as good as any on the Comstock lode, but that they have struck a rich mine in the North Carson there can be but little doubt.

Chinese Maxims.

Let every one sweep the snow from his own door, and not busy himself about the frost on his neighbor's tiles.

Great wealth comes by destiny; moderate wealth by industry.

The ripest fruit will not fall into your mouth.

The pleasure of doing good is the only one that does not wear out.

Dig a well before you are thirsty.

Water does not remain in the mountains, nor vengeance in great minds.

Very Severe.

Sarah Bernhardt, the Paris actress, is as "thin as a ghost." This gives point to the remark of the cleaner of the theatre where she plays, who, upon being told that a flea had been found in Mlle. Bernhardt's dressing-room, said: "Poor beast, he must have been almost starved to death!"

Santa Claus

Is not a myth if New Year's candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. In fact, George Haas & Co., No. 20 Kearny street, has facsimiles of Santa Claus (in Candy) that are really good enough to eat. His holiday stock of home-made candies and bon-bon boxes cannot be excelled anywhere, as a visit to his store will show. K

Holiday Confectionery.

A fine assortment of holiday candies and new styles of Christmas tree trimmings, fancy boxes, costume bon-bons, cornucopias, sugar fruits and fancy articles just received at J. Vogeley & Brothers, late of the Mechanics' Fair of 1874, 26 Second street, near Grand Hotel.

PEACE IS DECLARED in all families who buy their furniture and bedding of J. A. Shaber & Co., 707 Market street, near Third, because they get better goods for the same price than any other dealers.

In the pictur alphabet the zebry is all ways last, but if I made it Ide have him first cos he is nicer than a apple or a ape.

Once I was to a show were they had wile animals. It was a bout to begin, but I and some other boys was outside the tent, tryin peep under, and I herd the man say Jim, have you waked up the lion? and another man said he had. And have you curried the Royal Bengol tiger? The other man said he had done that too. Then, Jim, the hed shoman said, jus rub up the dedly cobry a bit, and wen the frocious gorilly gits done paintin them zebrys you help him into his skin. The wile zebry is said to be the swiftest of all animals, but I dont see how any boddy coudl mesure of the groun and time 'em. Ide back Apology agin the best zebry on the turf, for its jus my blief that speed issent wot they runs to. Ide ast my sister's young man only he dont come to our house no more, cos wen he was here last week he said he dident like dogs, and my sister she said any boddy wich dident like dogs wasent nice, thats wot they was. Then he said he new wot made her like 'em, and that was cos Mister Chumly Perkins was so good as to wok home with her from church. Wen he said that you never see such a angry girl. She said if you dare to tok that way about my friends you better not, and went out of the room. Then he laughft a little, and wissled a little, and stroked the cat a bit, and said was I gittin on with my animils, and got up to look at a pictur, and tuched the piano and ast if uncle Ned thot it was Nany Sahib, and walked out in the yard, and was intressid in comparing the ever greens along the wok, wich are all alike.

Then my sister she come back in the room, and went to the windo, and stud their all the wile he was in site, a-peepin threw the curtin. Then wen I said I wonderd if zebries was striped a like on both sides dident she jus come and give me a jolly good wiggin! But it was fun to see her a cryin insted of me.

We take the following from the Boston Globe:—Lord Dufferin thinks that a Chicago paper displayed audacity in publishing a bogus interview with him. Chicago, your lordship, is a city in which the papers are capable of publishing a bogus interview with the Angel Gabriel, and then sending him a marked copy of the paper.

CO-OPERATION

....OF....

Men, Capital and Enterprise.

SECURE YOUR CHRISTMAS AND NEW-YEAR GIFTS.

NEWARK,

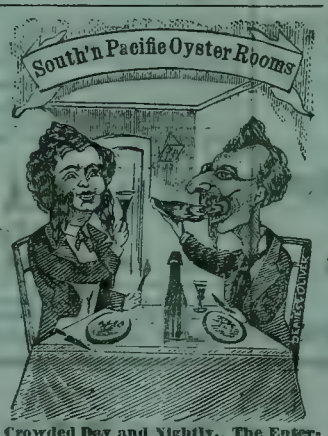
Alameda County.

$300 Per Share and No Assessments.

The Town of Newark, now being laid out in Alameda County, will consist of 4,000 acres, 2,500 acres of which will be divided into 80-acre plats, subdivided into one-acre lots, and 5,000 Town Lots, each 52 feet by 105 feet, besides others for donations to religious and public uses, a public Park of 50 acres, warehouses, hotels, dwelling houses, etc., for sale. To provide funds for this enterprise, and carry out the project at once, there will be offered for sale 2,500 shares at $300 each, which will entitle each shareholder to a one-acre plat and two town lots, and a pro rata interest in all improvements projected by the Directors. The payments will be $100 in January, $100 in March, and $100 in May, 1875, and when two payments have been made, the remainder will be put up at auction to the public, and all premiums will be divided among the shareholders, and it is believed will amount to sufficient to cover the last payment. It is thought by this co-operation that every share will double in value in six months, as the land is put in at $125 per acre, which is a very low price for so large a piece of land so near San Francisco.

Persons of small means will note that they can here get a country homestead complete for $1,000, and an interest in a live country location, with easy, cheap communication with San Francisco. Estimates show that bungalow houses can be erected, containing parlor, two bedrooms, closets, kitchen, etc., at a cost not to exceed $1,000 each, and as a sale of the one-acre plat or the two town lots will probably cover the cost of the land, it is easily seen how any person can have a cheap country home, or pleasant Summer residence, at no great outlay. The climate is equal to anything in America, and its benefits cannot but recommend it to invalids and pleasure-seekers. The distance to the Warm Sulphur Springs is only six miles. The soil is unsurpassed in fertility, its products not to be excelled, and water is abundant for every purpose.

No similar enterprize can compete with this either in cheapness or location, and being entirely on the co-operative plan, fair alike to all, must benefit this community and all outsiders.



For certificates of climate, productions, etc., maps of the property, and any information relative to this enterprise, apply at the office of the Association.

California Theatre.

"Hamlet" was played to another large audience last night, and was received with still more applause. The lights where better arranged and the scene changers more au fait in their duties. It must be a matter of regret to all that this splendidly rendered and brilliantly bound edition of Shakespeare's greatest play can be enjoyed by the public only during the present week. It will be played at the matinee on New Year's Day.

Opera House.

The pleasing monotony of crowded houses is still the order of the day, or rather of the night. The bill for this week was strong as it has been for the past six weeks, it could scarcely be stronger. A good first part of song and joke, then the act "Deaf in a Horn" by Rice and Rhoades, followed by Arlington's famous speech on "Woman's Suffrage," "Turn Him Out" in which Cotton is on his muscle, and "Troubles in a Law Office," would form a splendid bill in themselves, even were not "The Three Doves" and "Muldoon the Solid Man" repeated; these two strong hits having wisely been retained on the bill.

Maguire's New Theatre.

There have been more showy and gaudy scenes presented on the San Francisco stage, but the transformation scene of "The Enchantress," now being played at this house, surpasses them all in the artistic elegance and beautiful elaboration of detail. The comic element is sufficiently prominent in the play to relieve it of all heaviness, the variety business is attractive and new, and the singing by Miss Ada Hope, Walter Campbell and the excellent chorus is perfectly delightful. "The Enchantress" is up for an extended run. It will be played at the matinee on New Year's Day.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

In brilliance and variety, the programme for the present week eclipses that performed last week. The ponies, which form quite a feature in the bill, are the pets of all. Garibaldi, the famous trick steed, is as handsome and talented as ever. Romeo Sebastian delights all by his graceful poses on horseback, and Theodore and Belen Cuba are the wonder and admiration of all who behold them. The Japanese performers are the best who ever visited this city, and the entertainment, as a whole, is unrivalled in the records of the ring. There will be a matinee today.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

"The Prince of the Blue Isles" is a brilliant success at this house and is received nightly with thunders of applause. Johnny Tuers, Frank Mortimore and all the ladies of the company are included in the cast.

Woodward's Gardens.

Another novelty has been engaged, Mons. Joseph, the Man of Iron Nerve, who fires a 600 Pound Cannon from his shoulders, appear with the Variety Troupe, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

City Gardens.

A New Year's Eve Masquerade and Fancy Dress Ball, will be given in the Pavilion, at the City Gardens, on the evening of December 31st. Good music will be provided.

How to Dress Well.

Over two-thirds of the best dressed gentlemen in this city (those who dress in style we mean) would say, if asked the question where they had their clothes made, that they went to John Bull's, No. 100 Third street, and would also advise you and your friends to go there if you want a perfect-fitting suit made in the latest style, from either imported or domestic goods, at the lowest price compatible with a good garment. S.

Great Bargains in Clothing.

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are as superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. The Winter Styles.

All the latest Winter styles of hat have been received and are now on view at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street. The variety is very large, and the prices charged at this well-known establishment are very reasonable. R

The Antelope Oyster House.

NAMIE'S WISH.

I'd like to be a little bird,
Swinging on a tree,
With leaves and blossoms for my home,
Sweet as sweet can be.
I'd like to be a bobolink,
Or else a pretty dove;
But, mamma, dear, I'd rather be
Your "precious little love."

I'd like to be a butterfly,
Just a little while,
With great big wings of black and gold—
How I would make you smile!
I'd flutter straight into your room,
And fly and flash and twirl;
But, mamma, dear, I'd rather be
Your "darling little girl."

I'd like to be a lovely rose,
Blooming but for you;
My dainty dress of satin pink
Sparkling with the dew;
I'd like to be a lily-bell,
Or else a violet;
But, mamma, dear, I'd rather be
Your "sweetest little pet."

A car is now in use on one of the French railroads to which the Bessemer steamer system has been applied. The car is hung on elastic springs, and the motion whilst traveling is said to be almost imperceptible.

The Louisville Courier-Journal has just received a hard hit from the Chicago Inter-Ocean, which never sees one of the jokes of the Louisville sheet without being reminded of George D. Prentice—reminded that he is dead.

Parisian toys for the New Year always bear some relation to current events of the season. This season, the most popular is Girafle-Girofla, a doll whose costume can be changed from blue to pink in a second, in imitation of M. Lecocq's heroine.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well-known Printing House was established by the present proprietor in 1850 and has been in successful operation ever since 8-cj

Dull Work.

It is said that Rufus Choate, the great lawyer, was once in New Hampshire making a plea, when a boy, the son of a farmer, resolved to leave the plow and become a lawyer like Rufus Choate. He accordingly went to Boston, called on Mr. Choate, and said to him, "I heard your plea up in town, and I have a desire to become a lawyer like you. Will you teach me how?"

"As well as I can," said the lawyer. "Come in and sit down."

Taking down a copy of Blackstone, he said, "Read this until I come back, and I will see how you get on."

The poor boy began. An hour passed. His back ached, his head and legs ached. He knew not how to study. Every moment became a torture. He wanted air. Another hour passed, and Mr. Choate came and asked, "How do you get on?"

"Get on! Why, do you have to read such stuff as this?"

"Yes."

"How much of it?"

"All there is on these shelves, and more," looking about the great library.

"How long will it take?"

"Well, it has taken me more than twenty-five years."

"How much do you get?"

"My board and clothes."

"Is that all?"

"Well, that is about all that I have gained as yet."

"Then" said the boy, "I will go back to plowing. The work is not near as hard, and it pays better."

The Power of Music.

An eminent French physician, says Max Adeler, claims to have discovered that fiddling will cure nervousness, and that a trumpet solo will cure catalepsy. I have not tested the accuracy of these statements, but I know a man who is learning to play the accordeon who has so completely cured everybody in the neighborhood of homesickness that they are perfectly willing to remain away from home for any length of time while the accordeon fiend is practising. He is also curing the house rents in the vicinity by driving them down. I have also known singing to relieve acute attacks of rheumatism. Old Jones, who used to live near me, was disturbed one night by a glee club which was serenading his daughter. He suffered a great deal from rheumatism, but he managed to hobble to the front window with his gun, and while he was leaning out to take aim at the man who sung bass, he lost his balance and tumbled out on the pavement. He never suffered again from rheumatism. He was buried on the following Sunday.

Common Sense.

Common sense is an element in which many persons are sadly wanting. Common sense implies strong perception, correct reason, mental capacity, and good understanding. It is not to be acquired entirely by education; it is a sort of instinct. It may be polished and made more acute by experience. There is a great deal of sound philosophy in a little common sense sometimes, and the exercise of it upon certain occasions would save many men from much subsequent humiliation.

Interesting to the Alta.

It is said that the brain of an idiot contains about one per cent. of phosphoric matter, that of persons of sound intellect 2½ per cent., while that of the maniac 3½ per cent. If this be so, it would seem that in a maniac the brain appropriates an undue proportion of phosphoric matter from the rest of the system, whereby its functions are materially impaired.

A Pious Young Man.

The following advertisement appeared in a recent London paper: "To Christians—A pious young man never having the blessing of the use of his limbs, through being set on wet grass in childhood, earnestly solicits forty-two postage stamps, in return for which he will send, free, six best nickel silver tea-spoons to any part of London."

How's This?

The New York Dispatch says:

IF ANY MAN CAN
JOHN BOLLMAN
Can, and Does, Sell, in spite of a legion of long-tailed Celestials and their white friends, PURE HAVANA CIGARS FOR FIVE CENTS APIECE, or THIRTY DOLLARS PER THOUSAND. They are called
Los Brilliantes,
And, judging by the daily increasing demand for them, they will in time outsell any other brands of cigars. Competition, of course, will do all it can to retard and stop their sale, and therefore we would earnestly request the generous public to see for itself and first give them a fair trial, ere condemning them. A meritorious article may be cheap as well, and our maxim has been and always will be, to sell a first-rate article at the lowest PRICE POSSIBLE. Those cigars as well as our celebrated RUSSIAN CIGARITOS are sold in all the principal cigar stores in this city and adjoining towns, or the factory, 409 WASHINGTON STREET, CORNER BATTERY.

Look for above trade mark, when you buy and beware of imitations.

Chips.

Getting low—Getting "high."

The moon appears to be the most unsteady of all celestial luminaries. She is continually shifting her quarters.

The prayer of an office-seeker—"O that I were an event, that I might take place!"

The lady whose peace of mind was broken, intends to have it repaired.

The way to keep a fire real hot is to keep it thoroughly coaled.

Head of the Firm—"Want a holiday! Why you've just been at home ill for a month."

A writer, dwelling upon the importance of small things, says that he always takes note even of a straw—especially if there's a sherry cobbler at the end of it.

An Iowa woman sent her boy back to school to be whipped, assuring the teacher that she was "a believer in capital punishment."

Take away my first letter, take away my second letter, take away all my letters, and I am always the same. It is the mail-carrier.

"Busy" Men.

The John Bull, one of the oldest London papers, says:

If a man apologizes for his unpunctuality by saying "he was so busy," be sure he was leaning over the rails in the park. People who have anything really to do are far too well aware of the value of time to waste their own or that of those with whom they come in contact. It is not they who make an appointment with a busy man at eleven in the morning and saunter in, looking blissfully unaware of their unpunctuality at half-past twelve. No; the man who does this has generally been at his wits' end to kill time all the morning; but he preferred a cigar, or a visit to his stable, and his own pleasure was of far more consequence than a busy man's time; or else he fancied being late made him of some importance.

Rough on a Clerical Clown.

Once, so goes the story, Rev. Mr. Talmage entered an Episcopal church in Philadelphia during the communion, and was proceeding up the middle aisle, when the sexton stopped him, saying: "Sir, the communion service is being observed." I see that it is, replied Mr. Talmage, starting on. "But, sir," said the sexton, stepping in front of him, "none but communicants are allowed in this aisle." "Very well," said the clergyman, again starting up the aisle. "Sir," said the sexton, seizing him by the collar, and pointing across the church, "the unconverted sit over yonder."

An Admonition.

The following address is by a Detroit judge: "If it wasn't for your children I'd put you where coach-dogs couldn't bite you. I'm going to let you go this time for their sakes but look out for me in the future. If that physiognomy ever peeps over this desk again, you'll think I'm a pile-driver and you a mouse. Trot out of here, and don't tarry to see what becomes of the rest."

A Good Idea.

A French manager has adopted an excellent plan in responding to encores. No piece is repeated until the entire programme is given, when, after those who wish to retire have left the auditorium, the numbers redemanded are given a second time.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

George D. Prentice and Mike Walsh.

Prentice, notwithstanding his tumultuous career, his violent controversies, and bitter quarrels, was generous and forgiving, if not amiable. Shamefully and persistently slandered—he admitted that he had faults enough to render malignant invention superfluous—he was ever ready to meet his enemies halfway in reconciliation, and he rarely remembered injuries where there was any disposition toward atonement.

The noted Mike Walsh and himself had had fierce newspaper bouts, but had never seen each other till they met one day in Washington.

Walsh, eyeing him, approached and said, "You are George D. Prentice, I believe."

The Louisville editor responding in the affirmative, the Subterranean scribe continued, "You've skinned me like an eel, Prentice; but you did it so well that I don't particularly object to it. You're a man of genius and a good fellow, and I want to say that I admire and like you."

The Manhattan agrarian offered his hand, and the biographer of Clay cordially shook it, with the remark "I think we'll have to toss up, Walsh, to determine which of us is the eel."

A Darwinian.

A disciple of Darwin was brought before a justice on a charge of drunkenness. In defense, he said: "Your worship, I am a Darwinian, and I have, I think, discovered the origin of my unfortunate tendency. One of my remotest grandfathers was an anthropoid of a curious turn of mind. One morning, about 4,491,633 B. C., he was looking over his store of cocoa-nuts, when he picked up one for his breakfast in which the milk had fermented. He drank the liquor, and got gloriously drunk, and ever after he always kept his cocoa-nuts until fermentation took place. Judge, then, whether a tendency handed down through innumerable ancestors should not be taken in my defense." Casting a sarcastic look at the prisoner, the Justice said: "I am sorry that the peculiar arrangement of the atoms of star-dust resulted in giving me a disposition to sentence you to pay a fine of five dollars and costs."

A Mystery.

Out in Pennsylvania last Sunday night, the Rev. Mr. K. read very impressively this text: "How camest thou hither not having on the wedding garment?" A newly married couple sat far back in the church. The groom looked astonished, nonplussed. "I told you, Sallie," audibly whispered the groom, "that I ought to a wore my weddin' suit 'stead o' this second-hand slop-shop 'un. Now that old cook's 'mad about it, but how in the name o' speckled eel's feet could he a' knowed that we was lately married?"

An Irish Compliment.

A lady of great beauty and attraction, who was an ardent admirer of Ireland, once crowned her praises of it at a party by saying, "I think I was meant for an Irishwoman." "Cross the Channel, madam," remarked Samuel Lover, the novelist, who happened to be present; "millions will say you were meant for an Irishman."

A Sad State of Things.

Dubuque is the home of a girl so beautiful that her life is rendered perfectly miserable by the persecutions she is subjected to, caused by the fact that no man, young or old, can see her without becoming her half-crazed slave.

Correct.

A good rule is to buy nothing you don't want, and nothing you can't pay for. No man who always lived up to this principle ever died in the poor house.

Santa Claus

Is not a myth if New Year's candies of every kind, shape and color (both home-made and imported), is any proof of the existence of the time-honored deity, of presents for little ones. In fact, George Haas & Co., No. 20 Kearny street, has fac similes of Santa Claus (in Candy) that are really good enough to eat. His holiday stock of home-made candies and bon-bon boxes cannot be excelled anywhere, as a visit to his store will show. K

Master Johnny on the Hippo.

Their hole name is hippopopotamusses, but hippo is there pet name, like my sister is call Missy, tho she is a grate big girl, but not so big as a hippo. Uncle Ned he says hippo means a horse, but if that is so I think the man that first said it was a fool, cos horse is easier to say, and these animils issent any more like a horse than Mister Briley the butcher's meat block is like a game of crokay.

Hippose is found in Affrica, but wen you have foun one wot can you do? Its like a man wich was a lookin for a other man to give him a good hidin, and wen he come up to him he said my fine feller, Ive foun you now, and the other man he said he had, that was a fack, and wen he said it he pick up a big stick. Then the first man wich spoke said yes, Ive foun you at last, and the other man said he cuddent deny it, and was a rolen up his sleeve. Then the first man wich spoke said did he kno wot street they was in, and the other man he said course I do, you raskil, it is High street. Then the first man wich spoke said o, if you aint lost it was no use me findin you, and he walked a way as fass as he could.

There is two hippose in the Zoo, and a little hippo wich is Guy Fox, but not the Guy Fox wich my father says was the only man wich ever tride to ellivate the counsils of the nation. Uncle Ned he says callin Guy Fox little makes him think of wen he was in Calliforny, cos one day they was a young wale come a shore, and every boddy was goin to the beach to see it, and it was long like a tug bote and thicker than a ephalent, but a young lady wich went with uncle Ned lookt at it and said jest to think of such a tiny creetur havin no mother, mite she take it in her lap if she woud be careful? And every woman wich came to see it said wot a sweet little wale.

Did you ever see the hippose at the Zoo hole open their mouths for biscits? I tel you its fritefle til you git use to it. Wile one is a bein fed the other is off to one side a watchin, and wen it sees the biscit in the other's mouth it winks its eye, and the other shets its mouth and swollers, cos you mite put a hole lofe in their mouths and they wuddent kno it less the other tole 'em, but that way they don't wase no time on bad boys wich makes beleeve.

Wen my sister toks to her dicky bird I spose it thinks like we do about the hippo, wot a horrid grate mouth! But if she knew it thot that I spect she would fine out it was wicked to keep birds in cages, and wud sel it for jus wot any boddy woud giv, but wen it comes to birds I go in for egles, wich wops all the others, and flies roun, and roun, and up, up, up, hooray!

CO-OPERATION

....OF....

Men, Capital and Enterprise.

SECURE YOUR CHRISTMAS AND NEW-YEAR GIFTS.

NEWARK,

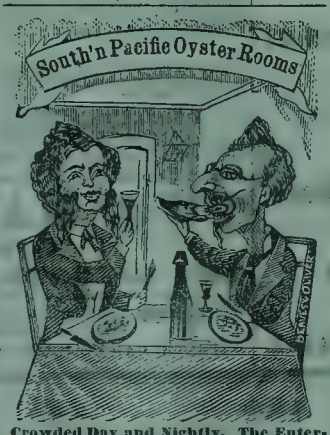
Alameda County.

$300 Per Share and No Assessments.

The Town of Newark, now being laid out in Alameda County, will consist of 4,000 acres, 2,500 acres of which will be divided into 80-acre plats, subdivided into one-acre lots, and 5,000 Town Lots, each 52 feet by 105 feet, besides others for donations to religious and public uses, a public Park of 50 acres, warehouses, hotels, dwelling houses, etc., for sale. To provide funds for this enterprise, and carry out the project at once, there will be offered for sale 2,500 shares at $300 each, which will entitle each shareholder to a one-acre plat and two town lots, and a pro rata interest in all improvements projected by the Directors. The payments will be $100 in January, $100 in March, and $100 in May, 1875, and when two payments have been made, the remainder will be put up at auction to the public, and all premiums will be divided among the shareholders, and it is believed will amount to sufficient to cover the last payment. It is thought by this co-operation that every share will double in value in six months, as the land is put in at $125 per acre, which is a very low price for so large a piece of land so near San Francisco.

Persons of small means will note that they can here get a country homestead complete for $1,000, and an interest in a live country location, with easy, cheap communication with San Francisco. Estimates show that bungalow houses can be erected, containing parlor, two bedrooms, closets, kitchen, etc., at a cost not to exceed $1,000 each, and as a sale of the one-acre plat or the two town lots will probably cover the cost of the land, it is easily seen how any person can have a cheap country home, or pleasant Summer residence, at no great outlay. The climate is equal to anything in America, and its benefits cannot but recommend it to invalids and pleasure-seekers. The distance to the Warm Sulphur Springs is only six miles. The soil is unsurpassed in fertility, its products not to be excelled, and water is abundant for every purpose.

No similar enterprize can compete with this either in cheapness or location, and being entirely on the co-operative plan, fair alike to all, must benefit this community and all outsiders.



For certificates of climate, productions, etc., maps of the property, and any information relative to this enterprise, apply at the office of the Association.

The amusement seekers, who are in town for the holidays, would consider their visit stale, flat and unprofitable did they miss seeing Emerson's Minstrels at this house. Through the remainder of the Winter "Muldoon, the Solid Man," made famous by Billy Emerson, will be sung by firesides in all parts of the State. "The Three Doves" is one of the most laughable acts ever produced. Linden gains much applause for his burlesque ballads, Billy Arlington's Woman Suffrage speech is a great hit, and altogether a better programme for the holidays could not have been chosen. A little cluster of the audience last night, mining kings, brokers, Senators, etc., with their families, represented several million of dollars, and yet they enjoyed themselves.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"The Enchantress" as presented now is a very compact and entertaining play, rich in fine music, vocal and instrumental, and amusing specialties of every imaginable kind. Miss Sydney Cowell and George Giddens are immense favorites and are recalled again and again, Miss Ada Hope is as self-possessed as a veteran on the stage; and her fine fresh voice and attractive physique render her a great favorite. The transformation scene is the most beautiful ever produced in this city. There will be an "Enchantress" matinee on New Year's Day, and another on Saturday. "The Enchantress" will be withdrawn after Sunday night. A new play entitled "The Light-House Cliffs" will be produced on Monday next.

California Theatre.

So great is the public interest in the revival of "Hamlet" at this theatre, with John McCullough in the title role, that the piece might be kept on for an extended run, but, although Mr. McCullough has succeeded in getting released for one week of his Chicago engagement, "Hamlet" will be withdrawn after Saturday, and next week will be devoted to the production of "Macbeth," "Damon," "The Wife," and "Brutus, or the Fall of Tarquin." "Hamlet" will be played at the New Year's matinee.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

The people of San Francisco are fairly revelling in the Winter circus season provided for them by the enterprise of Signor Chiarini. Wilson's Palace Amphitheatre is as warm as a theatre and all can witness the performance in comfort. Theodoro Cuba, Belen Cuba, Kikuda Kunitara, Romeo Sebastian, M. A. Herbert, Dave Long and all the stars will appear to-night in a great programme, which is given in full on our first page. On New Year's Day there will be an extra matinee.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

The sensational fairy extravaganza of "The Prince of the Blue Isles" still continues to draw good houses. It is preceded by a rattling first part and lively interlude. "The Prince of the Blue Isles" contains some very fine music, showy marches and dances, and pretty scenery, and must be witnessed to find out how much in the way of display can be done on a small stage.

Woodward's Gardens.

Another novelty has been engaged, Mons. Joseph, the Man of Iron Nerve, who fires a 600 Pound Cannon from his shoulders, appears with the Variety Troupe, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

City Gardens.

A New Year's Eve Masquerade and Fancy Dress Ball, will be given in the Pavilion, at the City Gardens, on the evening of December 31st. Good music will be provided.

How to Dress Well.

Over two-thirds of the best dressed gentlemen in this city (those who dress in style we mean) would say, if asked the question where they had their clothes made, that they went to John Bull's, No. 109 Third street, and would also advise you and your friends to go there if you want a perfect-fitting suit made in the latest style, from either imported or domestic goods, at the lowest price compatible with a good garment. A BENEDICTION.

BY C. BROOKS.

He held her hand one moment in his own;
Murmured, through parted lips, "God help you, Sweet;"
Left her alone: and in his vacant place
The twilight stole with soft and noiseless feet.

He passed away through dewy garden paths,
Flooded with waves of moonlight, weird and white;
And mystic scent of leaf-veiled lilac bloom,
Wafting its incense to the soul of night.

Between the setting and the rising sun
Adrift her spirit wandered, till the day
Woke the new story of a life begun
Out of the grave of the one that slipped away.

A twilight life, of gentle thought and deed,
Of selfless purpose and reliant prayer;
A spirit moving in the misty light
Of springtide perfume on the evening air.

Standing alone, her life was doubly blest,
By this dead love, and love of sorrow born;
Till tender Death sang all her soul to rest,
And merged spring twilight in the summer morn.

Fashion's Vagaries.

Fans are imported with plain and carved ebony, ivory; and pearl sticks, with and without monograms, and covered with silk and satin, bearing either delicately painted designs or point lace covers.

Velvet and faille bonnets, with soft crowns and shirred crowns and hard crowns; with brims extended and brims depressed; with white tulle strings, and no tie at all, represent a few of the many prevailing styles.

The corsages of evening dresses are made with both high and low necks, to suit the neck and shoulders of the wearers. For young people the sleeves are rarely long, though when made of thin material often reach the elbow, where they end with a ruffle or puff.

For street costumes camel's hair and the imitation cloths have far outstripped other fabrics in popularity; warmth, ample width, and the now desirable rough and shaggy surface, being all found in this material, which is used both with and without the assistance of silk or velvet.

Trains for evening dresses are longer than those of last season, and measure in width from four to four and a quarter yards round. A train, fast taking the place of the puff, is plain behind and fastened into a belt at the waist in a triple or quadruple box plait, this plait being held in position by tapes underneath, from which it spreads fan-fashion into a train.

In reception and evening dresses the tendency to overload in trimming and the introduction of decided colors rather than the delicate tints worn heretofore, is apparent. When not covered with embroideries of beads and spangles, garnitures of flowers are used in great quantities, being literally strewn about in such profusion as almost to crowd each other for places on the corsage and front portion of the skirt.

Literary Notes.

Roberts Brothers will publish to-morrow Edward Everett Hale's new Christmas story, entitled "Our New Crusade." It has been given a very handsome dress.

The first edition of C. C. Coffin's novel, entitled "Caleb Krinkle," published by Lee & Shepard, is running off very rapidly. It promises to be the most popular of "Carleton's" writings.

The first editions of Mrs. Mary Clemmer Ames' striking novel, "His Two Wives," and George Cary Eggleston's lively book, "A Rebel's Recollections," published by Hurd & Houghton, were exhausted within forty-eight hours after publication.

The January Lippincott contains an interesting sketch by Earl Marble, entitled "On the Via San Basilio," which gives some incidents in the unhappy career of the Russian artist, Brullof. A well-known Boston artist, George L. Brown, also figures in the paper.

The heliotype books published by James R. Osgood & Company make exquisite holiday gifts, and for the young folks Miss Larcom's "Childhood Songs" is not surpassed by any of the publications of the season. Whoever buys any of these volumes, or Hoppin's "On the Nile," makes no mistake.

The New York Daily Graphic has issued an extra Christmas number, printed on superfine tinted paper, with a handsome cover printed in gold and colors, and filled with numerous large engravings, beautifully executed, and a goodly variety of reading matter suited to the season.

Astonishing.

It is really astonishing, the low prices at which Zacharias, the jeweler, sells his goods. Any one passing along Kearny street, near Sacramento, will be attracted by the magnificent display. N

The original "Swain's Bakery" is now established in their magnificent new place at 213 Sutter street near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

CARSON EXCITEMENTS.

Carson, although a quiet sagebrush town, has been agitated by three excitements lately—the murderer Murphy, and the probabilities of his being hung or not being hung, the coming meeting of the Nevada Legislature, and the rich developments of the North Carson Silver Mine have all agitated her population. All Carson is swearing by the North Carson; and the great bonanza of the Consolidated Virginia has affected them only to a degree of strengthening them in the belief that, in opening the North Carson mine, they have struck upon the continuation of the Comstock lode, so long looked for in that vicinity, and have found a mine as rich as any on that remarkable mineral ledge. They claim "that by actual survey the Comstock ledge, as developed in the great bonanza, runs North 58° East, which bearing brings its Southern extension, running through the American Flat range, directly in a line with the rich outcropping ranges of the North Carson mine. The developments on American Flat, the north part of which is nearly in line also, show that the direction of the Consolidated Virginia is continued and that the vein not only extends further than has been supposed, but that the direction is as above indicated. Continuing still further on, and the North Carson is directly in the line as established by the foregoing and the recent developments made at this point. The assays of the ore there struck, and its general quality, sustain this theory. It is also traceable further on down into the Sierras, as future developments will show. The theory of parallel formations will probably be found to be the correct one, and hence it is, that the sections about Lower Gold Hill are in ore, and not because the Comstock lode lies north and south. There are outcroppings also which indicate this, as also other parallels still further to the south. But that the great Comstock lode lies as indicated by the 1500-foot level of Consolidated Virginia, is proved, not only from the formation there, but by all the indications from there to the North Carson and these outcroppings beyond." The geological formations encountered in the tunnel and in the ledge struck are exactly the same. That the mine is one of exceeding rich promise, the following published certificate from the principal assayer of the United States mint will testify to:

THE MINT OF THE UNITED STATES, AT CARSON, NEV.
ASSAYER'S OFFICE, October 9th, 1874.

L. D. Brown, Esq., President of the North Carson Mine—Sir:—I hereby certify that I have assayed your ore from the surface to a depth of one hundred and four (104) feet, and from the assays I pronounce it the best new mine of which I have any knowledge. My assays at the surface gave a result of about $15; average, at thirty feet, about from $40 to $60; and, from at least thirty samples of all kinds, I think the one hundred and four feet tunnel assays from $400 to $735 per ton, with a ledge well defined of over ten feet. I have made, in all, upwards of one hundred assays, many of them from very large samples, and I pronounce the results better than anything I have had personal knowledge of anywhere.

Respectfully, WIRT HOPKINS,
Assayer U. S. Mint.

The Carson people have gone to work in a sensible manner in opening this mine. Knowing they had a rich claim, they sold just stock enough (which they made unassessable, as a most pleasant condition of the sale), to pay the expenses of opening the mine, and hold the rest in hand awaiting developments. The Carsonites are probably over sanguine in claiming to have a mine as good as any on the Comstock lode, but that they have struck a rich mine in the North Carson there can be but little doubt.
